FINAL PLEAS ARE LAUNCHED IN TRIAL

and murder of 14 year old Robert Franks.

The hearing came thus near to its end because Benjamin Bachrach of counsel for the defense used only a part of the morning session in the last plea for the student defendants. He picked up a few stray threads of the defense case and wove them into the design of its fabric.

Argues From Law

Mr. Crowe based his argument, he emphasized, not on the philosophies of the sages, not upon the "prattle and piffle of paid alienists concerning childish phantasies, and dreams of supermen," but "upon the laws of Illinois."

"And the law says," he shouted with a stirring gesture, "that in cases of extreme violence the penalty shall be fixed at death."

The state's attorney snapped his oratorical fingers at the mental sickness theory of the defense, based, he said, upon "hairline decisions of high paid alienists," whom he was pleased to call "the three wise men from the east." He made light of "all this twaddle about childish compact and youthful phantasies and dreamlands of Teddy bears and detectives' careers" and called the proceedings "back from laboratories, psychopathic hospitals and communist mass meetings to the criminal court of Cook county."

Disagreement Precipitated

His argument once took him into realms of controverted points and precipitated as a climax to the day's proceedings a disagreement between counsel which brought into the open record a portion of the coroner's physician's testimony on his post mortem examination of the body of Bobby Franks after it was found in a water filled railroad culvert. The defense maintained that Mr. Crowe had drawn an unfair inference as to the condition of the body in relation to the crime, an inference which they said was not borne out by the coroner's report.

To settle the controversy Judge Caverly sent for the report and announced a five minute recess to give women an opportunity to leave. He assured them that court would adjourn immediately after the reading but about half of those in the audience elected to remain. Then the judge ordered them out.

Orders Women Out

"I want you to leave at once," he said. "Why persist in hearing this rot?"

There was a scurry for the doors and when the hubbub had subsided only a third of the seats in the room were occupied and those by men.

The report was read and the defense attorneys again asserted it proved their point.

"My contention is that the water in the culvert washed away the evidence," said Mr. Crowe.

"Well, we have the report now and you will not want to go beyond that," said Judge Caverly as he adjourned court.

The early adjournment prevented Mr. Crowe getting as far along in his argument as he anticipated. He probably will continue through the entire day tomorrow.

Divers Bring Up Seven Million Pounds in Gold

LONDON, Aug. 26.—The discovery of an unexpected storing place in the fore part of the liner Laurentic, which has been lying in 90 feet of water since she was sunk by a German submarine in 1917 at the mouth of Lough Swilly, on the northern Irish coast, has enabled divers to recover 250,000 pounds worth of gold bars which had been given up for lost.

The divers have been working intermittently for six years to recover from Davy Jones' locker the consignment to American bankers of 7,000,000 pounds sterling in gold and silver bullion. The entire consignment now has been recovered.

DISCUSS REWARDS FOR WORLD FLIERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The American world fliers plan to embark Thursday on their final water jump from Livigt, Greenland, to Indian Harbor, Labrador. Lieutenant Smith, commanding the flight informed the army air service today. After a brief stop at the latter port for fuel, the flight is to be continued the same day forty miles to Cartwright Bay, where a base has been established. The dispatch from Lieutenant Smith declared preparations had been practically completed so far as the Greenland port was concerned. The special naval squadron co-operating with the fliers also was drawing in to cover the last series hazard. The flagship Milwaukee was at Indian Harbor today and the cruiser Richmond, reported en route, is due there tomorrow morning.

With the practical end of the 26,000 mile journey in prospect, steps were taken in government circles to arrange a fitting welcome. A message of congratulation from President Coolidge will be handed the pilots when they disembark at Indian harbor, to be followed by felicitations from the chiefs of their own service and of other government branches at some later point along the route.

The question of a more material evidence of appreciation has been informally discussed by military circles and among civilian leaders of aviation but no detailed plan has yet been evolved. Testimonials to the courage and perseverance of the world flight will be placed on the permanent records of the fliers in the war department.

Messages of congratulations for the part played by the navy in the rescue of Lieutenant Locatelli, the Italian aviator, continued to pour into Secretary Wilbur's office today. Among them was a telegram expressing the gratitude of the national Italian World War Veterans association for the "spirit of comradery shown by the United States navy."

The Remodelled Jack Dempsey, Who Goes East Today to See the Wills-Firpo Fight at New York by John Eisner, a creditor with a claim of $5,943.

The receivership, brought at the instance of a friendly creditor and said to be favorable to the company, superseded an action that was brought yesterday in Trenton, N. J., by Dr. Maurice Klein of Newark.

The new receivership followed an all-day conference between bankers, company officials and legal advisers. It was indicated that the action will allow continuation of the company's financial rehabilitation, the interruption of which was threatened by Dr. Klein's suit.
