URGES SUGAR FOR WILLAMETTE

Says This Valley Can Make Good Success With Beets

While flax has been occupying considerable public attention, a number of people have been quietly investigating the sugar business with the result that already certain farmers are planning to plant sugar beets next year. According to demonstrations made here sugar beets with as high as 25 per cent sugar content can be produced in this valley, but for the war a sugar mill would have been in operation now. However let another man tell the story.

"Editor Statesman: I am a resident of Marion county and have been for a number of years. In 1913 my farm was visited by some gentlemen from Salt Lake City who said they wanted to know something about the beet sugar business. I was led to believe that a beet sugar mill would be in operation within a couple or three years. In the spring of 1914 I again expressed my willingness to raise sugar beets but these gentlemen were not quite ready then. They promised to have their plans definitely by the first of September so that farmers could make their arrangements for the next year. Then the war came on and that ended the prospects of a sugar factory for the time being at any rate.

"The war has been over now for six years and I again hear rumors of a sugar mill. My farm has raised sugar beets of 25 per cent content. I don't think I have raised any below 12 per cent. My land is no better or no worse than my neighbors. If the sugar mill will come to Salem, I know the farmers will be mighty glad to contribute all acreage for sugar beets that may be required.

"We are talking about diversity. Here's a chance to get away from our small number of crops. The sugar beet industry is growing in many places and unless we start soon the territory will be occupied. I hope to be able to plant at least ten acres next spring. I hope the other farmers will do the same."

Very sincerely,
JAMES FERGUSON.

The second letter deals with another topic.

"Editor Statesman: I have been a great admirer of the city of Salem and its people, but I want to make one criticism in all kindness. I noticed that Corvallis and Eugene are slipping in on us and sniping our conventions. We ought to be able to control these conventions. Salem is ideally situated and has live merchants and they ought to work together as one man to bring such things to this city. The secretary of the chamber of commerce at Eugene can summon practically every business man in town to any meeting he thinks of sufficient importance. We have improved in team-work but we lack a whole lot of reaching that perfection. We need these conventions.

"After the Y. M. C. A. drive which of course must not be interfered with in any way, I am in favor of issuing bonds for a public auditorium. That will give us a lever on conventions. I do not want this to interfere with the 'Y' drive however as Salem must have that building, but I want to serve notice that an effort be made as soon as that drive is over to start the campaign for a municipal forum."

Very sincerely,
T. P. BELKNAP.
