A PERUSAL OF THE CALENDAR for the New Year of the Woman's Union of the First Congregational church reveals one of Salem's most interesting missionary programs. Hostesses and meeting places for the 12 months have been ascertained as well as a complete outline for topics of study.

The calendar season for the church opened successfully yesterday afternoon with the missionary meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred W. Stensloff, 607 N. Commercial street at which the devotional was in charge of Mrs. W. D. Clarke and the lesson talk, of Mrs. T. S. MacKenzie, Miss Gertrude Enkin depicted her work at Chemawa, as director of Protestant religion, in a profitable and interesting manner. The hostesses, with Mrs. Stensloff were Mrs. W. D. Clarke, Mrs. T. S. MacKenzie, Mrs. Louis Olsen, and Mrs. George Bayne.

Next week, on Thursday, the Woman's Union of the church will meet at Mrs. Mark McCallister's home.

Similarly the first and third Fridays of each month will hold for the women of the church programs of special interest. Among the many topics of study will be the Near East, the Mormons, Japan, and India.

The officers are: President, Mrs. Mark McCallister; vice president, Mrs. W. H. Gross; Missionary leader, Mrs. T. S. MacKenzie; secretary, Mrs. Fannie A. Brown; and treasurer, Miss Edith Hazard.

Mrs. George F. Rodgers, and her cousin, Mrs. Walter London, of Vancouver, B. C.; Miss Margaret Rodgers and her guest, Miss Daprestre of New York City; and Frank Durbin, Jr., left yesterday for a month's motor trip through southern California.

Edward Haslebach was the guest of honor on Wednesday evening at the home of his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haslebach, of Howell prairie for a most pleasurable birthday party. Games and "500" were the diversions of the evening.

Those present were: the Haslebach family, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Zielinski and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Van Cleave and family, Mr. and Mrs. L. Faust and son Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Schindler and son James, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Duda and sons Leroy and Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Kittleson, Mr. Ben Clemens and daughter Ellene, Miss Burton, Frances, Anna and Louis Tanzer, Raymond and Leo Zielinski, Frank Zielinski, Tony Rasmussen and Wayne Montandon.

A luncheon, lovely in its appointments, was that at 1 o'clock yesterday at which Mrs. E. C. Richards and Miss Frances M. Richards were hostesses at the E. C. Richards home, when they entertained in honor of Mrs. Geo. J. Pearce, Miss Helen Pearce and Miss Dorothy Pearce, who are leaving next week for the south and east, and for Mrs. E. C. Small. A pink and green decorative scheme was used on the table which was centered with freezias and pink carnations. Exquisite hand-painted place cards added to the charm of the table where covers were placed for 12.

Mrs. Pearce and daughters plan to leave early next week for Berkeley, Cal., where they will be the guests of Mrs. A. F. Brasfield. From Berkeley Miss Helen Pearce will go east to Cambridge for graduate work at Radcliffe. Mrs. Pearce and Miss Dorothy Pearce will go from Berkeley to San Diego.

Mrs. T. G. Hopkins of Albany will be with Mrs. Small while Mrs. Pearce and Miss Dorothy Pearce are away. A number of delightful affairs have been given complimentary to their going.

The three beautiful alms baskets, recent gifts, the names of the donors being until after Sunday unknown, will be blessed at the 11 o'clock service tomorrow morning at St. Paul's church.

An enjoyable club meeting was that of the U. D. bridge group who met this week at the guests of Mrs. E. Eckerlin, Sr.

Invited guests for the afternoon were Mrs. M. J. Petzell, Mrs. Frank Jaskoski, Mrs. George Patterson, Mrs. James Heenan, Mrs. E. A. Skelley, and Mrs. Thomas D. McClain.

Mrs. M. J. Petzell won the high score of the afternoon. The personnel of the U. D. club includes: Mrs. N. C. Nadon, Mrs. T. M. Barr, Mrs. R. C. Thomas, Miss Rosalia Bach, Mrs. John E. Nathman, Sr., Bert Pruitt, Mrs. E. Eckerlin, Sr., Mrs. E. Eckerlin, Jr., Mrs. Harry Hintzen, Mrs. C. J. Healy, Mrs.

S. Breitenstein, and Mrs. Harry Wells.

Senator and Mrs. Gus C. Moser of Portland will arrive here tomorrow to remain until after the legislature. They will take an apartment at the Court.

Two out of the 21 entering freshmen pledged at the beginning of the winter term at the University of Oregon are from Salem. These are Charles Taft, who was pledged to the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and Lyman Laycock, to Kappa Delta Phi.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Kirk were among the guests entertained last Saturday night in Portland at the William Neil home. Mr. and Mrs. Kirk were houseguests over the week-end of Mr. and Mrs. Miller E. McGilchrist.

St. Paul's Guild of the Episcopal church was entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Thomas Purbrich on South High street, assisted by Mrs. Jessie Robertson. Thirty-five members were present. Refreshments were served late in the afternoon. Mrs. Rupert and Miss Robertson assisting the hostess.

