

SEVENTY-FOURTH YEAR

SALEM, OREGON, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 15, 1924

PRICE FIVE CENTS

New Territory Will Be Opened to Automobile Travel Next Summer Along the Coast With the Completion of Stretches of the Roosevelt Highway

Above three arch rocks as seen from the Hill above Oceanside beach, formerly known as Maxwell's point 10 miles west of Tillamook and 103 miles from Salem. This point, which can be easily reached with automobiles affords an excellent view of the Oceanside resort the Ocean, the Lighthouse and all the surrounding country. There is a tunnel through this hill along the beach connecting the Oceanside beach with the beach to the North. Below a view of rock as seen from the new road at Bar View.

Thus far this season the new Oceanside beach has been unusually active. Visitors have been attracted to the resort earlier this year than before, buildings are going up on many spots along the sea-coast town and the predictions are that the resort will enjoy a much better season this year.

tent houses have been provided to make greater accommodations for the coming summer. The suspension bridge which was built last year and swept out by the winter's storms is being rebuilt by Rosenberg Brothers, Oceanside realtors. The bridge will extend from the shore to the adjacent rocks at the edge of the sea and will be a favorite hike for cottagers and more vacationists.

It is expected that work on the road to Oceanside will begin soon. The steam shovel from the Bay Ocean road will be brought into that part of Tillamook county and will be used around the bluff near the Elmer Hoag place. Memorial day saw large crowds at the resort, many coming in to stay only the week end and others for the season.

Two Views of the Seaside Golf Course Where Over 200 Players Participated in a Two-Day Tournament Recently

Below is a view along the Necanicum river, where it provides a water hazard for the fifth hole. There is a bridge across the river at this point, but a man-made ferry serves to transport the golfers across from one side to the other. The view of the river can be seen in foreground. Below—Looking from sixth tee down Necanicum river. The bridge across opened for the season's play last week with a two-day tournament in which 200 players participated.

52ND MEETING FOR PIONEERS

Big Program to Be Given in Portland Auditorium on Thursday, June 19

The 52nd reunion of the Oregon Pioneer Association will be held in Portland, Thursday, June 19, at the municipal auditorium, according to word received here by Judge Peter H. D'Arcy. The pioneers will assemble at 1:30 o'clock under the direction of Ivan Hanson, grand marshal, and his aides. Many features are included in the program this year. The literary exercises will begin at 2 o'clock, with the 'Kioshe Muck-a-Muck' at 4:30 o'clock. This is staged by the organized woman's auxiliary of the Association. A social hour (Hi-yu wa-wa, hi-yu he-he) will follow. The annual business meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock, when the officers for the ensuing year will be elected. The annual 'Camp Fire' will begin at 8 o'clock, Robert A. Miller 1854, past president, presiding. Five minute talks by pioneers and old time melodies will be the feature of the meeting. Joseph D. Lee, 1848, another past president, will be timekeeper. Children of pioneers and the public in general are invited to this meeting.

Indian war veterans will hold their annual business meeting on Wednesday, June 18, at 10 o'clock with a dinner from noon until 1:30 o'clock. The final business session will be held at 2 o'clock. The place of this meeting will be announced later.

All persons coming to, or born in the original territory of Oregon up to 1859, inclusive, that includes Washington, Idaho and those parts of Montana and Wyoming, without regard as to where they now live, are eligible to membership. All who came to any part of the Pacific coast up to the above date now living in Oregon, may become members.

Newport and Other Ocean Points Offer Good Angling

NEWPORT, June 14.—To devotees of the ancient art of angling, from the astute fly fisher who sends his silken line skimming into the shadowy depths of a quiet mountain pool in the hope of tempting some finny Adam to taste the forbidden fruit, to the lowly son of Isaac who drops his baited hook into the salty waters of Yaquina in the certainty of drawing forth a fat flounder, Lincoln county constitutes, with its numerous bays and streams a veritable fisherman's paradise. Here no whim of the angler goes unsatisfied, nor no worthy effort unrewarded.

The vast improvement of roads and highways has brought fishing that, a few years ago, could be had only at the price of several days strenuous packing, within a few hours easy driving distance and this has resulted in a phenomenal base of operations for this region and the angler wishing to spend a week or so fishing the Lincoln county streams would do well to establish headquarters there.

Within a radius of 15 miles north of Newport, Rock Creek, Schooner Creek and the famous Siletz river, all remarkable fishing streams may be fished within an hour after leaving town. Although the exceptionally dry spring has resulted in low water in these streams, the man who understands the use of the fly or spoon should have no trouble in making good catches of the native cut-throat and mountain trout from now on until the fall rains bring the silversides and jack salmon into the rivers. The stranger, however, will do well to study conditions carefully before approaching these streams. Due to an abundance of grampus in the upper reaches and of soft shelled crab in the deep holes, the trout are pretty well fed and unless the bait is fed to them on a silver platter, so to speak, they will not bite. For this reason a spoon used with a long lead is considered best by some fishermen, but following a brisk rain, which covers the surface of the pools with bugs and worms washed from the trees, the 'Professor' or 'Brown Hackle' No. 8 fly used on a six foot lead may be used with profit.

Within a like distance south of Newport will be found the Alsea and Yachats rivers, which yield mountain and brook trout, bluebacks (salmon trout, the game cut-throat trout and, in January, February and March, the prized steel head salmon. The bluebacks are found in the Yachats river, but literally tons of this fish are caught there during the year both
