Salem People Try Deep Sea Fishing Aboard Boat "Rainbow"

Walter F. Downing of Salem, returned home Thursday from his trip to Notarts as a guess of the trolling and does see fishing boat "Rainbox." The boat sailed from Portland, Saturday, June 14, with seven on board. T. J. Bligh, Elmer N. Downing, Walter F Downing, T. J. Bligh, Captain Al. Southmayde, also C. P. Hays and Ted Hays, of Portland former owners of the host. The boat is now owned by E. J. Hadley of Happy Camp of Netarts, Oregon. E. N. Downing, Salem and Al Southmayde of Sheridan. We arrived at the account of the Columbia. Mr. Bligh got cold feet and left us at Astoria. We left Hwaco, Sunday at 5 p. m., and visited the light house before crossing the bar. Some view we had from there. me view we had from there We crossed out over the har in fine shape and found the sea a little rough but everything went all right. We saw a wonderful sight near the har at Netarts. Sea Lion Rocks and there must be 500 sea lions on the rocks. They went in the water when we passed. Large ones, also thousands of Large ones, also thousands of birds to be seen on the rocks. We crossed over the ber in fine shape Sunday 1:30 p. m. A large crowd was on the beach to met us. We east anchor and went ashore to our camp. Monday we kept quiet and let the boat rest.

Tuesday, 17, we went deep sea fishing with 16 passengers, crossed out over the har in fine shape bad a fine trip, out about two hours. On Wednesday six of us had a great trip. On crossing

I was sure well pleased the way the boat performed and will be ready when I can for some more trips on the wonderful boat, Raintow. The boat will remain in Netarts bay to carry passengers out for deep sea linking. I came home by stage from Netarts, Tillamook to McMinnville, transferred to Salem stage and arrived home feeling fine.

Why I Wrote "WOMEN AND WIVES"

By Harvey Fergusson

Fear of life, it seems to me, the curse of the sensitive modern, he is afraid to follow his highest aspirations and his most genuine impulses. He is afraid of failure, of poverty, of the disapproval of his fellows, of bruising contacts with life. He is atraid of both love and hate. He strives for the illusion of security and never learns that experience is its own learns that experience is its own and its only reward.

Let any sensitive imaginative person look back honestly over his life and he will generally realize that his keepest regrets are not for things he did, but for things ne dared not do. Nearly always ne is awakened by the memory of

And use this road log. It will tell you the exact condition of the highway from Salem to Newport

EAVING Salem you follow the A Pacific Highway to Jefferson which is 18 miles from Salem, then on to Albany 10 miles farther. This portion of the trip is all on paving and the streets of the towns are plainly marked with highway signs so you cannot miss the road.

The bridge at Albany is closed so you turn to the left at the foot of the bridge and take the east side route to Corvallis, 41 miles from Salem. This is an excellent gravel road.

Follow the Newport highway signs out of Corvallis and you will find a gravel road taking you into Philomath, 49.5 miles from Salem

After leaving Philomath the road is slightly rough for the first few miles but one is comfortable at a speed of about 25 miles. About 12 miles from Philomath proceed more carefully, as there is a rock crusher and a bridge under construction, both requiring short detours of a few feet on a rather narrow road.

After these detours the road is excellent and fairly straight into Eddyville, which 79.1 miles from Eddyville, which 73.1 miles from Salem. This portion of the road tollows in succession the Marys, Little Elk, and Yaquina rivers. Anyone wishing to tarry and fish for a short time shoud stop and ask Mr. Mauch, proprietor of the service station and store in Eddyville to direct them as there is excellent fishing.
