have rendered good service but, when subservience is required in preference to service and, when the spoken word of the head of a department becomes, to put it very mildly, unreliable, then it is time for any self-respecting individual to separate himself from such conditions. This I now do without any regrets whatsoever. "When on July 26 last, after a heated session during which I tendered my resignation, you requested that I withdraw my resignation and asked me to 'forget' the circumstances in connection therewith, and I, in good faith, gave you my promise, a promise I have kept to this day, to do so, and when you proffered your hand to bind the compact. I did not believe that you would so far demean yourself as to break that faith. However, just as soon as you deemed it expedient to do so, you not only broke faith and repudiated other promises you had made besides but went to further extremes in an endeavor to fustify your actions. "In view of the circumstances I must ask you to release me from any promises I have made with regard to yourself and, in the event of your failure to advise me to the contrary, I will, of course, consider myself released and free to act as may deem expedient."
