SEA CALL
How could they know the tide was in my feet,
I who had lived apart from ocean ways?
How could they know the ocean's salty beat
Was at my heart through all youth's windy days?
I who climbed hills as sailors would a mast,
Felt the winds whip across my hungry lips,
How could I halt the great sea's call at last,
Feeling the urge of tide like riding ships?
What wonder then that from the meadow-green
I slipped away as winds before the dawn,
Seeking the unstill sea I'd never seen,
Finding a white-sailed ship and sailing on
Beyond the fields and hamlets on the shore,
Losing myself, the while I found the more.
—Howard McKinley Corning, Portland, Ore.

THE GOLDEN WEDDING anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Craig, of south of Salem, was celebrated in a delightful and fitting manner on Thursday afternoon with the three children, Mrs. Charles Mason of Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Lou Katz, of St. Helens, Oregon; and Dr. D. B. Craig, recently of Centralia, Washington, all present for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Craig were married August 21, 1874, in Michigan. Mr. Craig, a member of the G.A.R. post, has the honor of being a Civil War veteran.
A two-o'clock wedding dinner was served for the members of the family, the golden motif predominating in the appointments. A bowl of marigolds centered the table while the house was festive with streamers of gold, the same tones being repeated in the attractive nut-baskets. The bride made her own wedding cake for the occasion, Dr. Craig, her son, appropriately decorating it.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig were the recipients of many lovely gifts, Mrs. Craig receiving from her husband a beautiful, new wedding ring in chased gold. Mr. and Mrs. Craig each received, as a gift from the children, a purse containing fifty dollars in gold.
After the dinner, many friends and neighbors of the couple called to extend anniversary greetings, refreshments being served at the tea-hour.

Professor and Mrs. S. S. Francis and daughter of Hillsboro were in town this week. Both Mr. and Mrs. Francis are graduates of the Willamette University of 1915. Mr. Francis will be principal of the Carlton schools this year. They visited at the home of Mrs. E. J. Swafford and of Mrs. Gordon Black.

Mr. S. D. A. Hodge, and Mrs. O. A. Kreamer of Independence, are spending several weeks at Belknap Springs.

Miss Maude Covington, city librarian, left last night for Victoria, B.C. where she will attend the annual convention of the Pacific Northwest Library association, August 25-28. The membership of the conference of which Mr. John Riddington of Victoria, B.C., is president, includes Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, and British Columbia.

Word from Mr. and Mrs. Lester S. Day gives their new address as 1734 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California. Mr. and Mrs. Day arrived in Salem from Boston the middle of last month. Mr. Day going immediately to his new position as secretary of boys' work in the San Francisco YMCA, while Mrs. Day (Emma Shanfelt) visited here with friends for a short time, later going to Sheridan to which place her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Shanfelt have recently moved.

On Thursday of last week Mrs. Day had as her guest, Miss Lorlei Blitchford who has been spending the summer in California. Mrs. Day writes of her home being a delightful four-room apartment not far from the "Y."

Mrs. C. K. Logan had as her guest, her brother, Paul Forberg, of Fergus Falls, Minnesota, who came on Friday. Mr. Forberg left for his home yesterday.

Simplicity characterized the marriage of Miss Velma Meggers and Carl W. Mischke of Yakima, Washington, which was solemnized at the hour of eight on Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Meggers, 945 Union street.

Reverend C. H. Hopkins of the Nazarene church officiated before an altar with artistic canopy of evergreen, fern and roses. "Because" was chosen as the song to precede the ceremony followed with Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Viola Griebenow. The bride wore a suit of blue pique with a becoming hat of gray solet worn with harmonizing veil. She carried an arm bouquet of roses and ferns. Miss Hattie Meggers, who wore canton crepe and carried sweet peas and fern, acted as bridesmaid. Her coiffure was banded with a small wreath. Ralph Cook of Portland was the best man.

Only relatives and intimate friends were present for the ceremony and the reception which followed. About thirty were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Mischke left for Yakima, Washington where they expect to remain until the opening of the school year when they will leave for Nampa, Idaho, to resume their university work at the Northwest Nazarene College.

Out-of-town guests witnessing the ceremony were: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mischke, of Yakima, the parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Meggers, of Enterprise, Oregon, brother and sister-in-law of the bride; Ralph Cook; Arthur Cook; and Nelson Taylor of Portland; and Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Henries and family of Turner.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank E. Brown and Mrs. D. H. Craven left Friday for a motor trip through Southern Oregon as far as Ashland, and possibly as far as California. In Eugene, Mrs. J. E. Allison will join the party, the group returning home this week.

