CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS BASED ON TRUE RELATION OF CAUSE AND EFFECT
The Legions of Cures; the 10,000 Practitioners; the 200,000 People Daily Receiving Adjustments, Witness the Virtue of Chiropractic Science—Now Firmly Established as Leading Factor for Relief of Human Suffering
(By EDWARD T. BARBER)
The complex character of human nature has made the question of health and age the most baffling which has confronted the race. All ages and races have given it their most profound thought. Modern science has contributed a very large part of its efforts to the relief of human suffering. Many schools of thought have developed from the different view points taken by their advocates as to the cause and cure of disease. Slowly, step by step, science has revealed facts which materially change the view point of those interested in the elimination of disease. A hidden truth, when once revealed, must stand the acid test of doubt, distrust, skepticism, prejudice and selfishness of those whose pet ideas, beliefs and theories are disturbed by it before it can establish itself beyond controversy. It must literally fight its way into public recognition over the opposition and prejudices of those whose personal interests are disturbed by its revelation. Such is the record of Chiropractic science. Less than a generation ago Dr. D. D. Palmer's studies led him to the conclusion that all bodily conditions of health and disease were determined entirely by the action, or inaction, of the nervous system, centered in the brain. So long as the entire nervous system functioned properly perfect health was the result. The moment any portion of the nervous system failed to function properly an abnormal condition, called disease, resulted in whatever portion of the body was served by the affected nerve. He reasoned that the term "disease" as generally used, was applied to symptoms of nerve disturbance and that to remove the cause of the disturbance would result in nature removing the disease. He instituted a long and exhaustive search for the cause of nerve disturbances. His research led him to conclude that they were located in the spine, and were invariably due to a pinching or binding of the nerve fiber at its point of exit from the spinal column; that this was due to some greater or lesser dislocation of the vertebrae, a slipping of the joint which restricted the normal action of the nerve.

DOMESTIC MARKETS ARE STRENGTHENED
tem of grading of all produce and offering only the highest quality for market purposes, using the culls for other purposes, is essential to a first class market condition. Again the growing of the proper kind and quality must be supplemented by a sufficient quantity to fill the demand.
No other one thing would go farther in building up a fine domestic market for farm, orchard and garden produce, than a well organized co-operative spirit among producers for the purpose of studying the market demands, then agree among themselves as to the amount, the kind and quality to be produced. Here is an illustration:
In a neighboring state strawberry growers complained of the canner paying a price too low to justify picking, and many acres of berries in that section were not picked. The canner paid 6c per pound. The canner manager stated that out of 40 tons purchased that season but 5 tons were first class table berries, the balance had to be used for jams, etc. That each farmer insisted upon growing the kind of berry he liked best, with a result that as many varieties were on the market as there were farmers; that the canner would have been glad to pay 10 cents per pound for 40 tons or even 100 tons of first class table berries of uniform size and ripeness.
The Salem local markets offer for sale apples, potatoes and other vegetables which should never have been put on the market. Scabby potatoes, ungraded as to size and often of mixed varieties. Diseased and wormy apples in "faced" boxes. A proper co-operation among local producers strictly enforcing rigid rules as to grading and preparation for market, considering the quantity of each article the demand would absorb, would redound to the benefit of producer, dealer and consumer.
In the great Snake river valley where from 15 to 20 thousand cars of potatoes are grown annually a scabby potato is looked upon as almost as much of a menace to the community as a man running wild with the smallpox. The same is true as to diseased fruit.
Irrigation conditions develop and educate the co-operative spirit more readily than other places. A thousand farmers using water from the same ditch must learn team work and the training more easily enters into their other relations.
The Pacific Fruit and Produce company, with headquarters in Portland and many branch houses all over the Pacific Northwest, is doing a splendid work in educating producers to the co-operative idea involved in quantity, quality and tables, poultry and dairy cows on a small farm spells prosperity to the owner.

HIGH FINANCE SWINDLER GETS TWO MILLION
and friends to help him finance the Equity company. To those who invested money in the company Turman is alleged to have promised, and paid for a time, fantastic interest rates which were supposed to represent profits from men high in Wall street finance.
They received his interest for a time. Then when their loanings or investments with the Equity company had reached considerable size, the interest ceased, they charge, and principal was not forthcoming on demand.
The company itself is a complainant. Turman's associates claiming to have lost upwards of $340,000.
