FAMOUS PEA-SHELLERS OF COVENT GARDEN DISCUSS NEWS OF DAY WITH MARY, WHO'S BEEN AT POST 50 YEARS

Covent Garden, London, presents picturesque groups of vegetable and flower vendors. As the pea-shellors sit at their task, their tongues move almost as swiftly as their well trained fingers. In some mysterious way the happenings of the day reach Covent Garden almost before the newspapers know about them and gossip lightens the work. In the above photograph at the extreme left is a well known character known as Mary.

IN STRAWBERRIES MAY BEAT '23 PACK

More Will Be Put Up in Barrels Than Last Year; Maybe More Canned

More strawberries will be put up in barrels in the Salem district this year than in 1923, and possibly more will be canned.

That means a lot of strawberries. Marion county canned 117,935 cases last year.

Baker, Kelly & McLaughlin, Baker, Kelly & McLaughlin, putting up strawberries in barrels, are working full handed, in the Salem Fruit Union building. They are getting loads and loads of fine berries from the hills; mostly of the Ettersburg 121 variety. The same is true of their Albany plant—same varieties, from the Llan county hills. At their Woodburn plant the supply is dwindling. Not much hill country is tributary to that point. They expect the season to run all this week and next at the Salem plant, and perhaps at Albany.

At the Hunt cannery the plant is running to full capacity mostly on Ettersburgs. They are handling more berries with a smaller force proportionately than they did last year, owing to mechanical improvements. They are putting on more people. They expect the season to last a good while yet.

The Oregon Packing company at their Twelfth street cannery was working about 450 people Wednesday, mostly on strawberries; 350 of them women. They put on about 50 more women yesterday.

And this is the story at all the rest of the canneries; busy with the strawberry pack, and they keep on coming—mostly Ettersburgs now.

As to cherries Some of the canneries are beginning on cherries. They are paying 5 cents a pound. That seems to be the "market price" for the moment.

Raas to Buy Saturday But it is said that Mr. Raas, for the Lyons-California Grace Fruit company, is to begin buying Royal Ann cherries here tomorrow for barrelling for the maraschino trade. Then the market price may or may not be changed.

Loganberries Soon Loganberries will begin coming in soon. The Graves cannery at Woodburn expects to exceed its last year's pack of loganberries, and to pay around 5 cents a pound for the supply.

There will likely be some blackberries put up in barrels in Salem, and some evergreen blackberries. Possibly some loganberries, but this has not been decided. The barrelling concerns had poor luck last year with loganberries packed in this way. The storage charges ran too high, for one thing, in waiting for markets.

Patent on Prune Dryer Sought By Jonas Byberg SILVERTON, Or., June 12.—(Special to The Statesman.)—Jonas J. Byberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Byberg, on the Waldo Hills road, has sent in an application to the government for a patent on a prune washer and spreader which he recently perfected. Mr. Byberg has been working on his invention for the past four years and built four models before he completed the one which proved satisfactory.

The machine gives the prune a thorough washing without the slightest injury to the fruit. Its capacity makes it of real value to prune growers. It was tested in the Byberg prune orchards last fall and proved satisfactory.

The prohibitionist criticism seems to be that speeches like Dr. Butler's have a tendency to turn seats of learning into seats of yearning.

SILVERTON, Or., June 12.—(Special to The Statesman.)—Improvements are daily being added to the Silverton city park. The most recent addition is that of a high wire fence which prevents cars from driving around the grand stand and swings. The road is left open however, along the park as far as the swimming pool. The gates from the road to the park are very much in keeping, being made of rough timber.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR
Darkens Beautifully and Restores its Natural Color and Lustre At Once
Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.
While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.—Adv.
