Local Labor Agency Reports—
The labor situation remains the same in Salem, is the opinion of Sim Phillips of the local employment agency which is operated by the US government and the YMCA. There is no over-supply of experienced farm help, and the demand and supply of labor in other lines is about even. A situation unusual is the number of women who are employed, and they represent several kinds of workers. At the present time there is a demand for 25 women for an out of town cannery, but the matter of transportation is the reason many of the women do not accept the places.
