AMONG those who will motor to Champoeg today to attend the pioneer celebration are: Mrs. William Brown, Mrs. W. H. Eldridge, Mrs. S. C. Dyer and Mrs. J. D. Sutherland.

* *

Mrs. Rea Benson was guest of honor at a delightful surprise party and shower when the members of the Delta Alpha class of the First Methodist church gathered Thursday evening at the Benson's new home. An old-fashioned atmosphere pervaded the rooms with a group of girls in old-fashioned costumes and old-fashioned flowers in display. Those present were Mrs. La Moine Clark, Mrs. Rea Benson, Elsie Lippold, Rena Mickey, Violet Hoover, Ruth McAdams, Mabel Savage, Maude Savage, Nancy Savage, Beasie Smith, Josephine Shade, Alvina Anderson, Elizabeth Stockhauser, Edna Miller, Minnie Miller, Grace Robertson, Lydia Hunt, and Laura Marr.

* *

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Livesley returned yesterday from a motor trip through western Washington, going as far north as Vancouver, B. C. They spent the week visiting Mrs. Livesley's mother, Mrs. De Beck, in Vancouver.

* *

The members of the senior class of Willamette university were honor guests at a formal banquet last evening at the Gray Belle, the junior class entertaining. The program for the evening included: Vocal solo, Gladys McIntyre; reading, Caroline Stober; dance, Lillie Christopherson; toastmaster, Prof. James Matthews; College Days and Friendship Dreams, Richard Briggs, '25; Bind in Memory's Living Gleams, Orlo Gillett, '24; The Spirit of Old W. U., Elaine Oberg; Forever Holds Our Friendships True, Fred Patton; Our Golden Dreams and Memories, Albert Geyer; Have Made Their Tune Her Melodies, Esther Moyer.

Patrons and patronesses for the affair were Dr. and Mrs. Carl Gregg Doney, Dean Frances M. Richards and Prof. and Mrs. Jas. T. Matthews.

* *

Mr. and Mrs. Elmo White will be dinner hosts this evening at their home, 1465 Oxford street, for club friends.

* *

Mrs. Stella Kellogg Drake, grand matron of the Order of the Eastern Star of Oregon, will visit Chadwick chapter officially this coming Tuesday evening.

A no-host luncheon is planner for 12:30 o'clock at the Marion hotel, after which members will adjourn to the Masonic temple where Mrs. Drake will conduct instruction. Plans are being made for a banquet to follow the evening session. In charge of the arrangements are Mrs. James Godfrey, chairman; Mrs. Margaret Montgomery, Mr. and Mrs. Radcliffe, Mr. and Mrs. Tollman, Mr. and Mrs. Lou Grote, Mrs. C. A. Vibbert, Mrs. Herbert H. Hauser, and Miss Minnie Moeller.

* *

"The Cinderella Ballet," which will be presented by a cast of 100 children, will be given here May 16 and 17. The participants are members of Mrs. Ralph White's dancing classes. The affair, which is in the nature of a benefit, is being sponsored by the Illihee auxiliary club. Matrons supporting the production are Mrs. T. C. Smith, Jr., Mrs. William Walton, Mrs. T. A. Livesley, Mrs. Aashel Bush, Mrs. Fred Thielsen, Mrs. W. H. Burghardt, Mrs. Clifford Brown, Mrs. R. M. Hofer, Mrs. Dan Fry, Jr., Mrs. Chester Cox and Mrs. John J. Roberts.

The newly organized American legion auxiliary will meet Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock in McCornack hall. At this time important business will be considered. The auxiliary invites Salem wives, mothers and sisters to attend the meeting. It is hoped that a number will poin in order that the membership by May 11 may number 50, allowing the sending of two delegates to the June convention which will be held in Portland.

The auxiliary officers include: Mrs. John J. Rottle, president; Mrs. George P. Griffith, vice president; Mrs. Brazier Small, secretary; and Mrs. Carlton K. Logan, treasurer.

* *

Announcement comes from Corvallis of the engagement of Miss Annabelle Golden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Golden, to Wayne Kain of Portland. The announcemtnt was made at breakfast last Sunday morning at the Delta Delta sorority house, with the table cleverly decorated with tulips. Miss Golden, who is a member of the Delta Delta Delta sorority, is a junior at Oregon Agricultural college. Mr. Kain, who graduated with the class of '23, is a Sigma Chi. At present he is employed in Portland. Miss Golden is a popular student on the campus.

