KANSAS MAN LIKES OREGON

C. E. May Spends Week Here and Is in Love With Country

Charles E. May of Iola, Kan., for twenty years associated with newspapers in the southeastern part of the state, is in Salem for a week's visit with the Bert F. Adams family at 1890 Ferry street. This is Mr. May's first visit to the Pacific Northwest, his trip here having been made via the coast route through California. Asked by a Statesman reporter his opinion of this country, Mr. May was enthusiastic in his praise of the wonderful scenic beauty, the attainments in the matter of fruit production, and the interesting stages of development of the country, which now seem to be only just starting.

"I was considerably disappointed with California, in that where they do not have handy irrigation facilities, the entire state has the same desert monotony that one meets in crossing Arizona and New Mexico," Mr. May said. "It was indeed refreshing to cross the line into Oregon where all was verdant and beautiful, where running streams met the eye in place of dry creek beds. They tell in the middle west of California as the land of flowers. Where do they get that stuff? I have seen a far more beautiful and extensive floral landscapes here than I saw anywhere on my trip. And these wonderful roses—and the unbelievable size and flavor of the cherries and berries. It has all been a wonderful revelation to me. Truly, Oregon folks have something to crow about."

Asked as to conditions in western Kansas, especially as to the dairy industry, our Kansas visitor says that the farmers of that section have learned the bitter lesson of trying to farm great areas with the one-crop system, and are turning to the smaller tracts with intensive methods.
"Bourbon county has taken the lead in our section in turning to the cow and the hen as the solution of the farmer's problems, instead of leaving on farm blocs and legislation at Washington to keep the sheriff away. Bourbon county is a dairy county, and where ten years ago poorly kept shacks and miserable roads predominated there are now beautiful farm homes connected with hard surface roads. Allen county is falling in line with others and the farmers are turning their at-

A Plain Talk on the Irrigation Question

THE WATER COMPANY is today pumping almost one-third more water than last year, but on extremely hot days the use and abuse of water for irrigation deprives people living in the higher parts of the city of water for domestic use.
Under the unusual weather conditions of this summer, many towns have had to restrict the use of water for irrigating, some communities being allowed to irrigate only one hour each day.
The rules of the Salem Water, Light & Power Company permit a liberal use of water, and if lived up to, there will be enough water for everyone.
It is against the rules of this Company for any consumer whether metered or not to irrigate thru an open hose. The matter of irrigating with a hose having a nozzle should be strictly observed, as it is a very important factor in maintaining a uniform pressure for all parts of the city. The nozzle should not have an orifice greater than one-fourth inch.

The flat rate consumers irrigated from 6 to 8 A. M. and from 5 to 9 P. M., four days a week, the residents of houses bearing even numbers irrigating Monday, Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday, the residents of houses bearing odd numbers irrigating, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday, and Sunday.

We bespeak your cooperation in adhering to these regulations to the letter, thereby assuring everyone of an adequate supply. It is the part of a good citizen to be careful not to waste water during this unusually hot weather.
