RADIO FIRM WILL OPEN STORE HERE

Headquarters Will Be at 291 N. Commercial; Opened August 25

Radio Headquarters is the name of a new store that will open here Monday, Aug. 25, at 291 North Commercial in charge of A. W. Mollet and A. L. Baker. The two proprietors are attending a convention of radio men in San Francisco, August 16 to 21, and upon returning will open their store with the latest electrical and radio appliances. The new store is connected with Radio Headquarters in Portland and Corvallis.

A feature of the establishment, and of particular interest to radio fans, will be the new shop test set, one of two now in existence in Portland and Mr. Baker, who will have charge of the electrical end of the business, aided the inventor in his work. Patents are now pending for the testing machine. The additional features on this set is the ability to test grid leaks from 1/2 to 10 meg., test resistances of transformers and coils, distortion in transformers, matching and finding amplification factor in long wave transformers. The paramount feature is the speed with which faults are located.

A portable trouble shooter will also be maintained. By placing a special socket attachment on the set instead of a tube it is possible to test out each circuit of each stage. Other equipment will include a tube oscillator and an instrument to test tubes for oscillations and condensers, both fixed and variable. It will also test wave length range of set under test.
