caused Judge Caverly to stop the oceedings an hour and a half earlier than usual. Mr. Crowe hammered at the witness along lines previously employed in his sefforts to belittle the value of the testimony in mitigation of punishment.

Students to be Called

Clarence S. Darrow, 'veteran chief of defense counsel, said upon adjournment that a dozen or more lay witnesses, including students from which Loeb and Leopold. respectively, are the youngest graduates, would be called before the final expert testimony was introduced "The defense does not intend to have the boys testify," said Mr. "We may find that we/ shall want some members of their families to take the witness stand to connect up definite phases of their lives or to identify exhibits already put into the record.

"In that event we shall call Foreman Leopold, brother of Nathan, and Allan Loeb, brother of Richard."

May Close Case Monday Mr. Darrow indicated that the defense might reach the point where it could rest its case next Monday.

It was the first day that State's Attorney Crows had not at some interval asserted the hearing had reached a stage where Judge Caverly should summon a jury and have the youths tried upon a plea of insanity.

Judge Cacerly took advantage of the early adjournment to scan a stack of several hundred letters bearing postmarks from all parts of the country, advising him as to what his decision should be. He said they were a nuisance, and every writer was in contempt of court.

The judge's chambers were invaded after adjournment by an
