

OREGON GUARD HALTS GROWTH

Recruiting Ordered to Cease When 100 Per Cent Authorization Reached

Orders stopping all further enlistments, except for replacements, were telegraphed to all organization commanders of the Oregon national guard yesterday by Brigadier General George A. White, commanding. This action came when the guard completed its expansion to 100 per cent of its present authorized quota of 3100 men, and following the receipt by General White of instructions from the war department to check the growth of the guard until congress makes further provision for its expansion.

"The fact that the strength of the guard in your state is so much in excess of the maintenance strength indicates a high standard, and great interest," the department wired. "The war department is placed in the unfortunate position of apparently placing a damper on the growth of your flourishing organization, but immediate action must be taken to prevent the further increase in strength."

Oregon is the only northwest state affected by the order, according to information received at guard headquarters, adjoining states not having passed the federal maintenance strength. Oregon is 40 per cent in excess of federal strength requirements and has 100 per cent of its prescribed quota for the first time as the result of recent recruiting activity.

Belief was expressed by General White that the limit on recruitment will be in effect for possibly not more than a few months and that during next year Oregon will be permitted to form additional units, including a battalion of infantry, two batteries of field artillery, one company of coast artillery and auxiliary troops including one regimental and two battalion headquarters companies. A number of Oregon cities are now on the waiting list with companies awaiting muster in.

Under the detailed orders put out yesterday by General White, the strength of every organization is fixed by the totals on the monthly report of September 30. No additions can be made but men can be re-enlisted upon the expiration of their terms of service. Enlisted men who are discharged for removal from the state may be replaced and thus vacancies filled, but in all other respects enlistment in the guard is at an end for an indefinite period.

Expansion of the guard beyond the limits of the last federal appropriations is given by the government as the reason. Funds were provided for 175,000 men and the war department on its last check found 187,000 men enlisted. Later the guard is to be increased to 350,000 men according to the national defense program previously announced. The increases are provided for in annual quotas.

"The order really works no great hardship on Oregon," General White said, "since we have our full quota and are bringing the maximum amount into the state in federal payroll earnings. All of the organizations are in fine condition and will suffer no inconvenience from a suspension of recruitment. It will give us an opportunity to put the recruiting energy into training activities. An opportunity will be given all young men who desire it, and are now unable to enlist—an opportunity to secure training with the guard, but of course they cannot

Picture at Oregon Draws Large Crowd

Relating the story of an American society girl who was virtually offered for sale to the highest bidder that her parents might continue to maintain their social position and pretense at wealth, "For Sale," the First National production starring Claire Windsor and Adolphe Menjou, opened its showing at the Oregon theater last night to a crowd that filled the theater.

Without doubt the picture is one of the most impressive and elaborate picturizations of society life that has ever been presented on the screen here, featuring as it does glimpses behind the gilded walls of the ultra-fashionable night life of Paris and New York. And with all of its vividness there is nothing offensive or vulgar about the production.

NEW CORPORATIONS

A permit to operate in Oregon was issued yesterday to Murphy, Favre & Co., a Washington corporation with headquarters at Spokane. The capital is $100,000. John J. Notices of dissolution were filed by the following: Endicott Paper company, Portland; Keynote Realty company, Portland; Self-Air-Feeding Oil Burner Company, Portland.

Under the blue sky act a permit was issued to the Mortgage Finance company to sell notes in the sum of $9000.

KOZER WINS IN KELLAHER SUIT

Secretary of State Not to Put Service Commission Bill on Ballot

Sam A. Kozar, secretary of state, will not be required to place on the November election ballot the initiative bill providing for abolishment of the public service commission. SOUTHERN PACIFIC WITH FAIR CROWDS

Crews Handled Over 300 Cars During Fair Week, Without a Hitch

The Southern Pacific handled more than 300 cars in and out of the fair grounds during state fair this year. In this rush of business all special trains running from Portland, Eugene and Hopedale to the fair grounds carrying large crowds arrived and departed on time; also an on time schedule was maintained by regular trains which handled many visitors. Shippers and passengers were well pleased with the excellent service rendered by the Southern Pacific. Three yard engines and five yard crews were used in shifting trains and cars to their proper places. Mr. G. C. Morris, trainmaster; C. B. Baker, general yardmaster, and J. Voegtlin, assistant yardmaster, were in direct charge of the operating movements, and Mr. H. J. Mohr, local agent; E. E. Burch, assistant agent, and A. Mishler were in charge of the traffic force at the fair grounds. Employees of the Southern Pacific company are firm believers in the doctrine of safety first, and are very proud of the record made

The celery was grown at Troutdale, the first prize going to M. B. McGinnis, second prize to Clarence Parsons, third to August Lind. In 1922 first prize was won by Mr. McGinnis, Mr. Parsons winning first place in 1923 with Mr. McGinnis the runner-up. INJURED WORKER IS GIVEN FARM

Workmen's Compensation Act of Much Benefit to S. L. Crites

An example of the practical working of the workmen's compensation act is cited by the state industrial accident commission relative to the case of S. L. Crites, who lives near Scotts Mills in Marion county.

Crites is 41 years old. He was seriously injured August 17, 1923, while at work as head faller for the Wilbur Lumber company, a broken limb striking him across the back of the head, fracturing the skull and seriously injuring his neck.

For 12 months Crites drew compensation from the state at $86 a month, and his case was closed in August, 1924, when physicians declared he had a permanent disability. Crites has a wife and five minor children. The accident commission set aside $9813 in the hands of the state treasurer to meet monthly payments to Crites and his family. Under the act the children receive $8 a month each until they reach the age of 16. Crites receives $30 a month for life, and Mrs. Crites receives $5 a month for life, making a total of $75 a month pension allowance.

However, the commission, after investigating through its vocational director, bought 21 acres of land for Crites near Scotts Mills. On the place is a house,

"Cowboy of the Sea," Is Gus Jordahn, Who Rides Giant Turtles with Daring of South Sea Natives

Jordahn amazes visitors to West Palm Beach, Fla., by riding a 300 pound, 300 year old turtle despite its frantic struggles to escape. This he does by balancing, keeping the back of the turtle down and the head up when it attempts to dive, and grasping the huge shell so that his wrists cannot be snapped by the steel-like beak. Jordahn is said to be the only Florida seaman who can handle a big turtle in the water in the amazing manner of the South Sea turtle-riders. As shown by this remarkable picture, taken in the crystal clear semi-tropical water, his body is submerged except for his head and left shoulder.

High School Classes Started at State School

Three of the four high school classes have been organized at the boys' training school this fall with 42 boys enrolled in the advanced work, according to L. M. Gilbert, superintendent. There are 57 in the eighth grade and the remaining grades have from 15 to 37 boys in each. Mr. Evans is the new high school principal this year.

Conforming to meet the requirements of a standard high school course, the boys in the upper grades are spending the entire day with their studies. Though the work at present is being carried out only through the grades corresponding to the treatment, sophomore and junior, it is expected that next year will see the fourth or senior grade added to the high school course.
