A PAYROLL CITY; A MANUFACTURING CENTER

Salem has become a manufacturing center and a payroll city of no mean importance, in fact, of outstanding importance, s cities of her size on this coast go-

And her more than $10,000,000 annual payroll for a city of 2 500, and with her suburbs making up a metropolitan comunity of something more than 25,000, gives a better showing, cording to good authority, than is to the credit of any other ity of her size in all the Pacific Northwest.

Marion county uses more than & fourth of all the cans used n the Pacific Northwest in making up the total fruit pack; es three or four times the number of cans taken for the whole olumbia river salmon pack.

Salem has the largest paper mill west of the Rockies for It is going to take a positive manhe making of the finer grades of paper; and this mill is conantly growing; growing in quantity and average quality of Salem has some of the largest fruit canneries in the whole untry, like that of the Hunt Bros. Packing Company and the regon Packing Company.

Salem had and will have again the largest loganberry juice rations in the world.

Salem has the only fiber flax industry in the United States turning out the finer fibers suitable for making linens of e higher grades, and will soon be spinning yarns from these bers, and weaving the yarns into napkins and table cloths and ess goods and other articles of commerce, and making twines d threads for various uses. In due course, we will be selling 00.000,000 annually of flax and hemp products, and employing eetly and indirectly in this industry a million people. This velopment, which the writer believes is as certain as the rising d setting of the sun, will justify a city here of many more

There is pretty sure to be built soon in Salem a beet sugar tional house of representatives, actory; perhaps two of them. We have a good prospect of securing here a potato starch

d dextrine and flour factory. All these things will bring many more factories. There will a cumulative industrial growth.

Salem now goes to the ends of the earth with her products, ging in new wealth year after year, and capable of being nued and increased throughout all the ages of the future. There is "white coal" enough available to fill all the Wilmette valley with the hum of industry; a power that may as he is trying to run his politics, used and used and that will never wear out, as long as the the practice would discredit popuwe of nature permit the mists to arise from the ocean and to lar government and undermine e down in the form of snow and rain to keep the rivers the republic, ming down the mountain sides.

Salem will be a big city, and it will be an industrial city, prepared for by the decrees of nature. And thus it will be prosperous city surrounded by a thrifty rural population-And it will be a Gibraltar prosperity, in the land of diver-y, in the country of opportunity, where there is seed time harvest in all the twelve months of every year; something o do and something to sell every day of the 312 or the 365.