* *

Mrs. Harry Boles was hostess for the Dorcas club on Thursday afternoon, the members gathering to honor Kathleen Brinkley, bride-elect, whose marriage to Ben Arnold will be an event of the near future. The rooms were attractive with red tulips and white lilacs. A varied program was enjoyed, a mirthful part of which was a mock wedding ceremony. Dainty refreshments were served at the end of the afternoon, the hostess, being assisted by Mrs. George Hain. Mrs. M. Crabtree will entertain at the next meeting.

* *

Mrs. A. C. Parr was hostess on Thursday at an especially delightful meeting of Chapter G of the PEO Sisterhood, entertaining at her home on the Portland road. Mrs. F. L. Burt of Chapter C, Wyoming, was at this meeting, added to the chapter by demit. Miss Annora M. Welch, a non-resident member, was also present.

Quotations on education were used as the appropriate roll-call responses for the day. Contributions were made at this meeting to the educational fund of the chapter. Mrs. A. T. Woolpert gave the paper, following, in an interesting manner, the subject of Chili and Peru. For Hospitality day, May 8, the chapter accepted the invitation to meet in Woodburn as the guests of Chapter J.

Delicious refreshments were served, the hostess being assisted by Mrs. D. X. Beechler, after which a pleasant social time was enjoyed.

* *

Mrs. J. D. Sutherland has arrived in Salem to be the guest for the summer of her sister, Mrs. C. O. Rice.

CHAPTER 157.

What Katherine Answered to Lillian's Question.

I THINK Katherine read in our faces that she had startled us by her gamin-like joy at Lillian's news, for the next second she dropped her hands while an embarrassed flush stole over her charming face.

"You must think I've gone daft," she said, apologetically. "But, oh, if you know how tired I am of being on my dignity! You see, Jack's position in the little town in which we lived required that I keep the proper appreciation of the most formal conduct in mind, so you'll just have to forgive me."

"Forgive you!" I echoed, reading between her words that it was not Jack's position, but Jack himself who had so repressed her.

"Of course, your levity is a great trial to both Madge and myself," Lillian interposed with an impudent grimace at me, "but we'll try to struggle along under the handicap. And when we get out to the farm we'll put you out with Marion to turn a few handsprings."

"I wonder if I've forgotten how," Katherine said speculatively, with such seriousness in her tone that Lillian and I laughed outright.

But I really felt more like tears. There was such unconscious betrayal in her abnormally high spirits. I remembered suddenly a treasure of my small girlhood, a Jack-in-the-box, for whom I used to feel so sorry in queer childish fashion whenever I was allowed to play with him, and I never would willingly crowd him back into his confined quarters. Absurdly enough, the joy and relief which Katherine was unconsciously betraying at this interval of respite from her life with Jack Bickett seemed to me like that old-time escape of my plaything.

Madge Is Thankful.

Something else came to my mind, and came with a little feeling of panicky joy, as if I had escaped some danger by a narrow margin. I remembered the devotion which my "brother-cousin," Jack Bickett, had showered upon me from childhood, and the memorable day when he had come back from a long trip and—ignorant of my marriage to Dicky—had asked me to marry him before I could tell him my news and stop the revelation, so surprising to me, of his love.

I had often wondered what would have been my answer to Jack if I had never met Dicky. And in the early, stressful, sometimes miserable days of my first year of marriage, I had sometimes been guilty of wondering whether Jack's quiet dignity and strength would not have been a better anchor to my marriage ship than Dicky's volatile, tempestuous lovableness.

I had answered the question long ago decidedly in Dicky's favor, but Katherine's unconscious attitude brought home to me most forcibly what marriage with Jack Bickett would have meant to me. True, I have not Katherine's high girlish spirits, but I have a stronger will than she, a more tenacious grip upon "my own way," and—I sent up a silent little prayer of thankfulness that Providence had given me Richard Graham instead of Jack Bickett as my life companion.

Lillian tumbled Katherine's bags into the tonneau of my car, and motioned Katherine authoritatively into the rear seat.

"Undertake It!"

"It will save time to tell you what's up while we are going home," she said, "so get in here with me. Madge knows all about it already."

"I am all ears," Katherine laughed, settling herself in the car.

For several minutes there was no sound save the steady murmur of Lillian's voice relating the story which I knew so well, the story of Katie's strange terror of the unknown man, of her domination by him, of her queer, furtive searches of the house, and my father's room especially—all evidently under the man's directions—and of that final tragic night when we had planned to overhear, by Katie's connivance, her talk with him, and when the man had been struck down by an automobile while cycling to the rendezvous.

