FEDERAL MEN SEEK IDENTITY OF SHIP

Tells of Visit He told of boarding the huge craft, of paying a $5 cover charge and $5 for a stateroom for night; of being ushered into the presence of a jazz orchestra, a staff of busy bartenders and a party of 60 revelers who drank and danced the night away.

His narrative included a description of a list of beverages, where the cheapest drink was Scotch at $1, and the most expensive was mint julep at $2.50, with wine at $20 and upwards by the bottle, and champagne to be had in abundance at fat-purse prices.

The characters of the story included a captain in brilliant uniform who did not drink; a crew of nattily dressed sailors with cockney accents; numerous and sundry wealthy men and women, old and young, of polished manners and democratic demeanor; a negro jazz orchestra, bartenders, waiters, stewards and stokers.

National Defense Day Is Urged By Pershing

DES MOINES, Aug. 16.—(By the Associated Press).—General John J. Pershing, here to inspect the Iowa national guard, today declared that national defense day was the only means of reducing in the future the number of "gold star" mothers and that if practically carried out September 12 it will be the "greatest move toward international peace" ever made by any nation.

18 FROM SOUTH LOCATE IN CITY

R. E. Sanderson Increases Salem Population—Looking for Occupation Salem's population is at least 18 more than it was Friday, for R. E. Sanderson and his party of 18 who have been touring the country in a caravan of five automobiles registered at the camp grounds, looked the city over, decided that this was the only place, and before dark Saturday night had obtained a house.

Albany, Eugene, McMinnville and other Willamette valley towns have been trying to break into the flag game. The field is open. Let them finance retting and scrubbing plants, and tow making machinery, which would not cost a great deal; and then provide funds for buying the flax from the farmers, and they can all get in.

MRS. FULKERSON ISSUES REPORT

On June 16 there were 145 schoolhouses in Marion county, 141 of which were in use during the year. Five new school buildings were begun during the year. Of the 127 organized districts in the county 124 districts made reports. Several of the districts are consolidated. Thirty-two of the districts maintained school for nine months.

Other interesting data furnished by the report was that during the school year Mrs. Fulkerson traveled a total of 12,000 miles on school business in the county. There are in the school libraries, including Salem, a total of 37,237 books. The per cent of attendance during the year was 95, which is considered very high.

Twenty Years of Crime Are Ended By Bullets

JOPLIN, Mo., Aug. 16.—A career of crime extending over more than two decades was closed late today when detectives' bullets rattled the body of Roy Dugan, 54 year old, ex-convict, notorious bank robber and alleged slayer of 18 men, when he resisted arrest.

WHITE LAUDED FOR RECORDS

Economic Administration of State Military Department Noted

That the state military department is carrying on the work of administering a force of citizen soldiers now numbering 3000, in addition to maintaining an accurate record of the individuals who served in all wars, with too little clerical help is the only "startling disclosure" made, according to a detailed report by Arch J. Tourtellotte, certified public accountant from Portland, which was filed with Governor Pierce yesterday.

Two months ago Brigadier General George A. White, as adjutant general of the state, asked that all military funds and transactions be carefully gone into. Mr. Tourtellotte, who recently completed an audit of the state bonus commission and state treasurer's office, was suggested by Governor Pierce as being qualified for the task.

The size of Oregon's citizen army has been ripped in the past few years and no corresponding increase in the administrative force at guard headquarters has been made due to the necessity for strict economy in the department.

Touching upon the clerical and administrative force employed by General White, the report says: "It is apparent from an analysis of the enlarged and increasing responsibilities and functions of administration and record within the office of the adjutant general of the state of Oregon, that the present force is overwhelmed with necessary details requiring additional assistance in executive services. This applies particularly to the field work which requires an exacting and continuous travel about the state in the work of organizing and stimulating guard units and in the constant supervision in the continuous process of refining the personnel to required standards.

Construction of three armories during the past biennial period is gone into in the report which shows the business methods used in the expenditure of the $200,000 spent for the buildings.

"A point worthy of favorable commendation is observed, the report says, "in that the construction was completed with the funds provided and with unexpended balances remaining at conclusion."

"I have reviewed the current 1924 reports of recent inspections by federal officers covering a wide scope of inquiry on matters concerning the Oregon national guard and its administration," Mr. Tourtellotte reports.

Covering federal funds disbursed in the state through national guard tables, the report shows a heavy growth during the past four years, and the revenues to Oregon communities from this source is specially commented upon, the financial table in the report showing that the annual revenues for armory drill pay alone from the United States treasury has grown from $42,204.18, when General White reported back from overseas duty and undertook the reorganization of the service, up to nearly $200,000 for the present year.

The total for three and one-half years," the report says, "is $423,487.88. This item alone exceeds $147,011.44, the state legislative appropriation for the corresponding period. The total expenditures of federal allotments for the period aggregate $935,583.23. These funds are widely distributed through the state and constitute a large revenue to Oregon communities.
