

"Beau Brummel" Last Time Today at Oregon

A bacchanalian feast reminiscent of the days of Falstaff in all his glory, with rosy wine trickling from flowing bowls, was filmed by Director Harry Beaumont for the Warner Brothers picture, "Beau Brummel," starring John Barrymore.

It was a feast that would cause a vegetarian to fling his ideas to the four winds and cure the most chronic case of indigestion. Large platters of roast chicken, roast beef, huge trays filled with fruits of every variety, kegs of wine, steaming turkey, gobs of potatoes and celery—everything eatable was spread on a long, rough hewed tavern table for the edification of a brilliant assemblage of 30 members of the Tenth Hussar who gathered to pay tribute to the salient wit and diplomat, Beau Brummel.

"Beau Brummel" is playing today at the Oregon theater. It is the screen version of the famed Clyde Fitch play immortalized by Richard Mansfield, and recounts the love affairs of one of the most picturesque characters ever seen in England. The picture closely follows the play, and the presence of Barrymore in the starring hole insures a performance mature, rich and entertaining.

For his supporting cast he has notable players, among them Mary Astor, Willard Louis, Irene Rich, Alec B. Francis, Carmel Myers and others. Beau Brummel's rise to popularity his intimacy with the Prince of Wales, the doings of the royal set, and the Beau's sudden fall and ruin, are depicted with brilliance and gusto.

Dorothy Farnum, responsible for many successful adaptations, did the screen version.

MISSOULA, Mont., July 11.—Reports received late this afternoon from the Kootenai national forest, in which a number of fires are burning, stated that three larger blazes are practically under control and that unless high winds occur the fire situation on that forest will be better than for several days past. SAN FRANCISCO, July 11.—California's forest fire situation seemed to have assumed a more serious phase today with reports of uncontrolled fires in three widely separated parts of the state, according to reports to the forest service headquarters here.

The fire near Yuba Pass, Sierra county, has been checked. In Tulare county 700 men were combating a fierce blaze along a front of 25 miles in the Bull Run district with approximately 25,000 acres in the Sequoia national forest having been burned over.

The Shasta and Siskiyou blazes are still defiant but not as serious as the Santa Barbara fire.
