AUDRED BUNCH PHONE 106

HE HOME of Rev. and Mrs. Martin Fereshettan, 657 Che-meketa street, was the scene on Thursday evening of a chicken dinner with covers for 27. The dinner, served at 6:30 o'clock, was followed with the regular Thursday evening psychology study under Mr. Fereshettan's leadership, the guests including members of the Emerson class and a few friends. Three tables were arranged throughout the rooms where the guests found their places after being served cafeteria style. Daffodils and almond blossoms were attractive on the tables at which the following were seated: Miss Cornelia Marvin, Mrs. Blanche Jones, Mr. and Mrs. George Trott, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Miles McKey, Mrs. W. F. Fargo, Mrs. Johnson, Mr. William Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Littlefield, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Burton, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Smart, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kubin, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Ray MacDowell, Mrs. Lizzie Smith and the hosts, Rev. and Mrs. Martin Fereshettan.

At 8 o'clock the class work was taken up. Scotch songs by J. P. Smart added immeasurably to the pleasure of the evening.

Mrs. Spencer Wortman, formerly of Salem but now of Portland, is spending several weeks as the guests of friends here.

The Salem Music Teachers' association will meet on Monday as the guests of Mrs. Walter A. Denton at the M. L. Meyers home.

Babies Love It

For all stomach and intestinal troubles and disturbances due to teething, there is nothing better than a safe infants' and children's laxative.

Mrs. Winslow's Syrup

Mrs. R. W. Stimer and Mrs. George Viesko entertained jointly this week for the members of their bridge group—the Linger-Longer club. Mrs. H. E. Ingrey won the high score of the afternoon and Mrs. J. H. West, low. The Ingrey home will be the scene of the next meeting of the club when the group will meet for luncheon as guests of Mrs. Ingrey and Mrs. H. R. White.

The Past Matrons' society met last night at the home of Mrs. James Godfrey for an enjoyable meeting.

The Sweet Briar club enjoyed a particularly interesting study this week of Grecian art when the members met with Mrs. C. C. Chaffee. Daffodils were used in a decorative way about the rooms. A delightful bit of atmosphere was the showing of the marble Venus which Mrs. Karl Kugel secured in Europe.

Mrs. Chaffee's guests were Mrs. Arthur Utley, Mrs. William F. McCall, Mrs. M. C. Petteys, Mrs. Al Steiner, Mrs. Lou Grote, Mrs. A. H. Bunn, Mrs. Ed Pratt, Miss Nellie Taylor, Mrs. E. O. Moll, Mrs. C. C. Page, Mrs. James Im-lah, Mrs. Karl Kugel, Mrs. Glenn Adams, Mrs. M. P. Adams, Mrs. Ralph Allen and Mrs. Theodore Madsen.

Miss Virginia Dorcas will be the guest of Miss Pauline Knowland at the Delta Delta Delta house on the University of Oregon campus over the week-end.

Miss Elizabeth Levy was one of those from Salem having the privilege of hearing Albert Spaulding, the distinguished American violinist, at his concert appearance this week in Portland.

Mrs. C. M. Howard (Gene Sevy) of Sheridan is the week-end guest of Miss Salome Socolofsky.

A delightful reception was held last night following the MacDowell club concert at the home of Prof. and Mrs. T. S. Roberts honoring the participants and their friends.

The Mid-Week Bridge club was delightfully entertained on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Al Krause. Attractive baskets of daffodils were used about the rooms. Mrs. W. H. Shaffer won the high score of the afternoon and Mrs. R. O'Leary the consolation award.

The club members include Mrs. K. W. Heinlein, Mrs. E. R. Viesko,

A change is announced in the YWCA cafeteria service which will take effect on Monday, March 1, when instead of the full meal, only drinks and soup will be served to girls who bring their lunches at noon. The YWCA cafeteria, not now remunerative, had a definite need when organized, but since that time places on the street have become adequate. At the present time 30 girls are bringing their lunches, and they, of course, will be served. Service will also continue for house-guests, with Bertha and Cleave in charge.

Miss Marian Wyman, secretary, plans to leave Salem on Wednesday. No full-time successor, however, will be chosen till fall. Until that time Miss Clementine Charles will be in charge of the office and house-mother work. Miss Hollis Vick will take the responsibility of the Junior High School Girl Reserve, while Miss Lina Heist will be in charge of the Senior High School Reserves. Miss Hazel Maisten will be at the head of the Girls' training class. All these are under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. H. Fairchild.

Mrs. W. I. Staley plans to accompany Miss Wyman to California. The trip will be made by motor.

