AUDRED BUNCH

PHONE: 106

MANY INTERESTED garden lovers were callers yesterday afternoon and early evening at the attractive Homer Smith and William McGilchrist, Jr. residences, adjoining at 675 and 677 North Summer street. Hostesses from the floral society during calling hours were: Mrs. W. H. Daney, Mrs. J. A. Churchill, Miss Edith Hazard, and Mrs. W. E. Anderson. A table was arranged on the Homer Smith grounds for the punch bowl.

With three of the most pleasingly located lots in the city given over to landscaping interests, the spacing and planting is inspirational throughout. The residences both face to the east. The McGilchrist grounds have the advantage of a corner location, while the Smith home has the advantage of an unbroken space of two lots banked and planted with the most effective vines, seed plants, and shrubs accentuated with white, paling fences and pergolas, and a vine-covered cove. Mr. Smith has as a feature his own golf putting green. Distinct in its effect is the low continuous border of "floss flowers," or ageratum, of a peculiar Copenhagen blue shade, which follows long along the gentle landscape curves.

The phlox at the McGilchrist home drew forth many exclamations of approval. The great rose clusters and two separate white varieties are markedly tall. The pictorial massing of bloom at the side of the house was pleasingly arranged for both height of growth and for color. The branching heliathus with its masses of yellow bloom added an attractive note to the garden paths. Zinnias and gladioli, at this season, have taken the place of the tulips which are maturing at the back of the grounds till time for the autumn planting. Mr. McGilchrist has a very interesting section of his garden devoted to young gladioli shoots in various stages of growth. The background wall is formed, for the most part, of dahlias in the deeper shades, and masses of golden rod. A bird-house above the profusion of bloom adds to the pleasure of the garden. Well-grown shrubby masses itself against the house.

Plants attracting attention in the gardens were: Globe thistles, the purple-spiked Japanese butterfly bush, the flowering stalks of Monte Brodia, a hedge of Canterbury bells in second bloom, the thick planting of maidenhair fern, petunias, lobelia, vari-tinted zinnias, and countless other varieties in seasonal keeping.

Both the gardens have plantings of wild flowers. The combined effect of the two homes is one of distinct pleasure, with a wealth of bloom to marvel at even at this very driest time of the year.

One of the most charming of all the season's brides was Miss Marie Schwab whose marriage to Joseph William Chambers was an impressive nuptial event of Tuesday evening. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. C. C. Schwab, at 8 o'clock. Reverend John J. Evans, pastor of the First Christian church officiating. Relatives and close friends of the uniting couple witnessed the beautiful service.

The ceremony, performed in the living room, took place under a bower of foliage profuse with pink blossoms, with vine maple, fern, and a basket of blossoms banking the fireplace. The improvised altar was a complete floral space of hydrangea, gladioli, and dahlias.

In the reception hall a variety of mixed flowers were used. Gold was used as the color scheme in the dining room. Marigolds were used here exclusively.

Neither of the young couple were attended. The bride was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. C. C. Schwab. The bride's lovely imported wedding gown was a tan satin crepe. Her bouquet combined orchids, lilies of the valley, sweet peas, and Cecil Brunner roses.

Immediately preceding the ceremony, Miss Nellie Schwab sang "Beloved, It is Morn." The Mendelssohn wedding processionals was placed by Miss Mildred Jaeger.

Trainload of Cherries To Net Good Returns

Six cars shipped through Schobel & Day will net the growers 13.6 cents a pound and the entire black cherry pool shipped by the Salem Cherry Growers association will average a little more than 11 cents a pound, according to O. E. Brooks, manager of the pool. Local sales did not do so well, and though two carloads sold for 11 cents and 12 cents a pound respectively, the average will be a little more than 11 cents. Final averages cannot be computed until the returns are all in.

Plans for the formation of a permanent cherry growers' association will be pushed this summer, as it was decided upon at a recent meeting of the growers to continue the pool of this year with Mr. Brooks remaining as manager.
