The Statesman had the news of the celebration of the 98th birthday of J. H. Baughman, the grand old man of Woodburn, on Tuesday, Jan. 13.

How many more men and women in Marion and Polk counties are that old? How many are old or? How many are 90? How many are over 80? The Statesman is going to try to find out all these people, and tell about them. Will the reader please help. Let's start on those over 90.

In the days of Moses ten laws were considered ample for the regulation of the people. Since then we have had more than 1,300,000 enactments of various kinds in this country alone and there are still thousands of citizens clamoring for more laws, including many in Oregon. And in the mighty flood of legislation the original ten laws appear to be dangerously near submerged.

Once 9 o'clock found the ruralities turning in; now it finds them tuning in. Buildings that cost over $6,000, 000 at one of the army camps brought only $77,000 when auctioned off under the hammer. Looks as if some folks would still make a few shining dollars out of Uncle Sam. The nation has already taken a loss of more than $1,500,000,000 in the disposal of various war accumulations.

MOSER NOT WED TO MILLS PLAN

Some Protection Offered But Other Bills Would Give Same Results

The Mills' bill offers some protection at the primary election, was the contention of Gus C. Moser, president of the senate, in addressing the Chamber of Commerce at their regular meeting yesterday.

"I am not committed to the Mills' bill any more than to any other bill that will accomplish the desired result," declared the speaker. "The primaries must be safeguarded and a man must not be elected to office who is not supporting the choice of the people. Consequently there is no party responsibility, and the only way to hold the government responsible and together is by a party. There must be a platform as in former days."

The Mills' bill states that a candidate must receive at least 40 per cent of the votes at the primary election. However, Senator Moser said, that this should be modified to the extent that 33 1-3 per cent of the votes must be secured. Unless this is done a candidate is held to nominate a candidate for office. It is a sensible, sane proposition, the speaker said. Senator Toose, of the ways and means committee, in commenting upon state expenditures, said that the talk about reducing taxes should be dropped. The crying educational needs of the commonwealth needs attention, while the costly penal institutions have demands that must be met squarely. The senator, however, contended that every man, woman and child confined in the state penal institutions must earn his or her own living. The state's needs must be remembered, he said.

Road Tax Would Stand Cost of New Building

Money for the construction of a new office building to house state departments on the north side of the city block occupied by the supreme court building would be derived from a diversion of the quarter-mill state road tax if two bills introduced in the house of representatives yesterday become laws.

HB No. 135 would authorize
