Petty Thievery Rampant At Silverton Recently

SILVERTON, Ore., June 26. (Special to The Statesman).—Petty thieving has been quite general on Mill street the last week or two. Two families suffered the loss of milk with a few nights. Late delivery makes the taking of milk bottles an easy matter. One family reports that although nothing was taken an attempt to enter the house was made on Saturday night. Next door neighbors were not so fortunate as investigations following a commotion in the chicken house disclosed that one chicken was missing.

GIRL OF 15 BATTLES TIDE AND GALE TO SAVE MAN AND DROWNING DAUGHTER

Peter McLaughlin and his eight-year-old daughter were sailing in the harbor at Winthrop, Mass., when their boat was knocked about by a gale and capsized. Betty Colebourne, fifteen years old, witnessed their plight and swam one hundred yards to their rescue through the storm-tossed waters.

HARRISON IS ACTIVE MAN

Temporary Chairman of Democratic Convention Rated Brilliant Orator

WASHINGTON, June 21.—Six years of active service on the oratorical firing line in the senate, preceded by four terms of political schooling in the house of representatives, developed in Pat Harrison a brilliance of forensic expression that led to his selection as temporary chairman of the Democratic national convention.

Next to the youngest member of the senate, a six-footer with a perpetual twinkle in his eye and a booming voice that carries to the fringes of a crowd, he has a knack of putting into his delivery and choice of words both a sting and a smile.

His name is really Byron Patton Harrison, and so he was referred to in the congressional directory when he was serving his first term as a member of the house from the sixth Mississippi district. But now, as a senator, he is listed as Pat.

The enator is of the same Virginia stock as two former presidents of the United States, William Henry and Benjamin Harrison. More than 100 years ago his grandfather, migrating from the old dominion, settled near Crystal Springs, Mississippi, where Pat Harrison was born in August, 1851. His father, Robert Harrison, served in the confederate army, receiving wounds from which he never fully recovered.

The Harrison family suffered reverses as a result of the Civil war, and nine years of age Pat sold newspapers. But he kept to his school books, and finally worked his way through Louisiana State University by serving as a waiter in a student boarding house.

After graduation, he studied law while teaching in a Mississippi country school. At 23 years of age he was elected district attorney, serving in that capacity until 1910 when he was elected to congress. In 1918 Pat Harrison, who was making a name for himself in the house, entered a three cornered fight for the Democratic senatorial nomination in Mississippi, and received a majority over the combined vote cast for Senator Vardaman, who was a candidate for reelection, and Governor Noel, who also was in the race.

Vardaman had incurred the ill will of President Wilson. Harrison championed the president's cause, and on entering the senate proved one of Woodrow Wilson's staunchest defenders during the embittered days after the war. Of late he has assumed the role of one of the most caustic critics of
