BUILDING PERMITS NEARLY $100,000

FARM PROPERTIES TO MOVE, BELIEF

August Activities Continue Steady Gain; Majority for Dwellings

Building permits for the month so far are close to the $100,000 mark, a majority of which are for new dwellings. A total of $40,500 was issued during the week ending Saturday noon, bringing the total to $98,800 for August.

Thirteen permits were issued this last week, all for residences with one exception, that of a small private garage to cost $400, and $1000 to be spent in alterations and repairs on a dwelling. The remainder were for homes, ranging from $1500 to $7000. Several were between $2500 and $3000, with one for $5000 and another for $4600.

Frederick Deckebach obtained a building permit yesterday for the construction of a $6800 dwelling at 2235 South High street.

Prospects for considerable activity in farm properties this fall are bright, according to a prominent local real estate dealer. While there has been a little trading in this class of property, inquiries for such land are more numerous at present than in the last few months. Prospects for property are characterized as being "live," and it is expected that dealing will be brisk this fall.

Tourists are positive in their praise of the Willamette valley, and declare it to be the finest farming district they have seen on their trip. These statements are made from tourists coming from east of the Mississippi river, and are not confined to those from any particular locality. Such information, broadcasted by the visitors, is far more valuable than that spread exclusively through advertising, according to the realtor who is of the opinion that both are highly desirable. Advertising alone may attract attention, but often is forgotten. An enthusiastic tourist who has seen the lands that are described often is the source from which interested persons write for more and detailed information.

IMPORTED TILE INTRODUCED HERE

New Bookstore Has First of Attractive Material to Be Used in Salem

Something entirely new in the line of building materials is being introduced into Salem by C. Van Patton & Son, contractors.

Imported tile is being used for the front of the Klinger property on State that will be occupied by the Melson bookstore early in October. This tile gives a very attractive appearance to the entrance of the store and is in harmony with the new type tile front used in the building occupied by the Burnett Brothers Jewelry store next door. The tile is being used extensively in the construction of new store fronts in other places, according to Mr. Van Patton, but never before in Salem. The only other place in which the tile has been used her is in his own home. Mr. Van Patton said, where he adopted it for use around the fireplace.

Husbands are people who prefer to be thinking when they are merely putting.

Society

Lovers of water-color art will be interested in the exhibit in the Court street show windows of Miller's department store of five distinctive pictures by Elmer Young formerly of Salem. Mr. Young has been for the summer, the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Young at 942 Summer street. For the past three years an instructor at the Minneapolis Institute of Art, he will return to his work next month. This is Mr. Young's first visit to Salem since 1919. Mr. Young, following study at the Chicago Art Institute has done some magazine illustrating as well as his interesting pedagogical work. The department where Mr. Young has his present instructorship ranks among the eight highest in the United States.

Aside from winning, last year, second place in the water color exhibit at St. Paul, Mr. Young has been invited to display his work with the exhibit from the Pennsylvania Water Color society; the Cooran gallery exhibit in Washington, D. C.; the international Water Color society in Chicago; and with the New York Water Color society in New York.

IMPORTANT TO HOME BUILDERS OR HOME BUYERS

HAVE you your own home, or do you need help to plan your home? Are you paying out good money for rent and yet nothing for it but rent receipts? Let me give you my price on your new home. I do nothing but first-class work, and I am sure to save you money. I am doing it for others, why not for you? I will build any kind of a home you wish, from brick, tile, or stucco, and guarantee my work. I always have new homes for sale, 4, 5, 6, and 7-room homes, well built. I will be glad to show you some of these brand new homes ready to move in. As low as $100 will move you in and the rest like rent. It will pay you if you are thinking about a home, to see me.

A clipping from the Minneapolis Journal gives this account concerning Mr. Young's winning exhibit:

"The second award was given to Elmer E. Young of Minneapolis for a group of five water colors, the one called 'the Antique Shop' receiving first mention. A sure sense of value and spontaneous character of his work are apparent in all of the five pictures. He has respected the medium and preserved the transparent quality which is the appeal of water color."

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Teel and Cyrus Clowser have returned from a motor trip to Bandon, North Bend, and the Oregon Caves.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Mills received the interesting news late last week that their son, Harry Q. Mills, a pianist of recognized talent, has accepted a position as accompanist for Alice Gentle of the Metropolitan Opera company. This week Mr. Mills plans to be in Los Angeles for a three weeks' engagement. He has been playing on the coast, principally at Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles since 1921.

Mr. Mills received a considerable part of his musical education in Salem, studying under Frank Churchill, Claudia Childers, and at Willamette University as well as at the school of music at the University of Oregon. In Chicago Mr. Mills spent a year studying under Professor Frazier.

He has many friends here who will be delighted to learn of his new position.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bohrnstedt and daughter, Miss Alberta Bohrnstedt are spending the week-end in the Big Elk country.
