SELF DENIAL:—Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it.—Mark 8:34, 35.
PRAYER:—We thank Thee, O Lord, for the lesson so marvelously illustrated in Thy life; except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die it abideth alone, but if it die it bringeth forth much fruit.

BRITISH ELECTION WILL AFFECT OURS

The sudden collapse of the Labor government in Great Britain, followed by the overwhelming defeat of the forces behind that government in the election of Wednesday, come as dramatic incidents in our own national campaign—

For large groups of the fifty-seven different varieties of forces behind the La Follette campaign have been pointing to the MacDonald government as a convincing example of the successful functioning of a government such as they pretend to desire to establish in the United States—

And, just as they were waxing eloquent over their pretended shining example, the MacDonald government collapsed in a single night, and an appeal to the country has resulted in a complete discrediting of the principles for which it stood.

The MacDonald government goes down unhonored and unsung—

Because that government had not done a single thing its advocates hoped it would do when it was formed.

There was more unemployment under the nine months of the MacDonald regime than during any similar period in almost a generation. The government had not been able to create more jobs, to reduce the cost of government, to lower the cost of the necessities of life, to bring about better living and working conditions for the masses.

The cost of living was higher in England and Scotland in September this year than it was a year ago under the Conservative government replaced by the Labor government. Not a single piece of legislation in improving the condition of manual laborers was passed by the MacDonald government. In short, the experiment was a failure.

The radicals, of course, claimed that the Labor government was too conservative—

They would be satisfied with nothing short of the Russian monstrosity.

But the important point to this country is that the very government to which the radicals in the La Follette following pointed as a model for this country to follow has collapsed in their hands and left them holding the sack.

Happily there is no danger of their experiment being tried in this country; but if such a thing could be imagined, it is plain that there would result here a still greater disappointment.

This campaign should be the last Americans have to hear from La Follette with any serious semblance of alarm. His candidacy is proving a false alarm.

Concerning the tariff commission's proposed reduction of 1.23 cents in the duty on Cuban sugar, President Coolidge promptly and laconically inquired: "What proportion of domestic sugar is produced at a cost of more than 1.23 cents per pound?" President Coolidge knows that the producers of sugar in the United States must have the protection they are getting. He knows they did not ask for a reduction. He knows the Cuban sugar barons did. He knows why. He knows they want to curb the larger production of domestic sugar; the spread of beet sugar factories. He knows why they want to do this. Not for the benefit of the consumers, but for their own greater profit, and he knows that they have now one of the most stupendous aggregations of wealth in this country. It is very fortunate for the sugar consumers of the United States that the election of Mr. Coolidge next Tuesday is a foregone conclusion. Among other things, it will mean more sugar factories in the United States using beets and cane grown by American farmers. Ultimately it will mean a lower range of prices to the consumers.

OLD LINES RE-ESTABLISHED

The conservatives won in England by one of those strange occurrences in politics that can not be explained but which happens. The conservative party has just been returned to power with a clear majority so it can legislate. The labor government was not a success. It was not a fair try-out, as MacDonald was not a great leader. He had back of him a minority party at best, but instead of placating the co-workers in the liberal party, to which he owed his election, he offended them and tried to force them to join the labor party. It did not work. When the appeal was made to the country the conservatives seized the opportunity to ask England to be careful, considerate and economical. The result was the conservatives came back into their own.

The radical element everywhere has had its swing and it has gone far, but the people have always turned to the more conservative parties. There has been many efforts made to establish a third party in America, but every time when the radicals have secured control the people have returned to the old parties. It is so in England and it is so in America.

A NEW ANGLE

Just what the object is in attacking the bonus administration when Tom Kay was out of office several years before the law was enacted is hard to understand. It must simply be an effort made to confuse the public and get them mixed up as to what is happening in state affairs. This is an old trick and politicians of the new school haven't been indulging in it. Rather we have been trying to get our voters to understand the issues under discussion. We have tried to make them as plain as possible rather than to muddy the waters. This bonus proposition, which is entirely different from anything the state treasurer ever did can have only one possible effect, and that is to becloud the situation.

A NEW WRINKLE

Something new has been sprung in Portland politics. A committee has been formed and money raised to attack the records of the various candidates. One such committee yesterday morning attacked the record of Mayor Baker and announced that another candidate would be put on the operating table and grilled this morning.

Heretofore advertising has been entirely in support of the candidates and not to tear them down, but advertising is a great thing. Righteously used it will further any good cause; wrongly used it is open to question.

PREVENT ACCIDENTS

We need a school for carefulness in this country. We need to teach the people the value of human life and also the value of property. If a man runs into his neighbor's automobile accidentally he doesn't think much of the crime unless the damages happen to be great, but there are men who find it quite a sacrifice to lose $10. These men are the ones to be considered. There is no use talking, we have all got to cultivate carefulness. We have gone wild in this country in letting things take care of themselves.

PEDDLERS

Every once in a while there is agitation against peddlers, and some mighty good agitation. Business is hurt by these people who prey upon it. A peddler is a louse upon legitimate business. He contributes nothing to his country. He only takes from. The legitimate merchants bear the brunt of all community enterprises and pay their share of taxes. They are entitled to be protected from irresponsible dealers. There is an effort being made to have an anti-peddler law in Oregon. It is good agitation and one that has a lot of merit in it.

