The Missouri team, rated by the "experts" as being two touchdowns weaker than the Trojans, showed unexpected strength in the first period. They played heady, clean football and displayed a daring attack. They came within scoring distance twice during the first two periods.

In the third period the Trojans ran wild. Runs, most of them by equat, square-built Lefebvre, took the oval to the seven-yard line. A minute later Lefebvre followed his three-man interference across the goal line.

"RADIUM JARS"

The Revigator already has an American record that dispels all doubt as to its surprising value in the home

Many people who have "Radium. Jars" on the Pacific Coast will read this announcement with consuming interest.

It is a recognition of their sound judgment. Results decided the question originally with these people. Now we give the reason why. These Thomas Radium Ore Lined Jars were manufactured by Mr. R. W. Thomas to whom great credit is due in the practical development of this science. Several thousands of these Thomas "Radium Jars" are doing daily service in Pacific Coast homes and be-cause of the results obtained users call them "Jars of Life." Ten years ago Mr. Thomas, an inventive genius, began his experiments. Two years ago he succeeded in permanently fusing radium ore to the walls of a stone vessel so that by allowing water to stand therein the water became revitalized with radio-activity or Natural Niton, the great health giving element found mostly in truly fresh spring water. Government tests showed Mr. Thomas that his "Radium Jar" actually restored this element of radio-activity or Natural Niton to water. The peculiarity of radium and radium ore is that the energy of the ore wall that he succeeded in fusing never ceases, for which reason a "Radium Jar" lasts a lifetime. The daily absorption by water of the tiny rays continuously thrown off by the radium ore makes this almost unbelievable fact possible.

Knowing that this element of radio-activity or Natural Niton was recognized as largely responsible for the marvelous cures effected at the world's most famous springs, including those owned by the U. S. Govern-ment at Hot Springs, Ark., Mr. Thomas set about to relieve the sick and afflicted by daily restoring this element to water by means of his "Radium Jar."

Naturally, there was skepticism. Results soon overcame this. The enthusiasm of users now is advertising what nothing but merit can purchase.

The growth of the business is also convincing. On merit alone, Mr. Thomas' business grew from two jars a month in 1922 to a point that now our Pacific Coast production is over 5000 monthly. There is a reason for such

Radium Ore Revigator Co. When the Dow-Herriman Pump & Machinery Company joined forces with Mr. Thomas several months ago, the original and conflicting German patents were purchased. Now the patent protection is complete. The reason why can now be told. There is nothing unusual about radio-activity or Natural Niton. It is a gaseous element found in all truly fresh water at its source, but which almost entirely escapes from water pipes and bottles before water is drunk. The water of certain health springs such as Hot Springs, Ark., contain the highest percentage of this element found in Nature and the miraculous relief is effected because people drink the element at the spring before it escapes from water. It is for this reason that the Government has stated that no matter how much of this element is contained in water when bottled at the spring, it soon escapes from those bottles. To those who make a study of the processes of Nature, the surprisingly favorable results of the "Radium Jar" in ailments are no more wonderful than the immunity enjoyed by families through its use from many ailments to which mankind is heir, for these observations both indicate that the proper function of Nature is definitely handicapped by the loss of this natural element from our daily water

The "Revigator" is the new name for the Thomas "Radium Jar." It enjoys this name from the fact that it actually revigorates or revitalizes drinking water. Do not confuse it with a drug or medicine. The "Revigator" is a lifetime apparatus for the home that daily corrects drinking water. It uses the very proc-ess that Nature originally employs in creating radio-activity far deep in the bosom of the earth, namely, by simple contact of radium

The gist of the "Radium Jar" (Revigator) success is that by affording the body its normal supply of this natural element of water, Nature is better armed to function properly; but without the natural supply of this vital element her handicap is greater than one could realize without taking a little time to look into the subject.
