

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

Punctures a Lie—A story has been industriously circulated in Salem that Judge Percy E. Kelly had to adjourn court once because L. H. McMahan was too intoxicated to try a case. The statement called Judge Kelly at his home in Albany last night and upon being told the story the judge issued an emphatic denial. "You can state to your readers that there is not a word of truth in this story. Judge McMahan was never intoxicated in my court. You can make that statement strong." The campaign against Judge McMahan is most unfair but it is not getting anywhere. His election is assured.

New Associate—C. B. Phillips, a graduate of the Chicago university, college of law is now associated with Ray L. Smith, local attorney. Phillips has been away from Salem for some time but resided here several years.

Valuable Dog Returns—A valuable hunting dog, which had been taken out by a party of hunters and reported killed, returned to its owner, E. V. Flake yesterday, while he was driving near Court and Church. The animal foot sore, and ragged, had followed Flake's machine for two blocks endeavoring to catch up with him. When the automobile was stopped the animal crawled into the machine. Flake took it to his home and gave it treatment and the dog is none the worse for its experience. The animal is valued at $250 and was rented by Mr. Flake to bird hunters.

Bible Class Popular—The John J. Evans Bible class will hold one of the biggest meetings of the year next Sunday when they give the Armistice day program. At that day the wives, sweethearts, and sisters of the men are allowed to attend, one of the two exceptions of the year. The program for next Sunday will be announced later.

Veterans To Meet—The Veterans of Foreign Wars are scheduled to meet Wednesday at the Armory. A short business meeting will be followed by an entertainment, which is being arranged by Dr. George E. Lewis.

A Long Trail—W. H. Chapman, aged 77, was in the city last night resting a few days from his travels. He has been traveling about a year and a half. The present trip started from New Orleans on January 5th. He walked to New York, Montreal, Ottawa, Port Arthur and then on down the coast as far as Salem. He will continue his journey until he reaches New Orleans again. Mr. Chapman is hale and hearty and seems to be none the worse for his twenty months of travel.

Apples Urged as Food—Clarke Irvine, a native of Salem, who spoke on health topics this week at Eugene Chamber of Commerce, is a strong advocate of raw food, making his menu principally of apples while in Oregon. He believes that "man's natural diet is God-given fruit, the most efficient food, because it produces energy rather than tissue." He is touring by motor, and will give free talks in Salem, Portland and other cities. "To promote public health," he says, "which is a part of my work for the International Church of Christ, Idealist, the new nature church at Palms, California." This being Apple Week, a talk on apple food values is rather apropos. "In proportion to the cost," states Irvine, "fruit gives more iron for red blood than meat. Meat iron is from blood

Water at 18 Foot Mark Last Night; Fall Reported From Eugene

At Salem the Willamette river had a rise of only 3.3 of a foot Monday, rising from 17.1 feet to 5 o'clock in the morning until nearly 18 feet were recorded last night.

After rising to a height of 19.8 feet at Albany, the river became stationary yesterday. Eugene reports a drop of four feet.

During the last week the river has risen 10 feet 9 inches. Clarence Oliver, official weather observer, is being advised through the Portland office of changes in the river readings. For the benefit of those living along the river, this information will be given those who want it by telephoning him at the Kappa Gamma Rho fraternity.

fare and the nature of our beloved country." He said in part: "My fellow citizens: "Political campaigns and popular elections should be something more than a mere scramble for offices. In the ranks of every party there are able and patriotic men competent to fill any position to which their countrymen may call them and parties themselves are simply the agencies through which the people can express their will. There are higher and finer things than party victory or political success. In the mind of every man and woman who goes to the polling places tomorrow, the question which should be upmost is the plain question of right or wrong. Not everyone can tell what policies in government are wise or unwise, what laws are workable or unworkable, sound or unsound. Even the most impartial experts will differ about such questions as these. But every one of us, if we will but listen to the voice of conscience, can say what is fair and what is

"Is it right or wrong that every housekeeper in the country should be compelled as the result of a prohibitive tariff to pay more for everything she buys in order to increase the profits of industries that were already prosperous; is it right or wrong that a tariff bill should be written not by the people's representatives but by those who are to profit under its schedules, writing them to suit themselves? Is it right or wrong that those who have benefited by this sort of legislation should endeavor to continue it by piling up campaign funds to influence election?

"Is it right or wrong that America should fail to do everything she can to promote disarmament and produce a lasting peace in the world?"

"I ask you to believe that I am far more concerned in rousing the moral sense of the American people to assert itself on such questions as these than I am in my own election to the presidency of the United States."
