MR. AND MRS. W. F. BUCKNER and daughter Ruth, are home from a six weeks' trip in the east. Leaving late in August by the Canadian Pacific route, Mr. and Mrs. Buckner succeeded in escaping all unpleasant weather conditions, and through Minnesota and Wisconsin report the fields as green as in springtime. Going through Vancouver, B. C., Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal, they arrived for the first of September in New York city where they spent a period of two weeks, combining business and pleasure. A trip down the Hudson from Albany to New York was an enjoyable feature of the time, as was the journey to Mt. Vernon. A week was spent in Washington, D. C., with stops on the return trip made in Wisconsin, Kansas City, Denver and Salt Lake City.

Mrs. L. J. Kearns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buckner, joined her parents in Portland. She will spend a week visiting here before returning to her Portland home.

Under the caption of "What An American Thinks of the Continent," the following sketch, reprinted in part from the Sunday Albany Democrat, represents a news letter written by Franklin B. Launer from Fontainebleau, France, 30 miles out of Paris where he is engaged in the study of music:

"I won't dwell much on the trip only to say, that it was a restful one and the weather man surely was good. The sea was calm and smooth most of the way over. Being on a French boat 'The France,' one of course got a taste of French atmosphere right from the start. Meals served in French style almost about ten courses to each meal and you eat one thing at a time. The French bread appealed to me very much at first, but having had it for almost three months I am sure some of Mother's bread from home would taste like manna from Heaven. Especially would it be a relief to sore gums and mouth. The French bread loaves are usually about two or three feet long, round, four or five inches in diameter, and the crust is hard as a rock with mostly a hollow center.

"Now that's a good description of French bread. People here never wrap up their bread. Imagine seeing a lady or man going down the street with two or three large loaves of bread under the arm or seeing a cart full of bread piled in just like wood and wheeled down the center of the street. A very stylish and up-to-date French Madame may be seen walking along with a good sized handbag and a large loaf of bread protruding out of it.

"If one is contemplating a trip to Paris, come on a French boat where you get a taste of French atmosphere before you arrive. 'The France' and 'The Paris' are the largest passenger boats on the French lines and luxuriously furnished. One never finds time dragging on his hands on one of these boats because of the many amusements and different forms of entertainment.

"At first I will admit I was somewhat shocked to see so many women smoking, not that I had never seen a woman smoke, but I believe there are more American women smoking than French. Of course I soon became very much used to it.

"Every afternoon there was a moving picture show. Part of the time French films were shown. French pictures, however, do not compare with American pictures—they need some real 'American plots' and some 'scenery.' I have spent over two months in Fontainebleau, about 30 miles out of Paris. It has a population of about 16,000 and is a quiet, peaceful looking little villa. The palace is located at the edge of town, and is the pride of the people of France. The tourists visit Fontainebleau by the hundreds.

They are taken through the palace by guides, and shown the interior of the Napoleon apartments and those of the different Lewis and Francis I. When one goes through and views the hundreds and hundreds of paintings, tapestries and rugs, and the hangings, draped furniture of all sorts; the mosaic work of floors and tables which represents a mint of money, and then when you realize that the hundreds of chateaux over France are furnished more or less the same way, one does not wonder there was once a bloody revolution. Everything is left just as it was since Napoleon lived there. Napoleon's hat is the first thing that you see on entering his apartments. It is under a glass case and there is a wisp of his hair. My, what a hat for such a short man as he was, to carry around. Napoleon's bed is surely grand looking, but they say he rarely slept in it that he had a cot in his library that he would throw himself on after working hard and planning his campaigns, etc.

"I wish it were possible for you to see some of these tapestries. The subjects of the tapestries are usually of historic origin and the beautiful color combinations are marvelous. They are all sizes, from small to great. The walls of the rooms are always decorated, some very gay, and the fresco work is always a study. There are 4000 rooms in the palace here.

"The forest back of the palace is very lovely and beautiful. One should visit the forest as well as the palace because it is taken care of so well and kept so clean, and contains many beautiful spots. The forest is something like 25 miles long in some places. So many beautiful views are to be found there I love to spend an occasional afternoon in the forest exploring.

"The forest is composed principally of chestnut, maples and linden of enormous size.

