

SALEM BEATS EUGENE IN ARMISTICE DAY GAME BY ONE POINT

TEAMS EVEN; SCORE 7 TO 6

Home Eleven Has Edge Over Locals for First Half of Contest Only

Coming from behind late in the final period, Salem defeated Eugene high school in the university city yesterday by the score of 7 to 6, when Kelly intercepted a purple and white forward pass and ran 75 yards for the lone tally. The attempt to convert was successful and a tie score averted.

The teams were evenly matched, the Eugene eleven outplaying the Salem team in the first half, with the procedure reversed in the second half. Eugene had the edge on Salem in passing, but before the whistle blew caused Eugene's defeat.

Eugene tallied in the second quarter after a series of passes and an end run.

Though no rain fell during the game, the field was wet and soggy.

Salem was accompanied by a large delegation of rooters who made the trip in a special car, returning to Salem after the game.

The grandstand was only partially filled and the crowd was estimated at about 2000, smaller than was anticipated.

Wrestling Is Feature Of Big Legion Smoker

SILVERTON, Ore., Nov. 11.—(Special to The Statesman).—The American Legion smoker held at the Silvertown Armory Monday night was well attended by both Legionnaires and Silvertown business men. The first bout was a wrestling match between Jimmy Hollingsworth and Harvey Wells. Hollingsworth got the first fall in one minute and the second in seven minutes. The second match was boxing with Ronald Hubbs and Amos Benson in the ring. This proved an exceptionally good and fast match. The two boys fought three two minute rounds to a draw. Another boxing match between "Shorty" Norton and Bion Anderson also resulted in a draw.

The main event was a boxing match between Smith of Silvertown and Simmons of Salem. Smith knocked out Simmons in the third round.

RACKET WEILDERS RETURN LOS ANGELES, Nov. 11.—Sixteen American tennis players returned here today from Mexico City, where they had participated in the national Mexican tennis tournament. The party included Vincent Richards, Robert and Howard Kinsey, Ray Casey and Miss Mary K. Browne.

BASKETBALL LEAGUE CONTINUES TONIGHT

Both Sporting Goods Teams Play With Legion and Banker Outfits

Two more games in the Commercial basketball league will be played tonight at the Armory, with Anderson & Brown meeting the Legion quintette, and Hauser Bros. playing the Bankers.

Slight changes in the complete schedule have been made by Bob Boardman of the YMCA. There are to be 18 games played before the season closes December 18. The games will be played on 10 different nights.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Tuesday, Nov. 18—Hauser Bros. vs. Legion, and Anderson & Brown vs. Company F.

The games of Thursday, Nov. 20, have been postponed on account of the big Marion county corn show. However, there will be a game on Tuesday, Nov. 25—Company F vs. U. S. Bank, and Hauser Bros vs. Anderson & Brown.

Thursday, Nov. 27—Legion vs. Central Pharmacy and Union Oil vs. Company F.

Tuesday, Dec. 2—Anderson & Brown vs. U. S. Bank, and Legion vs. Union Oil.

Thursday, Dec. 4—Anderson & Brown vs. Central Pharmacy and Company F vs. Hauser.

Tuesday, Dec. 9—Central Pharmacy vs. Hauser Bros and Anderson & Brown vs. Union Oil.

Thursday, Dec. 11.—Legion vs. U. S. Bank.

Tuesday, Dec. 16—Company F vs. Central Pharmacy and Hauser Bros. vs. Union Oil.

Thursday, Dec. 18.—Semi-finals or finals.

Silvertown High School Beats Milwaukee, 39-0

SILVERTON, Nov. 11.—The Armistice Day football game between Silvertown high school and that of Milwaukee resulted in 39 to 0 for Silvertown.

BOOSTER BOOKLET WINS HIGH PRAISE

The new booklet issued by the Salem Chamber of Commerce, entitled "Come to Oregon," has been sent to various parts of the United States. Some of the comments received show what others think.

A. S. Dudley, manager of the Oregon state Chamber of Commerce, states: "It is the most informative general booklet which has been published in Oregon this year."

W. G. Ide, manager of the land settlement department State Chamber of Commerce: "It is one of the best and most forceful of any booklets I have ever read on western Oregon."

Mrs. R. E. Barrett, manager of Warrenton, Ore., and now doing publicity work for the Portland Chamber of Commerce, writes from the east: "I wish to thank you for your booklet. It is the most constructive and helpful I have seen and sets out so clearly

CELERY SHIPMENT SEASON SOON OVER

Calot Consignments Will Reach About 200 Cars, Going Long Distances

Willamette valley grown celery occupies a preferred place in the markets of the middle west as a view expressed by Ronald Jos, manager of the Labish Meadows Celery union, which is located at Brooks. Jobbers who handle the Labish product are loud in their praise, and assert that it is superior to that grown in any other section of the country. California grown celery, the only competitor, occupies second favor with those who handle produce of this nature, Mr. Jones decried.

Car Shipments Soon Over

With about a week yet before the load shipping season closes, the Labish Meadows organization has already shipped a total of 185 cars of first grade celery to midwestern states, and jobbers are clamoring for more. The demand for local celery has never been greater, and Omaha, Minneapolis, Fort Worth and points along the route from here to Chicago have had an unusual market. No shipments can be made farther east than Chicago because of the early season here.

A Busy Place

The railroad freight depot at Quabby, from which celery shipments are made, is a tremendously busy place during celery shipping season. Every day cars are being loaded and billed out to the various jobbers, and employees of the concern, who are mostly Japanese, are industriously engaged in digging, sorting and packing the tender stalks. All the celery is being shipped from the Quabby station with the exception of some which is kept in cold storage at the Capital warehouse in Salem.

Very High Quality

The celery is grown in the loose, fertile soil of the Labish section, about ten miles from Salem, on the spot where the waters of Lake Labish formerly held sway. With weather conditions highly suitable for a long growing season, and a plentitude of moisture, the celery reaches a perfect maturity, and is recognized to be of extraordinarily fine quality.

Before the season closes about November 20th it is expected that the total car output will reach 200 carsloads, and small express shipments will be continued for a time after weather conditions preclude further carlot shipment.

The whole crop of 1924, made up into car loads, would fill something more than 300 cars; perhaps as many as 400 cars.
