

SALEM HIGH EASY VICTOR OVER McMINNVILLE HIGH QUINTET BY 25-8 SCORE

EIGHT POINT LIMIT IS SET

Scoring Is Not Brilliant But Is Constant Throughout Entire Contest

Eight points in any one quarter was all that Salem high school could accumulate last night in defeating the McMinnville high school basketball team here by the score of 25 to 8. The game was lacking in any features, though one or two brilliant shots were made during the contest.

Salem showed some signs of improvement over the game earlier in the week which was won by Franklin high school of Portland 15 to 14 because of the inability of Salem to hit the basket even with a free shot. McMinnville suffered greatly last night from the same disease.

The locals opened slowly, garnering in only five points in the first quarter while McMinnville was blanked. The first half ended with Salem leading the visitors 10 to 2.

In the third quarter Salem began to speed up a little, annexing 7 points while McMinnville gained 4, leaving the score 17 to 6 when the whistle blew. Eight more points were added by Salem in the final period against 2 more by the visitors, the game ending Salem 25 and McMinnville 8.

Lineups of the teams were: Salem—Ellis, Heenan and Hanson, forwards; J. Drager, center; Ashby, R. Drager and Girod guards.

McMinnville—Green and Warren, forwards; Wakeman, center; Trawin, Laughlin, Marsh and Reddicap, guards.

Referee—Glen Gregg, of Salem.

BALL SCANDAL QUIZ IS AIRED

Testimony in Dolan-O'Connell Bribery Case is Made Public Today

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(By the Associated Press).—Detailed testimony in the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal, made public today by Commissioner Landis in Chicago and also by President Heydler of the National League here, falls to shed any new light which alters the situation as it existed at the time of the last world's series, in the view of baseball men who have analyzed the report.

Startling revelations had been expected in some quarters but they are entirely lacking and most observers professed to interpret this publicity as strengthening a belief that the bribery case is closed. It was pointed out that Landis, in previously refusing to make public the testimony, had said such action might embarrass further investigation.

In the opinion of many baseball men here, Landis gave out the testimony after deciding it was the most effective way to end widespread suspicion that something was being held back in the case. However, neither President Heydler of the National League nor officials of the Giants, including President Charles A. Stoneham and Manager John McGraw would comment in any way upon the testimony.

The testimony confirms previous knowledge of the accusations of Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop; the confession of Jimmy O'Connell; the lapse of memory of Cozy Dolan; and the denials which resulted in the exoneration of Frank Frisch, George Kelly and Ross Young, other mentioned in O'Connell's story, but disclosed a few interesting points.

Baseball men attached some significance to similar statements by Young and Frisch that there always was "talk of this kind around," meaning bribery offers, but that the players made light of it. On this point, Young said: "You hear fellows talking around that boys are offering money and something like that, I never heard anything like this, offering money here. This is the first I heard of it (referring to O'Connell's story)."

Frisch said: "You hear a lot of kidding around, is that what you mean—on a pennant contender you always hear a lot of stuff like that, a lot of kidding and some things. That is all I ever hear. You always hear that Judge, on a pennant contender team."

Frisch, Young and Kelly were specific in their denials of knowledge of O'Connell's attempt to bribe Sand or of being approached on the subject in any way, but some of their answers were vague. Young, when asked whether he saw Dolan and O'Connell together at the time of the attempted bribery or whether he (Young) had any talk with O'Connell on that

Tuesday evening they are to meet Lincoln high, Corvallis high Friday and the Silverton high Saturday night. The two first games will be played on the local floor, but the last one will be at Silverton.

The Lincoln and Corvallis teams are coming with a wallop to land on the Salem quintet, and unless they show a little better class in hitting the baskets they are to lose the games.

ROSS OUSTER IS COMPLETED

(Continued from page 1) testimony that one of the objects of the re-employment of C. D. Shoemaker was for the reason that it was believed by Dr. Ross and one other member that Mr. Shoemaker would be valuable as lobbyist in the interest of the fish commission during the approaching session of the legislature. I regard it as a waste of public money and clearly a cause for removal, to use public funds for the purpose of employing or paying for a lobbyist.

Mr. Veatch, the new commissioner, is a native of Lin county and was graduated from the University of Oregon in 1907. In 1912 he was admitted to the bar. For four years he served as chief assistant, United States prosecutor but resigned about a year ago to enter into practice with Joseph, Heney & Litchfield, with which firm he is identified. The appointment, Mr. Veatch told Portland newspapermen, came as a surprise.

Dr. Ross is quoted in the Portland Telegram as saying he would fight his removal by taking the case into court.
