New Procedure Introduced

Into Appeals on Treasury

Tax Ouestions

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 .- With the organization of the new Board of Tax Appeals, which takes outside of the treasury the final decision in disputed tax cases, the bureau of internal revenue has set up a new code of regulations governing procedure in the handling of cases before appeal is taken to the high tax court. This procedure includes the creation of a new committee on review within the office of the solicitor of SOOS SCAVENGER SERVICE - GAR bage and refuse of all kinds removed internal revenue, a body largely by the month. Reasonable rates, Cess supplanting the old supplied supplanting the old unofficial committees on appeal that functioned prior to enactment of the last revenue law.

The regulations provide that in every case where a deficiency appears to exist, the internal revenue bureau will give the taxpayer notice of 30 days so that, if he iesires, he may file a protest, request a hearing and offer evidence against the proposed increase. The letter of protest should contaxpayer, name and place of business of the corporation and the state in which it was incorporated, a designation of the year of years invoived, a statement of the amount of tax in dispute, an itemzed schedule of the bureau's findings to which exception has been taken and a summary of statements of the grounds upon which the taxpayer relies in connection with each exception to the find-

If the taxpayer presents no proest within 30 days of his notification, final determination will be made and the taxpayer so notified. The taxpayer then, under the new law, may appeal the case to the board of tax appeals, take it out of the hands of the bureau of internal revenue entirely and go into the open with his argument and evidence, for the tax law provides that all hearings before the tax appeals board must be public and a written record of the proceedings made if the amount exceeds $10,000.

Appeal to the board of appeals must be made within 60 days after the taxpayer has received notice from the internal revenue commissioner that a final determination has been made. Accompanying the notice of a final desessment and if the taxpayer decides to drop his contention, he may execute the form and return it to the bureau, thus closing the

In working out this arrangement, it is the hope of the treasury to eliminate a vast amount of work that otherwise would go to the tax board and jam its docket. In other words, the treasury, Acting Secretary Winston said, hopes to reach a settlement with every taxpayer possible and serve the double purpose of getting such revenue as is due into the Treasury at once and reducing the number of cases to be heard before the Board of Tax Appeals.

Before entering the Treasury

Mr. Winston was associated with a Chicago law firm and his experience there, he said, convinced him that the average taxpayer was concerned more with an early and final settlement of a tax claim than with the amounts, except of course where the differences are great. In some quarters, the belief was expressed that as a result of the establishment of the new Board of Appeals outside of the Treasury, officials of the bureau would adopt a more conciliatory attitude in dealing with taxpayers for the independent Board of Appeals may overrule the Bureau at any time it finds ground to do so. Mr. Winston agreed that with the board outside of the Treasury. more rapid disposition of the cases within the Bureau of Internal Revenue is likely to take place in
