> Oregon Prune Sale Aided by Local Business Man

An unique and effective method of advertising the Oregon grown prune is employed by Ralph Cooley, manager of the Bishop's Woolen Mills store. Sample boxes, of the Oregon prunes are presented the officials and representatives of the large manufacturing firms of the east. In this manner other members of those firms are introduced to the Oregon prune and consequently an order is secured.

As a result of this procedure 750 boxes of Oregon prunes were sold, of which 110 boxes went to a firm which furnishes the Bishop store with shoes, and 650 boxes to an overall manufacturing firm. Each box of prunes weighed 10 pounds and resulted in the placing of 7500 pounds of fruit in the east.

As a rule several re-orders are secured. Much advertisement of Oregon is thus insured.
