AUTO ADVICE

By R. DLORAH

Are your auto brakes breaking the law? Have them tested today.

If you want to enjoy your auto trip do not overload your car—Take only the things that you must have.

Select your equipment with care—See that it is strong and light and that it will pack away compactly.

A good stove adds to the pleasures of a camping trip—It is hard to beat a good gasoline stove—It saves the worry of hunting for wood.

When your rear wheels skid—to correct nearly close throttle, gently dab foot brake, and steer in same direction as you are skidding.

Avoid backing hard into the curb—Doing so will cause injury to your tires and shorten their life.

Be sure to look for approaching cars before pulling out from the curb.

The control of your car depends greatly on the efficiency of your brakes and how you operate them.

When traveling down a steep hill do not make the brakes do all the work—Let the engine serve as a brake too.

Next to gasoline, tires represent the biggest expense in running an automobile. With proper care and common sense driving you will get a much larger mileage out of your car.

Now is the time of the year that Tires Go Haywire
