ELIZABETH LEVY

Brilliant Oregon pianist, with her genuine Gagnan instrument, who will appear in concert Wednesday evening at the First Christian church.

ONE MUST always think of a gifted musician's violin as sort of a sixth sense, or better, an epitome of all the senses and the soul beside, such an expression may it become of changing mood and redolent personality. The violin on which Miss Elizabeth Levy will play on Wednesday, February 4, at her Salem concert appearance, is a matchless instrument which came into her possession only last year while in the east.

Picked from Cesar Thompson's own private collection which at the time comprised 12 instruments Miss Levy's violin has a history extending over nearly two centuries. It is a genuine product of the hands of Antonio Gagnani, whose name and craftsmanship make memorable the name of the village of Legheno, Italy. The instrument bears the certification of Hart and Sons of London, the registration taking place in 1910.

"A violin like that would cost a lot of money,—say $3,000," we suggested, and Miss Levy smiled. "Oh, yes, or, you know Cesar Thompson was one who would never have bothered to carry it across the ocean." When she stated the actual insurance that her violin carries, a gasp was the only fitting response.

Thompson, himself, characterized the instrument as one of an unusually beautiful tone and markedly adapted to Miss Levy's own uses. So thorough was his conviction as to the latter point that he refused to grant her permission to go so far as even to consider any other he might offer. We curiously asked Miss Levy what it was she first played on her newly acquired instrument. Her face lighted up and she said "My lesson on the Vitali number 'Chaconne,' right there in the studio. And it was Thompson's own arrangement. Vitali, you know, was born in Italy at about the time my violin was made, and only about four miles from the place!" Her conclusion came almost like inspiration. "And it" that same number, "Chaconne" that is going to be first on my Salem program when I play the first Wednesday in February!"

Many prominent Salem women are acting as patronesses in the interest of Miss Levy's anticipated home-coming recital. These are: Mrs. William Walton, Mrs. Walter L. Spaulding, Mrs. E. E. Fisher, Mrs. David W. Eyre, Mrs. Seymour Jones, Mrs. George H. Alden, Mrs. John J. Roberts, Mrs. John Farrer, Mrs. William Bell, Mrs. Phil Newmyer, Mrs. William H. Burghardt, Miss Sally Bush, Miss Lena Belle Tartar and Mrs. John L. Rand.

Mrs. Frank Minto is in charge of the ticket sale.

A delightful affair enjoyed by the college set was the "Post-Exam" jubilee held in the society hall of Willamette university Friday evening. The affair marked the end of the mid-year examinations. About 300 Willamette students and a number of outsiders were present. After a student program consisting of stunts and games was presented, refreshments of pimento cheese and wafers and Chill con Carne were served.

A large number were present Friday evening for the meeting of the Mountain View Parent-Teacher meeting. Community singing, with Miss Beth Bedford at the piano, opened the program. Mrs. Nash gave a group of readings with Mrs. Harold Bunn adding to the selections in the Swedish dialect, to the huge interest.

DR. AND MRS. R. E. LEE STEINER are home from a 14 weeks' trip to the Orient, memorable and enjoyable to the extreme, but leaving the entire conviction that there is no place quite like the United States. Sailing from Seattle October 12, on the President Jefferson, Dr. and Mrs. Steiner found themselves on the way to Japan in their first and only storm encountered during the ten weeks on the water.

Arriving in Japan in due season, Dr. and Mrs. Steiner, together with the other tourists, instead of going to the hotels for accommodations which were more or less uncertain on account of the precarious earthquake situation, maintained headquarters on their steamer, while short side trips were taken.

The turmoil of killing and burning in China forbade any extended pleasure jaunts into the interior. Dr. and Mrs. Steiner agreeing to accept entirely the counsel of a friend in Canton regarding this point. Two days were spent at Shanghai and a similar time in Hong Kong and Canton.

Reaching Manila, still on the President Jefferson, Dr. and Mrs. Steiner visited one of the finest of the island cities. Though early in January, the weather was very warm. At Manila Dr. and Mrs. Steiner were transferred to the President Pierce, on which they enjoyed the six-day voyage to Honolulu, arriving the day after Mr. and Mrs. Milton Meyers landed from the United States. Dr. and Mrs. Steiner spent two weeks with their son-in-law and daughter, Capt. and Mrs. E. C. Flegel. Honolulu was accorded to be as tourists have often described it, indeed—the world's Garden of Eden.

The trip from Honolulu to San Francisco was made on the President Taft, of one of the chosen tourist lines. So calm were the weather conditions prevailing that the ocean was compared to "a mill pond."

Members of the Entres-Nous club were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Thompson for a special social meeting Friday evening, with a radio program given. Dancing was the chosen diversion of the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. David Steinback of Tillamook spent last week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Latham.

Kappa Alpha Theta alumnae are invited to meet with Miss Merle McKelvey Tuesday afternoon at the Court apartments.

of all present. Miss Reatha Canoy, William McCauley, L. Cannoy and Ammon Grice composed an entertainment quartet for the evening. Two groups of readings were given by Mrs. Mercer. E. Cooke Patton was the magician of the evening. Bounteous refreshments were served late in the evening.

Mrs. M. B. Paroungian spent last week-end in Portland with her daughter, Miss Mary Paroungian.

Over 80 members of the Marion County Christian Endeavor societies were guests on Wednesday evening for the get-together party at the First Presbyterian church. Among districts represented by large groups were Woodburn, Lash Center, Silverton, Clear Lake and Pratum. The feature of the evening was the "trip to Chicago." During the evening Paul Polling gave a report of the 1924 convention.

Miss Miriam Lovell and Miss Alice Collard had charge of the arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Turner left Friday for Seattle after being the house guests of Mr. Turner's sister, Miss Joy Turner, for several days. They came to attend the funeral of their grandmother, Mrs. F. E. Inman.

Mrs. F. G. Kurtz was the honor guest on Wednesday, the occasion of her birthday anniversary, when a group of friends came for an all-day picnic celebration. Games and fortune telling featured on the program for this enjoyable surprise affair.
