AN INVITATION coming as a direct result of the fine work done by the personnel of the group both last summer at the Gladstone Chautauque and over the Oregonian radio is that extended the Schubert Octette, which Miss Minnetta Magers directs, to sing tomorrow afternoon at the Portland Municipal auditorium. As the regular musical program, the concert will be given at 3 o'clock. This is the first time Portland has gone out of the city for talent for these Sunday afternoon concerts.

Several numbers on the program—especially the lovely suite, "Un Giorno in Venezia," (A day in Venice)—will be repeated by request from previous programs. Other numbers will include a group of three opening with Lane-Wilson's "Carmena" and closing with Fittig's "Old Swiss Yodel Song." The incidents which "A Day in Venice" commemorates in song, are: (a) Morning in St. Mark's Square, (b) In the Gondola (c) "A Love Song," and (d) The Farewell. Schubert's "Serenade" will beautifully close the concert.

Assistants for the afternoon will be: William Robinson Boone, organist; Mark Daniels, baritone; and Martin Mueste, violinist. The personnel of the octette includes: First soprano—Gladys Stevenson, Eva Roberts. Second soprano—Ruth Bedford, Hilda Amaler. First alto—Della Amaler, Myra Gleason. Second alto—Helen Hamilton, Grace Fawk. Bertha Wick is the accompanist.

The Salem Woman's club will meet this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for the regular November business meeting, at the club house.

Senator and Mrs. Charles McNary were complimented with a number of farewell dinner parties before leaving yesterday to make their official home in Washington. D. C. On Thursday evening Mrs. John H. McNary was a dinner hostess for members of the family, while on Wednesday Mrs. W. T. Stoll and Miss Nina McNary entertained friends in Mrs. McNary's honor at after-theater tea at the Colonial Dame Tea Shop.

Leaving Portland last evening, Senator and Mrs. McNary plan to stop over in Salt Lake City on their way east.

The ladies of the GAR will hold a special meeting at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the armory. It is especially requested that all the members be present if at all possible. Supreme officers will be visitors on November 22, and plans will be made today in relation to this.

A luncheon a little out of the ordinary was that served Tuesday, November 4th, at the Clarence Van Patten home, 2265 State street, the occasion being Mrs. Van Patten's birthday, and also an affair in memory of Mrs. A. S. Van Patten.

The table was set with china that was an anniversary gift to Mrs. A. S. Van Patten on her 20th wedding anniversary, 48 years ago. The luncheon cloth and napkins, of old linen, belonged to her mother in the Abraham Lincoln time. The dining-rooms was decorated with beautiful white chrysanthemums and white lilies. The other rooms were made very attractive with bright flowers and potted plants. Among the guests at the luncheon were Mrs. George Downing and Mrs. T. Mapiethorpe, both of whom had been old friends and neighbors of Mrs. A. S. Van Patten since 1891.

Mrs. John Caughell was one of the week's most charming hostesses entertaining on Tuesday at an eight cover luncheon, followed by an afternoon of Mah Jongg. A floral centerpiece was used, and yellow tapers.

Covers were placed for Mrs. Frank Griffith, Mrs. W. H. Dancy, Mrs. H. H. Olinger, Mrs. Edwin Baker, Mrs. Milton Meyers, Mrs. Everett Anderson, Mrs. George Brown, and Mrs. Ed. Gillingham.

Fourteen members of the Republican club were guests for the November social afternoon with Mrs. Cecil Hawley the hostess. Autumn flowers were attractively arranged about the rooms and refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Little Light Bearers will meet from 2:30 to 4 o'clock this afternoon in the First Presbyterian church parlors as the guests of Mrs. W. N. Savage and Mrs. Halst.

The Priscilla club, organized in November, 18 years ago, and named for Priscilla Fry, met for this year's first November meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. A. L. Brown, Mrs. Brown being one of the charter members. Other members present yesterday afternoon in charge of the first organization of the club were: Mrs. Fred Steudloff, Mrs. W. S. Mott, Mrs. Ida Babcock, and Mrs. Dan Fry, Sr.

Bronze chrysanthemums were beautifully used about the rooms

GOSHOW IS ONLY BOURBON ELECTED

Opponents Take All Other State and National Offices in Oregon

Judge Coshow, who apparently has definitely defeated Kelly in the race for the state supreme bench, is the only democratic candidate on the federal and state ticket to be elected. He was appointed by Governor Pierce to succeed Judge Lawrence Harris, resigned.

At the May primaries Belt and Coshow were nominated by the republicans and democrats respectively for that vacancy. Then followed the death of Judge McCourt, creating another vacancy on the supreme bench, and Kelly became an independent candidate for that vacancy and was unopposed.