Lions Give Endorsement To Bridge Program

The Lions club endorsed the proposed bridge program as outlined by Mayor J. B. Giesy, who spoke before the organization yesterday. It is as follows:

"Whereas, it has become evident that there is need for some adequate bridge program looking to the building of sufficient permanent bridges, artistic in design and wide enough to properly care for the traffic of our beautiful and growing city, and desiring by all honorable means within our power to cooperate with all others interested in such a program;

"Therefore, be it resolved by the Lions Den of Salem, Oregon, that we heartily express our approval of such a movement; that we likewise express our confidence in our city council to formulate such a program, and pledge our hearty support in any way they may need it to properly carry out such designs."

CHAPTER E296
WHY MADGE WAS COMPELLED TO "TALK FAST" TO DICKY

"Right inside here, Mrs. Graham. Mind the table there, if projects out too far, but there's no other place for it."

I followed Tim Boyce, the station agent, into his office, with the mental comment that never before had I met so courteous and pleasant a railway official. There was nothing perfunctory, either, in his manner. One felt that the man was so essentially kindly-souled that he could not be otherwise than considerate.

"Just sit down here. Where do you want to telephone, Caldwell?"

"Yes. How much is it?"

"Never mind that now. Wait till you finish your call. You can't tell how much it will be until you get through. Here is the Caldwell book, and now, if you don't mind, I'll leave you for a few minutes. If you can't get your number, or need me for anything else, just tap on that window. I'll be rushing freight just outside it."

Madge's Nerves Are "Jangled"

He was out of the door almost before I could frame a grateful

"Thank you," and I paid another mental tribute to the thoughtfulness which left me to myself while telephoning. I reflected that he was the man through whose hands Lillian's telegraph message had passed but a few minutes before. The cryptic wording of that message, together with my feverish preparations to get away from the Barker house, must have excited a very natural curiosity in him, and he could have gratified it by staying in his office. Indeed, as I very well knew, he was straining a point to leave me alone in his official sanctum and I was correspondingly grateful.

The long-distance telephone operator, however, curt, inefficient and disobliging, jangled again the nerves soothed by Mr. Boyce's possession of just the opposite qualities. By the time I had connected with the Astoria Hotel in Caldwell, and had succeeded in making an unusually thick-headed clerk understand to whom I wished to talk I was fairly quivering with nervous rage.

The timbre of Dicky's voice, when I finally succeeded in getting him to the telephone, was not calculated to pour any oil upon the troubled waves of my spirit.

"What's the matter?" he demanded when I had succeeded in making him understand who was talking to him. "Anybody dead?"

"Something Has Happened."

"No," I retorted crossly, "but we must change our plans and start early this—"

"For the love of Mike!" he exploded. "Do you mean to tell me that you've dragged me out of bed to a telephone to tell me you've changed your plans? Well, you can just change 'em back again! I'm going back to bed again."

How I longed to slam the telephone receiver down on the hook, and leave Dicky to escape as best he could from the unpleasant publicity which would be sure to follow Dr. Pettit's arrival at the hotel! I knew better, however, than to mention the physician's name, Dicky, like most men, would have preferred anything rather than the appearance of a fleeing or possible antagonist.

But I knew that I must manage to impress Dicky with the necessity of our leaving, and that within the next few seconds. If telling him that something had happened at home would have done any good I should not have hesitated to use the subterfuge, but I knew that he would insist upon starting from Caldwell, the nearest point. With a swift little appeal to my special little joss, I made my voice steely.

"Look here," I said. "Something has happened which I cannot discuss over the phone, but it means terrible publicity if we do not leave here in less than half an hour for Nantucket, 25 miles from here, on the A. V. & W. It is 30 miles from Caldwell. We will meet you at Timkinsville, about 15 miles from Caldwell. Now, don't waste a single second. Get a taxi at once and start for Timkinsville. Don't wait to eat breakfast. You can get it anywhere after you leave Caldwell. And, this is most important—get your taxi after you leave the hotel. Don't let anybody there know where you are going."

Taken From a Criticism in the New York American

THEY want to laugh. And, boy, how they laugh at "Miss Bluebeard!" This week you can hear 'em two blocks away. "What I ask is more comedies like 'Miss Bluebeard,' with Bebe in the leading role," says the reviewer on the American and adds this boost for Raymond Griffith, who supports Bebe: "He could give Buster Keaton, Harold Lloyd, or any of our million-dollar-a-year men a race for laurels."

AND WE ADD THIS—

IT IS NOT ONLY FRISKY AND FRENCHY AND FUNNY, BUT IT IS THE BEST FARCE-COMEDY YOU'VE SEEN ANYWHERE IN YEARS

From Avery Hopwood's play "Little Miss Bluebeard."

TONIGHT

THE gay love farce which Broadway roared at for a solid year.
