SPECULATION RIFE OVER PRUNE MEET

Organization and Selection of Head Is Stated for Monday Night

Speculation in rife and interest aroused to a high pitch over the meeting at the Chamber of Commerce Monday night to attempt the organization of a Salem local to handle prunes through the newly organized North Pacific Cooperative Prune Exchange which is to be the selling agency to take the place of the Oregon Growers Cooperative Association.

Aside from interest in the outcome of the attempt at organization there is also interest in who will be elected to head the local if organization is effected. It is reported that there is a movement favoring the election of W. G. Drager of Salem. If his name appears before the growers there is likely to be a lively contest with M. J. Newhouse, present manager of the Oregon Growers association who was slated for manager of the Oregon Growers Prune association had that proposed organization remained in existence.

The attempt at organization of a local here will have an important effect upon the cooperative movement in general here, growers declare. In the past there has been much opposition to the association here and there have been frequent failures when such were attempted. Salem is veritably the home of the independent packers and in the past these men have in a measure helped to shut out the associations by reason of the fact that their relations with those that did come were none to friendly. Should the organization Monday be successful there will likely result a different attitude among the growers and packers both toward the cooperative movement in this district. But what will happen Monday is much talked of speculation and many are not overly optimistic about the chances of getting a local here.

SENATORS LOSE TO MONTAVILLA

Clearing the Bases Twice in One Inning, Visitors Turn Tide of Game

Leading by a good margin until the visitors' last time at bat, the Salem Senators went down to defeat before the Montavilla team from Portland Friday afternoon by the score of 6 to 5. Two home runs, with two men on bases when the second out was delivered, proved too much for the locals, who had been leading, 5 to 2, until the last of the eighth inning. It was a good game and was confined for the most part to a pitchers' battle. The Senators found the Montavilla team in the sixth, and scored two men after the opposition hurler had issued a pair of passes. An error gave the third tally for the inning.

Hof's flared in the breasts of the Salem fans in the first of the ninth, but a short clout to the infield, neatly fielded, found the runner still short of the initial sack. A long hit to the right of center field followed, but this was nulled by the outfielder. Reinhardt, the last Senator to face the Montavilla twirler, failed to save the day by fanning out.

Boland, of the visitors, was the first man up in the last of the eighth and circled the bases after a lousy clout. With two men on, F. Misner connected and made the round trip, chasing in his two teammates before him.

Prison Slickers Defeat Cathedral Team 12 to 1

Another victory to the long line of wins was annexed in the Fourth of July contest by the Prison Slickers against the Cathedral team of Portland by a score of 12 to 1. The visitors were entirely outclassed for the entire game. After the baseball game the athletic program was concluded with a tug of war across the big ditch in the prison yard.

MISS M'KANE IS VICTOR OVER WILLS

Tennis Title Held By Len- glen Goes to English Wom- an in Even Battle

WIMBLEDON, July 4.—The tennis title that Miss Suzanne Lenglen, the French star has held against all the world since the close of the war passed this afternoon to a British champion, Miss Kathleen McKane, when, in a magnificent, thrilling match she triumphed by a narrow margin over the champion woman player of the United States, Miss Helen Wills. The score, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, does not give a true indication of how slim was the margin of strength in favor of the victor.

Miss McKane had reached the semi-finals in the Wimbledon tournament, but was forbidden by her doctors to continue further play, and thus was unable to defend her title.

Miss McKane, to win the championship today had to make an uphill struggle, as Miss Wills, after taking the first set, led in the second at four games to one.

When her cause became desperate, Miss McKane was wise enough to throw aside the conservative methods and caution that usually characterizes her play. Venturing everything she abandoned the back court and rushed to the net at every opportunity gaining her end for five games in succession and with them won the set.

MURPHY IS WINNER IN 150 MILE RACE

National Championship Race Cut Short by Bad Places in the Track

SPEEDWAY, KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 4.—Jimmy Murphy raced away with the national championship automobile race here today. The race, scheduled for 250 miles, was called by officials at the end of 150 miles, because of bad holes that appeared in the track earlier in the race. Tommy Milton was second, Bennett Hill third, and Harlan Fengler fourth.

The holes in the track had caused the drivers much trouble early in the race and when 150 miles was reached, officials decided that the holes, some of them several feet long, was endangering the lives of the drivers. The fastest time was 117.8 miles an hour.

stand. A policeman and a delegate supported the victim while he regained his senses and said his name was Herman Schoenstein of New York, chairman of the 23rd district committee. Out of the storm of shouting, gesticulating and bawling which followed McNab's motion, followed demands for the regular order, which the chairman sustained and the clerk was ordered to go on with the roll call. Michigan gave 7 1/2 votes each to Underwood, Davis, McAdoo and Smith.