"The conservatoire occupies the right wing of the palace. It is open only for three months in the summer, solely for American students. It is sponsored by the French government and combines a school of music and a school of beaux arts. There are close to 250 students in the conservatoire. The very best teachers in France come here to teach. They have such people as Phillip head of the piano department; Widor, head of the organ department; Reiny for violin; Boulanger for harmony and composition. They are all renowned characters in the musical world. They seem to put their best efforts into the school and though the financial returns to them are likely small, they are keenly interested in this school and believe something very fine in the future will come of it."

Mr. and Mrs. James F. Sykes and a guest are leaving this morning by motor for a week's visit in Seattle.

Miss Mary Young, a missionary from Seoul, Korea, was an interesting guest the first part of the week of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Edwards. Miss Young stopped in Salem on her way to Bellingham from the Medford conference. Yesterday she spoke in Portland, while on Monday afternoon she met with the junior and senior Standard Bearers of the First Methodist church gathered at the home of Mrs. A. A. Lee. She had many interesting things brought from Japan to show the girls, including a family of dolls reared in replicas of the native costumes of the land.

The Veclnus Realls club of the Royal Neighbors will meet this afternoon at the home of Katie Schott, 850 D street.

Mrs. B. L. Steeves, Mrs. A. A. Lee, and Miss Ruth Field representing the First Methodist church, and Mrs. W. P. Miller of Jason Lee are leaving this morning for Bellingham, Wash., to attend the Columbia River Branch meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church. The conference, opening tomorrow morning will be in session till over Sunday.

Mrs. Lee will visit her sister, Miss Helen Atwood at Everett, Wash., before returning home.

Mrs. William F. McCall was hostess at one of the charming dinners of the week when she entertained on Sunday for Mrs. Myrtle Walker Finch of San Francisco. Peach bloom geraniums were used both on the table and about the rooms. Covers at the 2 o'clock dinner were placed for: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Lee Patterson; Miss Etta Crawford and John Crawford of Dundee, Mrs. Charlotte Seldon, Mrs. Myrtle Walker Finch, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. McCall.

The dinner was an especially happy affair, uniting as it did two former school friends from St. Helens hall, both Mrs. Finch and Miss Crawford at the Portland school.

The West Side circle of the Jason Lee Aid society will meet on Friday with Mrs. E. M. Law, at 541 Norway street.

Yesterday morning Mrs. McCall entertained at breakfast for Miss Carol Cheney and Miss Hendrickson, the teachers at the Brush College school. Asters were attractively used on the table.

The American Legion auxiliary will meet at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the Chamber of Commerce rooms for the regular bi-monthly session.

The Three Link club will meet Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Odd Fellows hall. The hostess-group includes: Mrs. J. J. Rottle, chairman; Mrs. Edgar Rowland, Mrs. R. D. Greene, Mrs. T. G. Sanders, and Mrs. Redschell.

The Salem Heights Progressive Woman's club will meet on Friday afternoon in Community house.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the First Methodist church will meet this afternoon with Mrs. H. E. Shanks. Mrs. R. K. Ohling will have charge of the lesson of the afternoon.

Mrs. C. A. Edwards, who is leaving this week to make her home at The Dalles, was the inspiration for a delightful farewell and birthday party Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George Gutekunst, 1253 Chemeketa street when the members of the Mothers' class of the First Methodist church, of which Mrs. Edwards is the president, gathered to surprise her. Thirty members of the class were present for the evening which was made even more pleasant with music and a talk by Miss Mary Young, home on a furlough from Korea. The women were particularly interested in the fact which Miss Young brought out relating to the gift of land which a generous tourist made the district in order that they might build a new school. The devotional ceremony was beautifully conducted by Mrs. Charles J. Lisle. A lovely pair of crystal candlesticks was the gift of the class to Mrs. Edwards in token of their appreciation. A beautiful sheaf of autumn flowers was an additional tribute given by Mrs. Charles Maxwell who also sang, choosing, "Carry Me Back to Ol' Virginia." A luncheon served at tables attractive with pink roses and pink candles closed the enjoyable evening.

How Fat Actress Became Slender

Many stage people now depend entirely upon Marmola Prescription Tablets for reducing and controlling fat. One clever actress tells that she reduced steadily and easily by using this new form of the famous Marmola Prescription. Now, by taking Marmola Prescription Tablets several times a year, she keeps her weight just right. All druggists sell Marmola Prescription Tablets at one dollar for a box or if you prefer you can secure them direct from the Marmola Co., General Motors Bldg., Detroit, Mich. If you have not tried them, do so. They are pleasant to take and effective.—Ad.