There was no word of question from Katherine, and I knew that she had slipped at once into the old attitude of absolute attention and obedience to Lillian when assisting her in secret government work.

"He is in the hospital now," Lillian finished, "and while he has not been inquired for yet, he will be. You see your job, don't you? He will need a nurse for weeks to come—indeed, it is doubtful if he ever recovers—and I want you to make yourself indispensable to him, so that when he is removed, as he will be, you will be asked to accompany him. I ought to warn you that going with him may be dangerous for you; for his employers, I am sure, would have neither scruples nor pity if they should discover you were a spy upon their movements. So, if you don't wish to undertake it—"

"What are you trying to do?" Katherine said half-roughishly, half-indignantly. "Undertake it! I wouldn't miss the chance to do a piece of work like that for the whole state of—Nebraska."

STAYTON NEWS

STAYTON, Or., May 1.—Rev. C. T. Cook, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church in Stayton, has made several trips over to Salem the past 10 days to attend the gospel meetings which are being held there under the leadership of Mrs. Victoria Demarest. Mr. Cook speaks in highest terms of the meetings in progress and says Mrs. Demarest is a wonderful speaker.

W. O. and Cora Cooper and their uncle, R. D. Cooper, who have spent the past three weeks here, drove to McMinnville Sunday where they enjoyed a picnic dinner in the park and a meeting of about 35 members of the Cooper families. The occasion was the 56th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Cooper of McMinnville.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf Phillips were Stayton visitors Thursday from the Coon Hollow neighborhood. Mr. Phillips is on crutches, due to a badly cut foot which he received while slashing brush on the farm.

Mrs. John Mielki, who has been ill for several weeks, was taken to a Portland sanitorium Friday where she will receive treatment. Mr. Mielki and their daughter Cecelia accompanied her to Portland.

Leo Lulay had the misfortune to break one of his legs while playing baseball at Turner Friday when he attempted to slide in to home base. Leo is one of the high school boys and his classmates and friends regret the accident.

L. C. Basley and wife of the Stayton hotel, which was so badly damaged by fire last week, have decided they will repair the rooms which were damaged by the fire, but will not rebuild the kitchen, which was a total loss, as they have leased the dining room to J. A. Hendershott, who will reopen it. Mr. and Mrs. Bailey will still conduct the rooming part of the business.

Mrs. Matilda Brown of Dallas, who has been ill at the home of her sister, Miss Anna Stayton, has recovered sufficiently to be up and about the house.

County Commissioner J. T. Hunt in company with Mrs. Hunt and her uncle, William White of Vadar, Wash., drove over from Salem Thursday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tate.

Mr. and Mrs. Plume arrived in Stayton Saturday and spent several days here with her sister, Mrs. Branson. Mr. and Mrs. Plum are en route to their home in Yakima after a three weeks' auto trip in California.

Funeral services for the late John H. Porter, a pioneer farmer of this vicinity, who passed away at his farm home three miles from Stayton, Saturday, were held from the Weddle chapel Monday at 2 o'clock, followed by burial service at the family lot in Lone Oak cemetery. Mr. Porter was a highly respected citizen of this community.

Ben Gehlen of the city market was a week-end visitor in Portland returning home Tuesday morning.

George Colby of Toledo visited here a day or two last week, the guest of Mrs. Mattie Bruce.

O. M. Baker, senior member of the firm of Baker & Ryan, local Chevrolet dealers, made a business trip to Portland first of the week.

Miss Anna Mertz, who has been in Beaverton the past few months has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Mertz, for several days. Miss Mertz expects to return to Beaverton Thursday.

Melvin Gildow and family of Aumsville were here Tuesday, bringing their small son, Donald, here for medical treatment.

Dr. E. H. Hobson of Salem was called here professionally during the week, being in attendance at the Thomas Fleming home where one of the Fleming children has been seriously ill.

Will F. Follis came over from Portland Monday visiting friends about town. While here he was entertained at the home of his brother, J. T. Follis.

Visitors in Salem at the Jess Shepherd home over the week-end were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gehlen and their son, Quentin, of Stayton.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fisher, motored to Corvallis Sunday where they spent the day.

Mrs. Leo Willing and little daughter Esther Mae, are visiting here from Corvallis this week. They are being entertained at the home of Mrs. Rosa Willing and W. B. Allis.

John A. Smith, a prominent republican of the Aumsville community, was here recently talking politics with Stayton friends.

Harry J. Rowe, manager of the Stayton Light & Power company, has fitted up a neat service wagon for the company's use.
