

New Year Greetings from Salem's Mayor:

THE year just past has been a very successful one for Salem; it has been a year of real progress. There has probably never been a year in the history of Salem when so many homes have been erected as during the year just past, and the indications are that many more will be erected during the present year. Several miles of pavement have been added, so that we now have 40 miles of paved streets within the corporate limits of our city. It is scarcely necessary to suggest that this adds greatly to the cleanliness of our city as well as giving it an atmosphere of added permanence. Surrounded by a rich agricultural and horticultural district and having also many permanent and highly productive manufacturing industries, Salem possesses a rare combination of economic and industrial factors which insure her continued growth and prosperity. Our schools are second to none; from the elementary schools to the university our educational facilities are unequalled. Our Chamber of Commerce is functioning to the highest degree of efficiency, as are also the various civic organizations which contribute so substantially to the progress of our city. I wish that space would permit the individual mention of each one of these organizations and the enumeration of the wholesome and beneficial influences which they are constantly exerting throughout our entire city. They have exhibited a splendid spirit of helpfulness during the past year toward the needy and afflicted ones of our community which truly exemplifies the Golden Rule.

We should each and every one of us feel a sense of individual responsibility for the upbuilding of our city.

JOHN B. GIESY, Mayor of Salem