Suit was brought in the supreme court at the instance of the democratic state central committee to compel the three candidates for judgeship to run against each other for the two vacancies. The court sustained this contention, and now that the election is over Kelly's friends declare that Coshow's victory may be attributed to this turn of fate, arguing that he could not have defeated Belt in a two-handed contest. And to the same turn do they charge Kelly's defeat.

Coshow's present lead over Kelly is 7195, the vote standing 97,009 for Coshow as against 89,814 for Kelly. Kelly acquired a lead of 5600 votes over his rival in Multnomah county, but Coshow overcame this and more in the upstate counties.

CHAPTER 305.

HOW MADGE WON A FRESH PATH DOWN THE ROAD.

I have heard of drowning people living a lifetime in a minute, but I never want to come nearer the experience than the emotions which swept me when I saw the car which I had eluded swing across the cross-road and block my path.

If I kept on in the road I would hit the other machine squarely, with almost certain death as the result. Yet it was unthinkable to stop, especially as the men in the other car, who with the pertinacity of intoxication still held their anger against me because of my refusal to stop when they had signalled me, jumped from the car as it stopped and spread themselves out along the road, whooping and yelling in irresponsible drunken glee at the coup they had accomplished.

When I first caught sight of the car as it stopped it seemed to fill the road from one side to the other. But as I neared it I saw that the drunken men had miscalculated, and that on one side between the car and the fence there might be room for a car to pass. It was a feat at which an expert driver might have balked, so uneven was the ground, so close the margin of width between the fence and the car. But I could not be worse off than I was, and with a desperate little prayer I swerved my car just as I reached the other machine and I went crashing and swaying and bumping down a space through which my sobered judgment would have said a much smaller car than Dicky's could never pass.

A Miraculous Escape.

One running board scraped the wire of the fence, the other caught a front fender of the big car and tore it loose.

Taken by surprise, the men who had spread out to intercept me, tried to get out of the way, but I felt the car jolt twice against something which I knew was not earth or wood, and a chorus of screams and oaths following my progress told me that I had inflicted more punishment than I had received.

And then I was clear, miraculously unhurt, and with the car still running.

I was conscious of several strange noises connected with the mechanism, and I guessed that the local garage would have a job the next day. But at every turn of the wheels it was carrying me farther and farther from the sinister menace behind me. And with a queer little tug of affection as such a one might feel for a faithful horse, I patted the steering wheel absurdly, murmuring foolishly, "Good old fellow!"

"Did You Get It?"

The question of the gas troubled me, but I resolved to put the greatest space possible between myself and the drunken men before stopping. I was sure that one at least of their number had been struck, and guessed that they would be delayed in starting again. And perhaps fate would relent and permit me to get home on the reserve gas.

It was with a feeling of worshipful gratitude that I finally drove the car into our own yard, and ran into the house with the precious drug from the hospital clutched tightly in my arm.

The scene downstairs was unchanged, save for the presence of Dr. Pettit, who evidently had been hearing an account of the affair from Lillian. Smith, still bound, lay in the corner of the room, only his malevolent eyes showing that he was anything but an inert bundle of clothing.

Dr. Pettit's face held more than his usual, professional gravity as he advanced toward me, and I knew that Tom Chester was in grave danger from the tense eagerness with which he asked: "Did you get it?"

For answer I laid the package in his hands, he seized it eagerly, tore the wrappings off while Lillian gave me a low-toned explanation of the reason for his gravity.

"I couldn't remember the spelling and he couldn't make anything of Smith's surly words."

Dr. Pettit looked up blankly as he finally got the package open.

"I don't know what this is," he said, honestly.

Advance on Dried Prunes Is Announced By Drager

The Drager Fruit company announces the advance on 50-60 dried prunes to 7 cents from 6 1/2 and 6 cents, and an announcement of an expected advance on all sizes of prunes except 40s, which are due to rise the latter part of the month. The export market is cleaning up the markets to the extent of a present shipment of 200 tons of prunes to Germany and Scandinavia. These rises come as an expected move following the elections. General market conditions have been stagnant previous to the elections and it is figured that the domestic orders will increase in quantity soon and an early clearing of the 1924 crop with good prices is counted on.

LIVESLEY

Mrs. Alice Coolidge served a delicious luncheon to the members of the GT club Thursday afternoon at her home. An interesting feature of the afternoon was an object guessing contest. The prize was won by Mrs. H. B. Carpenter. Those enjoying the afternoon were Mrs. C. D. Query, Mrs. S. C. Davison, Mrs. George Heggins, Mrs.