Davis took vote heretofore going to Ralston.

McAdoo lost one in Nebraska, Pennsylvania took one from McAdoo and one from Glass and added the two to Davis.

In South Carolina, McAdoo again got the single vote which has been going to Chairman Walsh.

There was a challenge on the vote of Tennessee cast under the unit rule and C. M. Bryan of Memphis was recognized for five minutes to explain why the minority in Tennessee contends the unit rule does not apply.

Chairman Walsh decided that the unit rule in Tennessee bound the delegates by their instructions to vote for McAdoo so long as his name appeared before the convention.

While the balloting was going on the scouts sent over the floor to learn if there was any disposition to withdraw on the part of Robinson, Salsbury, Baker, Davis, Owen, Glass or Underwood. Gov. Brandon seemed to smug up his sentiment when he shouted with indignation: "Leave Underwood? Why, we will be here voting for him when they kill hogs in the fall if necessary."

McAdoo lost one in Nebraska and gave it to Gov. Bryan, North Carolina took a half from Underwood and gave it to Davis of West Virginia. Pennsylvania took one from McAdoo and on from Glass and added the two to Davis.

In South Dakota McAdoo then got the single vote which had been going to Chairman Walsh and in Connecticut Smith gained a half while McAdoo lost 1 1/2 and Davis gained one.

A Colorado delegate, wearied of the monotonous balloting, moved to adjourn so "that the so-called leaders may have more time to decide what they want to do."

The motion to adjourn is always in order and a vote on it couldn't be denied. By a heavy majority, however, the convention decided to remain in session and go it a little longer.

Massachusetts gave a half vote to Marcus A. Coolidge of Fitchburg, to keep it from Gov. Smith. Even the Smith democrats laughed at a vote going to a Coolidge in a democratic convention.

In the sixty eighth Will Rogers, the cowboy-comedian-reporter, got one vote. It was a newspaper gallery joke in which a delegate was put up to include his name in a ballot. Whereupon a delegate from Illinois asked unanimous consent to permit Rogers to address the convention. Amid laughter and cries of "we've heard worse," Chairman Walsh smiled at the suggestion and without putting the question to the convention, ordered the roll call to proceed to the sixty ninth.

North Carolina entered Josephus Daniels with 2 1/2 votes, one half of which came from the McAdoo column, one from Underwood and one from Davis.

Oklahoma, which had been voting steadily for Senator Owen switched to McAdoo.

During a demonstration Smith delegates in the Pennsylvania delegation became aroused when a delegate tore down two pictures of Gov. Smith and threw them on the floor. In a fight that followed over the state standard, Mrs. Maude B. Renshaw of Pittsburgh, was struck on top of the head by the standard. She was slightly wounded and was removed from the hall after her wound had been dressed.

Announcement that McAdoo had climbed to the 530 mark gave his supporters opportunity for another demonstration. There was another march around the hall which was started by the Texas delegation in which many other states participated.

PEPPERMINT OIL FOUR DOLLARS NOW

There Will Be a Normal Mint Crop in the Salem Dis- trict This Fall

The price of peppermint oil is up; it is now $4 a pound. There will be a normal crop in the Salem district, and it will bring a lot of money. The fields look well; are standing the dry weather all right.

The Pacific Homestead of the current week (published from the Statesman building), has an article on the peppermint oil industry that covers the field very thoroughly, and in that article the news of the high price is given.

Peppermint oil sold last year in this district at $2.40 to $2.62 1/2 a pound, and that was a good deal better than the year before.

As there is little more expense in a mint crop than in a hay crop, and as the mint has a good stock feed, after the oil is extracted, and as growers of the Salem district have produced as high as 85 pounds of peppermint oil to the acre, and average probably 50 pounds, it is easy to see that there is likely to be a boom in the industry; a bigger one than there has been heretofore.

In fact, the business might be overdone; but this is not likely to last long, if the time ever comes, for we produce the best flavored peppermint oil in the world; with a higher menthol content than any other, and more pounds to the acre than can be grown elsewhere.

So we can compete with any other district; if the thing is to be overdone, the "other fellow" will have to get out of the game, because our growers have the edge on him, in three ways, at least.

