LEGION OFFICERS DULY INSTALLED

Capital Post No. 9 Protests Proposed Anti-Firearms Legislation

Nearly 200 ex-service men gathered at McCormack hall last night to attend the installation of officers, "import" entertainment and big feed of Capital Post No. 9, when Commander Carl D. Gabrielson turned over his gavel to Clifford Brown, the new commander. Other officers installed by George Griffith, state commander, were Carl Wanner, vice commander; Charles Goodwin, adjutant; I. W. Lewis, finance; Don Wiggins, quartermaster; Rufe White, chaplain and C. K. Logan, historian. Members of the executive committee are Small, Wood, Gabrielson, McKeanie and Durbin, Jr. Carl Moser, state adjutant, spoke while short talks were made by the retiring officers and several delegates from the Dallas post. Commander Gabrielson was presented with a leather traveling outfit by the old officers and members of the post.

By a unanimous vote the post went on record of disapproving proposed legislation before congress making it unlawful for anyone beside officers of the law to possess small firearms of any size or condition. The proposed measure would provide a penalty if pistols or revolvers were found in the homes. Copies of the resolution will be forwarded to Oregon's representatives in congress. Efforts are being made to change the meeting night from Monday to Wednesdays in order to allow about 20 members who belong to the Oregon National Guard, to attend the legion meetings. It was announced that on January 22 the Salem Elks would be hosts again this year to all members of the GAR, Spanish war vets and to all ex-service men.

Boy Scouts Entertained
By Chemawa Indian Troop

The Salem Scouts, members of Troops Nos. 1 and 2, who journeyed to Chemawa on last Friday report that the occasion was indeed a happy one. "Such hospitality has not been experienced by organization in many moon." was the comment of Harold L. Cook, under whose direction the hike was staged. The Chemawa braves transported an entire commissary to the woods east of the school, where they served dinner.

Scouts Ralph Williams, Paul Lewis, Jesse Lamkin, Harold Mariels, and Donald Johnston proved their ability to properly fell a tree and cut a log, and passed that requirement of the 2nd Class Scout tests.

Scouts Paul Lewis, Jesse Lamkin, Harold Mariels and Donald Johnston proved they had keen observation and passed the trailing requirement.

Scouts Roland Hardman, Harold Slusser and Philip Ferris passed the 2nd Class requirements of knowledge of the compass, by surveying a line through the woods, and knowing the points of the compass.

Full eighty Scouts were present for the days activities, numbers being equally divided between the Chemawa and Salem troops.

Amateur Burglars Attempt To Crack Another Safe

A box of rough tools left beside the damaged door of the Cherry City Milling company indicates that the amateur cracksmen became frightened and left hurriedly according to the evidence collected by the Salem police department.

Entrance to the mill was gained by prying the bolts off the back door. The yeags attacked the safe and battered it badly, though they did not open it. The knobs were knocked off, the handle of the safe door battered down and the hinges broken in the attempt to force the safe door.

This is the second attempt that has been made by cracksmen to open the safe. The other attempt was made during the same night that the W. W. Rosebraugh office was made the objective of a badly managed attack.

WORLD MAY EXPECT DRY WEATHER, SAYS

British Meteorologists Report 1925 Will Be Driest in This Century

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The year 1925 will be the driest the universe has experienced this century, an official of the British Meteorological department told The Associated Press in explaining a new discovery which departmental experts have made and which, it is declared, enables them to pick out the wet and dry years to come.

St. Swithin will have 12 months of large scale unemployment after Christmas, the department has emphatically predicted, and the drought to come will not only dry up these soggy islands, but extend to the rest of the world.

This statement was made after much study on the part of weather scientists and as the result of the discovery that a close connection exists between rainfall, particularly in Great Britain, and the frequency of solar prominences. The latter are explained to be the tongues of flaming gas that dart out from the sun's surface, sometimes to a height of 250,000 miles and at a speed of more than 150 miles an hour.

Experts have spent three years studying the relation of this phenomenon with the fall of rain and have learned that the interval between the dates when these giant fireworks are most active has grown progressively shorter during the last half century, while the periodicity of wet years in England has shown a corresponding change. The mathematical curves indicate a relationship that is too definite to be overlooked, say the department chiefs.

This relativity is nothing new. It was noticed about 1865, and for the next 25 years, every fifth year in England was wet, the other four being dry or normal. All this time the solar prominences were appearing regularly and normally. At the end of the 25 years the flames appeared oftener and continued to appear at regular periods for 20 years, when every third year was wet. From 1910 to 1921 the flames were more active and alternate years were wet and dry.

The droughty year of 1921 appears to have been the turning point, for now the department experts have figured out that for the next period of increased solar activity the years will be in cycles of three, two wet years and one dry one. The year 1922 is reckoned as the last year on the late period, therefore the years 1923