Plans were made for many interesting activities to take place in the near future. In charge during the afternoon were the newly elected officers, who include Mrs. Rex Sanford president; Mrs. William Neimeyer, first vice president; Mrs. G. E. Terwilliger, second vice president; Mrs. Edward Stewart, secretary; and Mrs. N. C. Kaffoury treasurer. The sum of $60 was added to the building fund which makes the gift of this guild total $150.

Outstanding among the plans made were those for a silver ton in the near future. Mrs. Russell Catlin having been appointed as chairman for the making of arrangements. It is probable that a card party and other attractions will be given before the beginning of the Lenten season.

On Easter Monday the regular yearly dinner will be given at the parish house at which time the public will be welcome. Mrs. G. E. Terwilliger has been appointed chairman of the dinner arrangements, while Mrs. James Olinger will be in charge of the fancy and other articles which will be a feature of the same date.

The next meeting of the guild will be at the home of Mrs. H. B. Thielens when Mrs. Thielens and Mrs. Edward Stewart will be hostesses jointly.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest T. Given and little daughter, Mary Lee, and Mrs. O. D. Bower have returned after spending the New Year season at Klamath Falls.

Grant Fallin of Salem has been pledged to Phi Delta Theta social fraternity on the OAC campus. Mr. Fallin is also a member of the rock basketball squad.

One of the attractive 1 o'clock bridge luncheons of the week was that yesterday afternoon at the Colonial Dame Tea Shoppe, at which Mrs. Earl Fisher entertained.

CHAPTER 355

WHAT LILLIAN AND MADGE DID TO "HANDLE" DR. PETTIT.

Lillian's flank movement was successful. We reached the car before Dr. Pettit's long strides caught up with us.

"Start your motor," she whispered, "before you speak to him." I obeyed, and the whirr of the engine was much softer than the physician's voice when he reached the side of the car.

"Have you seen this?" he demanded holding up before my eyes the paper which had contained the fantastic account of Dick's escapade with Claire Foster.

It took all my will power to keep from striking the hateful thing out of his hands. But a look at the physician's white, set face and blazing eyes steadied me. He was in a mood which needed no label to be recognized as distinctly dangerous.

"Yes, I have seen it," I returned, making my voice as careless as possible. "Horrid twist to give an ordinary accident, isn't it? I shall advise my husband to thrash the man who wrote it if he isn't too big."

"You—you—" the physician's voice was thick with astonishment and rage. "Are you treating this as a joke?"

"I hope I still retain possession of my five senses," I returned flippantly. "so I naturally see no reason for treating it as anything else."

I felt Lillian's hand on my arm in an approving little pat, and the touch helped me to face the blazing wrath in Dr. Pettit's eyes.

Dr. Pettit Is Furious.

"Look here," he said in a loud tone and with a more excited manner than I ever had observed in him before. "If you think you can keep that man from me by this silly, childish talk, you are—"

"Dr. Pettit!" Lillian's tone was a whiplash.

"If you have anything further to say to Mr. Graham, please step into the car, for we are going home immediately. If not, let me give a word of advice. Melodrama is out of date. Don't make yourself ridiculous by magnifying something which Mrs. Graham, the person most concerned, is viewing very sensibly."

He stepped back from the car, and lifted his hat, the grayish pallor on his face deepening.

"If threatening that scoundrel within an inch of his life will make me ridiculous, I shall be a subject for your mirth at this time tomorrow," he said grimly.

"Oh!" I gasped, thoroughly frightened, but Lillian's cutting tone drowned the exclamation.

"I congratulate you on your chivalry. A little proceeding like that ought to make things exceedingly pleasant for Miss Foster. Good morning. Let's get out of here, Madge."

Lillian's Plan.

Obediently I sent the car away from the curb, but I was so obsessed by the remembrance of the physician's hatred-ridden eyes that as soon as I had turned the corner and was well away from the chance of his seeing me, I drew the car up to the curb, stopped it, and turned to Lillian.

"Do you think he means to go up there?" I asked.

"Of course he does," she returned. "But don't you worry. He'll not get any further than the railroad station. Your father and I haven't attended Sunday school for nothing. We'll be able to manage dear little Herbie all right, and he'll never know what happened to him."

I smiled involuntarily at her ridiculous quotation, and my spirits which had traveled rapidly toward the zero mark at Dr. Pettit's threat, began to ascend again. I knew better than to ask how she meant to accomplish the thwarting of the half-crazed man, but that she would effectually prevent his journey to the scene of Dick's escapade I was certain.

"I'm content to leave everything in your hands," I said, as I started the car again. "Where to now?"

"Home," she returned promptly. "You'll have to wait there for the afternoon train, and run the gauntlet of the reporters if they come. This Pettit lunatic complicates things a bit, and I want to get your father busy on him pronto. Drat the man, anyway! Who would have thought he'd blaze up like a Fourth of July sky-rocket?"

She laughed lightly as she spoke but I knew that Dr. Pettit's fantastic performance worried her more than she cared to admit to me.