MASTERS OF THE STORM

Of inventions there are many, and it is rather hard to say which are good and which aren't. So many inventions have brought impossible things to pass that it is hard to doubt any of them. Just now a man claims to have invented a process of stilling the waves and mastering the storms. There is no use in saying it can't be done. We have said that thousands of times in this country and yet every time somebody has done it. All we can say now is that there is a great need in that line and we wish the inventor well.

SECRETARY WALLACE

Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, who just died, was not a great man, but he was a very useful one. He served wherever he was placed. The result was that he was a great help to agriculture and did much to encourage the farmers to continue when they were depressed. He devoted his life to agricultural interests and became an expert in helping them to help themselves.

The mayor of Seattle seems to be a pretty hard citizen, and yet he represents the majority in that city. The reports that come from Seattle are not encouraging. It is the most poorly governed city in the west.

Silverton Voters Hear Two Good Addresses

At the mass meeting of Silverton republicans B. G. Shuisson of Portland scored La Follette and his party for their attacks upon the constitution. Mr. Skulason is former professor at the University of North Dakota and a veteran of the World war. He very clearly stated the position of ex-service men and the position of former citizens of northern European countries by contrasting the La Follette doctrines and the doctrines of the socialistic group with which he is joined with the conditions existing in Russia today under soviet rule.

Thomas B. Kay of Salem, republican candidate for state treasurer, continued his attack upon the governor and State Treasurer Myers for their use of school funds in carrying on their campaign against Mr. Kay. Mr. Kay's explanation and criticism was stated with great clearness and force and apparently set at rest a doubt existing in the minds of at least part of the audience. Mr. Kay will speak tonight at the Salem armory, appearing on the same platform with Miss Eleanor Barker of Indianapolis, who will discuss national issues.

His Neighbors Join in Saying Their Confidence in Him Is Well Merited

J. W. Sadler, the well known Aurora merchant, is one of the democratic candidates for the legislature from Marion county. Zeno Schwab and a hundred others of Mr. Sadler's neighbors have joined in the following endorsement of his candidacy:

"An unqualified endorsement and pledge of support; this is the attitude of friends and acquaintances of J. W. Sadler with reference to his candidacy for the state legislature.

"Mr. Sadler has been engaged in the mercantile business in Aurora for many years and has roven that the confidence and high esteem of all associates is well merited. During all the years of his residence here he has been actively interested in all projects for community advancement. He has sacrificed much time in the interest of better schools and better roads.

"We believe that business men who are taxpayers are needed in the legislature—men who realize that state expenses and large appropriations must be met by taxes. Mr. Sadler pays taxes on farm property and on timber property in addition to his mercantile and other interests. These varied interests enable him to view matters which may come up from all of the different angles. A vote for Sadler is a vote well placed."

Emergency Board Votes $13,876 Appropriations

Appropriation of $13,876 to meet deficiencies in various activities was voted by the state emergency board Thursday. While several amounts were approved, the board refused to sanction the payment of $200 for a special deputy in Multnomah county to handle juvenile cases. The amount was for a salary for the next two months.

Amounts were approved as follows:

To meet a deficiency of $481.86 in salaries of district attorneys, $149,400 being approved by the legislature of 1923, but which was insufficient; $16,395 for the livestock sanitary board, caused by the hoof and mouth disease;

$3000 to meet a deficiency in the $9500 appropriation to pay the expenses of traveling expenses of county judges on business outside their own county.

Misrepresented

By Oleo Interests

The voters of Oregon are being advised through the press and otherwise that the proposed Oleomargarine measure

Prohibits the sale of so-called substitutes.

That is not so

The measure simply prohibits the use of milk products in their manufacture

If they had been fair to the voter they would have said, if you

Prohibit us from using 2 1-2 to 3 per cent skim milk in the manufacture of oleomargarine, our product is unsaleable as a butter substitute.

Prohibit us from using just a little skim milk in order to make cocoanut oil smell and taste like butter so as to fool the public, our counterfeit is exposed and our trade ruined.

or

Prohibit us from using a little skim milk and you make it impossible for us to sell 8 cents worth of foreign oil to the unsuspecting public for 30 cents.

Honest competition welcome

If cocoanut oil will make a good edible product fit to take the place of butter, nothing in the dairy measure will prevent its sale. The laws of this country protect almost every other industry and product, why not the dairy industry and its product. A Federal law was recently passed against filled milk. Filled milk was milk from which the butterfat was taken and replaced by vegetable oil from the Orient. This is practically the case of butter vs. substitutes.

Why play the game of the Big Interests against your own welfare

If any voter is foolish enough to fall for the

Dollar Butter Argument

His case is hopeless

The laws of supply and demand governs every product. If the demand for butter in Oregon is greater than its supply, other states will quickly furnish the deficiency. If other states cannot do so, the unoccupied acres of Oregon will quickly respond to the call, and dairies will spring up on all sides to add to our prosperity and welfare.

Therefore, Voter, do not cut off your nose to spite your face, but

Vote 306 Yes
