THE SALEM FLORAL SOCIETY will sponsor an "open garden" tomorrow afternoon at the Homer Smith and William McGilchrist, Jr., residences adjoining at 675 and 677 North Summer street. ULDINE UTTLEY CHILD WONDER

Concludes Great Revival Meeting in Salem

CHAS. J. LISLE

There are two ways to explain the case of Uldine Uttley the girl evangelist who has been preaching to thousands of people in Salem during the past 10 days: A direct, positive miracle of God, or a mistake or misrepresentation of her age and previous conditions of life—and even at that it would be a miracle; in as much as few others could do it at all!

One hates to believe in something one can not understand. It is not normal for the child of 12 years to preach, to lead music, to argue intelligently as this girl does; the grown-up hates to believe that any child can do what he himself can not now or ever do. But he is a fool who will deny what he proves for himself, by every rule of evidence, whether it concerns a child or a centenarian.

This little girl, under the teaching of a power that confounds the ordinary laws of growth, preaches a mature gospel that must satisfy any intelligent test. It is a gospel of love, not a gospel of the tricky and argumentative brain. One doesn't have to be old and tottery, to know how to love, or how to prove love; that is natural for the normal child. Usually it is love for the few—for father, mother, brothers and sisters, intimate friends. Only the divine love reaches out beyond the touch of the hand or the eye, and is able to grasp the principle of universal love. This little girl has this comprehensive conception of love, and the extraordinary ability to carry the message of love.

Thomas Maplethorpe is spending his vacation at Scotts Mills at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hogg. Mrs. Hogg is a daughter of Mr. Maplethorpe.

F. E. Shafer and sons, Frank Jr. and Earl are anticipating a three weeks' motor trip through southern and eastern Oregon. They plan to leave late this week.

Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Sherman returned home Saturday evening from a 10-day vacation trip.

The Modern Writers' club of the Arts' league will meet this evening in Bush's pasture for a picnic meeting and program.

Mrs. L. S. Geer has as her house-guest Miss Adelia White of Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Beeby spent Sunday at Foley Springs.

Mrs. George Christensen accompanied the Artisan caravan as far as Creswell yesterday where she will visit with her husband for a few days. Mrs. Christensen will also visit in Eugene before her return the middle of the week.

Miss Frances Welch, Miss Jessie Starr and Virgil Starr spent Sunday at Neskowin, motoring over for the day.

Mrs. R. A. Annin and son, Bobby, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Herman of Myrtle Point were guests on Sunday of Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Pemberton, motoring out for the Coos County picnic. Bobby Annin remained over and will accompany Dr. and Mrs. Pemberton to the Oregon Caves this week. Dr. and Mrs. Pemberton are leaving this morning.

ed at them. Not one of them has brought a soul message, has dreamed of anything but to tickle the intellectual or the ridiculous palate and make one wonder how they could do it. They have been like the spiritualist table-tippers and bell-ringers who have no message other than buffonry or sleight-of-hand, or perhaps nothing—but foolish mimicry of what their elders do to make people laugh. But here comes a little girl with a message concerning all eternity; a powerful message, delivered not in imitation of adult intelligence but with a genuine intelligence that has been given her for this one purpose. Between the two kinds of "children," the common mimics on one side and the inspired message of helpfulness on the other, it ought to be easy to choose which to believe or to approve.

This child preacher confounds the ordinary rules of childhood. But it needn't matter to any one just who shall bring the message that makes the world better; the message is the only important thing. She has brought a gospel that is already making Salem better; a message that is clean and wholesome, and in which there is never a regret or a heartache.

What one does with an exceptional talent is the mark of one's morality and worth. If she can bring hundreds, thousands, to better citizenship and the hope of eternal life instead of merely making them laugh, one needn't worry about "how" she got it. She has the disposition and the power far beyond her years; if Divinity has shown her a short cut across the fields of knowledge and understanding, and she is using this for a good purpose, that's enough. Fools worry about what life is made of, how it comes, how it goes. Many such fools take their own lives in a frenzy of doubt. The truly wise live the life that is given them, accepting its wonders and its gifts, being grateful for its privileges and helping to pass the good along to other grateful generations. If Uldine Uttley brings only good, what matters her age; or the explanation of her power?

The revival meeting closed Sunday night. The army was packed and hundreds were turned away. The meetings were a great spiritual feast.
