Wednesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. White spent the greater portion of their vacation trip at Breitenbush springs, with the last few days at the coast.

Receiving Pickles—Pickling operations are about ready to begin at Albany, according to word received here. The first of the cucumbers were received Wednesday morning. In some of the larger yards the vegetable is now ready for harvest. Approximately 200 acres have been planted in the district and in most cases the crop is said to be doing well.

Newspapermen Travel—Cedric W. Foster, newspaperman of Hartford, Conn., and Harry Richelman, a printer from the Hartford Times, arrived in Salem last night after making the drive from Hartford in 15 days. Mr. Foster until recently was on the editorial staff of the Hartford Courant and is on his way to San Francisco where he will take a position in the San Francisco bureau of the Associated Press. He is a graduate of the University of California. The Hartford Courant is the oldest newspaper in the United States, having been established in 1764. On the way across Mr. Foster and Mr. Richelman ran into a tornado in South Dakota, but were fortunate enough to reach a town before the storm reached its worst. It did great damage in the towns and was the forerunner of the storm that later entered Ohio and caused loss of many lives and damage of millions of dollars worth of property. From Hartford to Salem Foster and Richelman traveled 3995 miles, 860 miles of which was in the state of Montana.

FOUR OF THE FLAX PULLERS AT WORK

They Have Been Taken Out to the Fields Around Aumsville and Turner

Four of the 12 flax pulling machines will be at work in the fields around Aumsville and Turner today; besides the one that was brought here last year.

Machines have been taken out by Ball Bros., Turner, Mr. Mills and Pat Brantley, Aumsville—and the fourth was taken out late last evening by Pete Thomason of Turner and his son, Owen.

Two more, going to Polk county, are expected to be taken out today.

This will leave six on hand. They are all contracted for, but it may be that some of the growers who contracted for machines will not have flax enough of their own to justify the using of the machines.

Perhaps some shifts will have to be made. But an effort will be made to get all the machines out, sold, and in the hands of men who will use them.

This will stabilize the flax industry here. It will centralize it

Excellent Quality Peaches Are First to Be Received

Early peaches being received by the Ryan Fruit company from the I. Schindler ranch across the river are of excellent quality, perfectly formed and large in size. A few peaches from a Silverton orchard were also received this week and are reported as being of an excellent variety.

In general, the peach crop will be short this year, according to O. K. DeWitt, one of the owners of the Beaver Island orchard near Wheatland ferry. The normal output from the 50-acre orchard is about 12,000 cases, he said.

This orchard has peaches ripening from the middle of July until the middle of October, with Columbia coming first, probably next week. These will be followed with the Triumph, the first yellow-vented variety, Crawford, Elberta, Muir, Hales and a number of other varieties not known to the orchard.

Tourists are Few This Season at Silverton

SILVERTON, Or., July 9.—(Special to The Statesman)—Several reasons are advanced for the lack of camping tourists in Silverton this summer. One is that Silverton is so far off the Pacific highway on which the majority of campers travel. Another is the scarcity of work here at the present time. Still another is that it may still be somewhat early in the season. Last summer when the free auto camp was maintained above the city park quite a number of travelers availed themselves of the opportunity afforded to camp overnight there and several made it their home while at work in Silverton. Due to abuse of the privileges granted the camp was closed at the end of the summer.

Allen brothers have given permission to tourists to camp back of their garage near Silver creek, wood, water, camp stoves and tables being furnished for 50 cents but so far very few have made use of the grounds.

Are you observing courtesy week? It costs nothing to be courteous, and it will be Salem's everlasting fortune if every one here will be.

lies, with two cars and camping equipment, left for Wheatland, Cal., Wednesday morning. The Meeks have relatives there and expect to be away on this visit for two weeks or more. The loganberries are holding out much better than was expected in spite of the dry weather. The sound of the sickle floats on the air and shocks of ripe wheat are springing up every where.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

It's Davis and Bryan—The democrats would not feel natural without some member of the Bryan family on their ticket.

Salem will never be known as Porkopolis; it has too great a diversity of interests; but this is a swine breeding center, and growing more so every year.

Through all the summer, we will keep cool with Coolidge. Now the flax pullers are getting busy. They have a big pull for Salem as the linen city of the world.

The City Beautiful is the Slogan theme for next week—Slogan editor has got to prove that Salem has the setting for the most beautiful city in the world. He asks the help of every one who ought to be interested—and no true son or daughter of Salem should be immune.