A group of about fifty members of the Woman's Relief Corps met at the home of Mrs. M. E. Neyhart on Thursday for an August social afternoon. Singing and conversation were the afternoon diversions. The group is especially anticipating the annual picnic and birthday dinner next Saturday, August 30, at the state fair grounds.

Hostesses for Thursday afternoon were: Mrs. Neyhart, Mrs. Florence Shipp, Mrs. Mollie Bennett, Mrs. Jennie Martin, Mrs. Lizzie W. Smith, and Mrs. Mabel Lockwood.

Miss Edna Garfield had as her interesting guest during the week Miss Clare Leonard of Denver. Miss Leonard went from Salem to San Francisco, planning to sail in September for the Orient.

Miss Marjory Webb was the guest of honor Thursday evening at a prettily appointed birthday dinner and line party at the "Oregon" at which her mother, Mrs. C. B. Webb was the hostess. The table was festive with a birthday cake bearing the appropriate number of candles and a bowl of pink sweet peas. Covers were placed for ten guests, the group including Miss Doris Buck of Portland, the cousin of Marjory Webb.

Mrs. Ada Strong will have as her house-guest for the week, Miss Nancy Thielsen who has been spending the summer with her parents at Agate Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Seward Green and children, Frank and Martha, left last week for their Michigan home after a month's visit here as guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Green, their hosts accompanying them as far as Portland. Mr. and Mrs. Green are returning home by

MATHILDA'S SHOPPING DIARY

August 24

By AUDRED BUNCH

Yesterday Mathilda made her first fall shopping tour, and it was such a joy she is going to do it every week. She thinks she'll do it regularly like she pays her month's water bill, or like she attends her Friday bridge club. Why not? Indeed, she'll surely have to go again to finish seeing so many things that she didn't see this time.

A certain ravishing hat and scarf set, at the Smart Shop, consisting of hat and Spanish shawl so captivated her that it was hard to leave—and next time she does not think she will leave without taking it with her! The millinery seems more stunning this autumn than usual. Tokay, wallflower, Chinese blue—and then so many of the chapeaux with the Directoire crown. The Spanish theme is dominant, too. Sollet, duvetyne, and the leathers combine so well in all the new modes. No, it doesn't seem that the millinery has ever been more exclusive—but then, Salem never had the Smart-shop before.

And didn't you notice, too, how many dark dresses were seen on the street yesterday. It is as if after the first rain the town had passively accepted the fall season.

Mathilda couldn't deliberately have come to anything any more attractive than Breithaupt's floral display. Asters and gladioli were combined in perfect tones. She almost wished she had a marriageable daughter so she could get Breithaupt's to do the decorating.

It doesn't matter whether you call it Directoire or postillion. It is the same thing—and more: the thing—if you are speaking of the crown of a new fall hat.

Tanserine is a stunning color, isn't it? But so is peach bloom if it is the tint in the exquisitely textured skin of a girl!

Wonder if you ever stopped to analyze what it is in the work done at Gunnell & Robbe's studio that makes the portraits there so discriminately natural? The exquisite texture surely indicates a deft, almost indescribable touch, doesn't it?

Mathilda thinks whimsically what a lovely color scheme could be developed by using the early fall asters in that lovely lavender-blue color.

Mathilda really started down town for her appointment at the Elite Beauty Shoppe. She likes the equipment, and the courtesy and thoroughness of the operators there. "It is always a pleasure to go to the Elite," she writes.

Mathilda thinks it is very ingenious and delightful that the wood shades should predominate so in the fall millinery. One is thus reminded so cunningly of her vacation days a-field spent by brown and gold water under brown and gold trees.

The mousse, Mathilda knows, is one of the most expensive of the frozen desserts, but why worry about one's own deserts at all, especially on Sunday?

This is what Mathilda does for her family: Invites them to be her guests at the Gray Belle where you always find each dish a delectable specialty. And who could think anyway, of a more delightful place to eat than at the Peacock room with its new, decorative motif?

Was there ever a pleasant afternoon that one did not instinctively long to make last on and on?

There was one place Mathilda just had to go—and that was to Moore's Music house "where all roads lead," sure enough. What a satisfactory instrument the portable phonograph is! Why hadn't she bought one before: so compact, a beautiful case, and such marvelous tone.

With operators who have catered to San Francisco's most exclusive beauty trade, it isn't any wonder to Mathilda that the Kalke Sisters (Balcony, Miller's Department Store) make real friends of the customers coming for the French paper curl or the new shingle bob.