Oregon Letter Carriers Hold Session in Corvallis

The Oregon state branches of National Association of Letter Carriers and National Federation of Postoffice Clerks met in Corvallis on Saturday, June 28, in the domestic science building at O.A.C. Delegates were present from Albany, Astoria, Bend, Corvallis, Eugene, McMinnville, Oregon City, Portland, Roseburg, Salem and Silverton. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: For the carriers, F. P. Harlan of Corvallis, president; Geo. W. Johnson of Salem, vice-president; Fred B. Holm of Portland, secretary-treasurer. For the clerks—J. A. Brice of Portland, president; V. Gould of Bend and Tallman of Corvallis, vice-presidents, and Miss Ina Harold of Silverton, secretary-treasurer.

Following the business session a banquet was served in the tearoom by the domestic science class of O.A.C. The program consisted of speeches by prominent Corvallis citizens, postmasters Jones of Portland and Torbett of Albany, Inspector E. C. Clements of Portland and representatives of the clerks' and carriers' associations and was interspersed with solos, male quartets and orchestral numbers.

The invitation of the Astoria delegation to meet in their city for the 1925 session was accepted.

other quarters. Under it increased pressure would be brought to bear to drive out of the running the favorite sons who have lapped up large reservoirs of voting strength which might otherwise go to the leaders. So far has this proposal progressed that several delegates have drafted formal resolutions for the elimination on succeeding ballots of those having the fewest votes until only two or three remain. It seems likely tonight that if tomorrow's balloting follows the inconclusive course of today's, a fight might be planned for composite elimination plan worked out by several who believe that only by such drastic measures can a nominee be selected.

Two of the trailers in the voting, Senator Ralston of Indiana and Jas. M. Cox of Ohio, withdrew their names from consideration today but the result was negligible on the standing of the leaders. The 30 independent votes which had been going to Ralston were distributed 20 to McAdoo and 10 to Smith while Ohio's 48 delegates, who had been voting for Cox, got solidly behind Newt D. Baker. Ralston and Cox both disappeared entirely from the later ballots and although Baker picked up a few outside his own state he made no substantial headway.

Just before adjournment tonight the convention laughed down a resolution by Edward Fernston of Hudson, Mich., proposing that the convention formally call upon McAdoo and Smith to withdraw in the interest of party harmony. When the question was put the McAdoo and Smith delegates, comprising more than four-fifths of the convention, snubbed the proposal.

Nine ballots were taken at the two sessions today and tonight and at the finish McAdoo had 528 1/2, a recession of 1 1/2 vote votes from his high mark on the ballot preceding. At adjournment last night he had 469 1/2. Smith's strength at tonight's adjournment was 334 1/2, compared to 335 1/2 last night. All the others remained far behind.

The rise in the McAdoo total was due largely to the gain of 20 in Indiana, coupled with a return of Oklahoma to the McAdoo column and the addition of smaller groups in scattering states during a drive just before the close of the session tonight. The anti-McAdoo leaders declared the total of 530 reached on the 69th ballot represented the absolute maximum of the McAdoo strength, but the campaign managers for the former treasury head insisted that tonight's additions to their strength was only the beginning of a ground swell that soon would result in a nomination.

Some of the McAdoo men also expressed the view that the day's developments indicated an impending breakup of the Smith adherents. In reply the Smith men said their lines had been further consolidated by the manner in which the McAdoo delegates united against the proposal to bring the New York governor before the convention and that the result would be a tightening up all around.

Some of those who are trying to break into the favorite son status and sweep the fields of them believe that both Smith and McAdoo can be convinced once they are virtually alone in the balloting that neither can be nominated and then the leaders can get down to the business of selecting a third man.

With the convention tied in a hard knot, there is nothing too fantastic to be given some consideration by a considerable group of delegates. On the other hand no suggestion, however sound, can hope to escape general condemnation because the convention now is composed of solidified groups, each suspicious of whatever may be offered.

The suggestion most widely spoken of tonight, perhaps, was the one to provide for the elimination on successive ballots of the candidates receiving the smallest number of votes on each ballot. The anti-McAdoo following looked upon this at first as a simple pure McAdoo scheme to make sure of the nomination of the Californian. It is said, however, that those who originated the scheme were neither ardent McAdoo men or especially hostile to him.

Many of those who studied the scheme took certain means of eliminating the two leaders. They argued that since there was no proposal to drop, the rule requiring a nomination by two-thirds of the delegates voting, the plan would work in this way.

After an indefinite number of ballots the convention would reach that stage where the leaders would be the only candidates before the convention. Then if either McAdoo or Smith was able to bind more than one-third of the delegates to his standard there would be a final impasse and a new deal would be necessary.
