MOUSSES One of the richest and most elaborate, as well as the most expensive, of the frozen-dessert family is the mousse. It may be composed wholly of frozen whipped cream and fruit pulp or it may be stiffened with gelatin, but it is always frozen without stirring and should have a mosslike texture

Basich recipe for Mousses-1 up to 1 pint of drained fruit pulp lavored with juice of one-half emon, 1 pint whipping cream, sinch salt, 1 cup powdered sugar.

Add the salt and sugar to the ream and beat until stiff throughut. Sometimes it is necessary to drain the whipped cream no a fine ieve. Fold in the drained and weetened fruit-pulp. The fruitpulp may be stiffened by adding a easpoon of gelatin, which has been soaked in two tablespoons of cold water and melted over hot water. The fruit pulp should then be set on ice until it begins to stiffen before the cream is folded in. Put in a mold and pack in equal parts of ice and salt and let stand for three hours.

Crushed bananas, strawberries, raspberries and peaches may be used in making mousses.

Statesman of cold water and melted over hot water may be mixed with the sugar and added to the whipped cream and the flavoring added,
