AN INTERESTING and gratifying picture is conjured in the minds of Salem people who stop to consider what it means to have the children of the hop pickers of the valley cared for by competent workers who are carrying out that phase of social service known as Migrant Work in various of the local yards. Such a program is being carried out at the Bell hop yard, at the Livesley yard, and at the Durbin and Conover farm with, in all cases, the splendid cooperation of the owners.

A visit at the Durbin yard made by Miss Constance Kantner gives some surprisingly interesting facts. It is at this yard that Mrs. Robbins and her daughter, Miss Eanta Robbins, are in charge. Up from the yard, more adjacent to the buildings, a certain space is fenced off known as the "Kiddy Camp" where the children assemble, being brought in by their parents, at 8 o'clock in the morning. On Saturday 40 children, with ages ranging from five months to 10 years, were in the camp under the careful supervision of Mrs. Robbins, who knows just how to mother the little ones, and Miss Robbins, who has endless ingenuity in arranging for their instructive pastimes. Each child throughout the day wears a colored slip of paper on which his name is written.

A tooth brush drill comes early on the morning's program. Another feature is the appointment of the older girls as "little mothers," each with one of the younger children under her special care. At 10:30 the youngsters are divided into groups for the mid-morning lunch hour. One group goes to "Sandwich Avenue" while a second goes to "Cracker Lane." Each morning each child is given a glass of milk by Mrs. Robbins.

Discipline at the camp is efficiently attended to, by a quiet retreat called "punishment bench." Before returning the children to their private camps at the noon hour, each little tot is washed and made as clean as possible. The generosity of the Salem women has made it possible to furnish complete sets of clothing for the children in a number of instances. Medical care is given the little ills which sometimes amount to badly neglected burns, and sometimes hop poison. Miss Kantner spoke of one condition existing in camp which was a matter of neglected demoids. One mother, who is deaf herself, has never heard the voices of any of her children, com-

Mrs. Z. J. Riggs had as her house guest over the week-end, Miss Lillian McCoy of Portland. The period was spent at Neakwin.

Barbara Fritchle tent, Daughters of Veterans, will hold an important meeting at 8 o'clock this evening at the armory.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Barton were hosts at dinner last evening completing Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Walton of Cambridge, Mass. who will leave for their home in the east sometime tomorrow. Gladio-ll in the rose shades were used in the rooms. Covers were placed for Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Walton, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Barton, G. W. Walton, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Barton.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Barton entertained for the pleasure of the Waltons with a little playlet or charade to present at the campfire program in the evening. At 6 o'clock the children are made neat and clean again and returned to their home-tents.

For the pleasure of her daughter, Eloise, on her fourteenth birthday, Mrs. H. H. White invited a number of young maids to a line party at the Liberty theatre on Monday afternoon. Later the group returned to the home on North Capitol street where dinner was served. An attractive combination of gallardia and delphinium centered the table. Candles and favors of blue and gold carried out the color scheme. Covers were placed for Doris Clarke, Marjorie Giese, Helen Darby, La Verne Schumaker, Mable Copper, Sara Samuel, Helen Breithaupt, and Eloise White.

The War Mothers announce a cooked food sale for Saturday of this week which will be held at Neimeyer's drug store. The members are especially asked to cooperate for the success of the affair. Cakes, pies, and meat loaves will be especially wanted.

A special meeting of the members of the Modern Writers' club has been called for tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock sharp. The business to come up is of unusual importance and the attendance of every member is urgently requested. The meeting, called by the leader, Gertrude Robison Ross, will be held in the auditorium of the Public Library.

Dr. B. N. White and his former partner, Dr. Ralph Walton of Cambridge, Mass., have returned from a several days fishing trip in the Aitsea country.

Mrs. W. H. Lytle has as her house-guest her sister, Mrs. Iva Bromquist who will be here until next week.

Word was received by Mr. and Mrs. Ross C. Miles gives the news of the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Miles in New York on Monday following a summer abroad. Their daughter, Miss Eva Miles will remain in Europe for the winter. Going to France and to Germany she will continue her study in the languages. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunn of New York who went abroad with Mr. and Mrs. Miles will remain in Belfast, Ireland, for some time in order that they may complete their business interests.
