

FRESH GLEE PLANS NEARLY COMPLETED

Nearly 600 Willamette Students to Participate in Competitive Event

All arrangements for the annual Freshman-Glee of Willamette university to be held in the armory Saturday night at 8 o'clock are practically completed. About 600 Willamette University students will take part in the competition and provisions have been made to accommodate a crowd of 1500 townspeople and friends of the university.

The songs given by the classes will be judged from four points, music, words, rendition, and adaptability, three judges to render a decision on each point. The judges will be as follows: Music, Professor T. S. Roberts, Professor D. Riddle, and Leon Jenkinson; words, Mrs. J. C. Nelson, Mrs. W. W. Long and Miss Ada Ross; rendition, Mrs. D. Riddle, Mrs. Elen

Fish and Russel Singer; adaptability, Miss Winters, Professor J. C. Nelson, and Harold Eiken.

The four classes of the university have all spent a great deal of time and effort in getting their song in the proper form to present Saturday night and the Glee is expected to be one of the best and one of the closest contests that has been put on by the university for a number of years.

No admission will be charged although the lower floor will be reserved for the students and for their friends.

After the Glee each class will have a special class party to celebrate the victory or to forget the defeat as the case may be and in years gone by it has not been uncommon for the winners "feats" to grace the table of the loser—if they can get them.

The day following the Glee the winning class sings their song for the student body in the Willamette chapel and the losing class sings a parody on their song. After the chapel services the "mill race bets" are paid in the approved manner.

Suit Is Dismissed—An action for alleged breach of

Distinguished English Divine Pays Visit Here

The Emerson room of the First Unitarian church, with members and friends of the church, heard the lecture on American Unitarianism by Carl B. Wetherell of Boston and San Francisco, last night. The lecturer showed some interesting slides of churches and eminent men who had a great deal to do in molding the national and religious ideals of this country.

The church of Quincy, Mass., was shown, where the remains of John Adams and John Quincy Adams are entombed. Emerson's, Longfellow's and Hawthorne's churches were also shown. The speaker also told of the important part Chief Justice Marshall and John Jay had played in the interpretation of the constitution of the United States. Many interesting and important facts were brought out.

The Unitarian church will have as a distinguished guest in April Dr. Redfern of Liverpool, Eng., who will preach in Mr. Fereshethan's pulpit. He is one of four exchange preachers who will tour the United States while four American preachers will occupy pulpits in Great Britain and Ireland.

KAY GIVES TALK TO REALTORS HERE

manifested itself in the city and the development of a social conscience was made. The changes in the civic improvement had to come slowly, and from outlying districts, he said. Because of the paved streets and other public improvements, property valuations are from five to six times higher than they were some 30 years ago. The speaker recounted some of the property transfers of that time which involved four or five thousand dollars, but which today would command a much greater figure.

The flax industry will come to be the leading industry of the Willamette valley. The Salem linen mill is only the first unit of a great industry that is coming here.

Mr. Kay recounted the struggle the early residents had in getting a hotel established here. The one which was standing at that time was a "white elephant," and brought Salem in disrepute among the traveling men. The early hotel was a disgrace to the city. The early efforts of the Board of Trade ended in failure in getting money raised to erect a new one. The promoter, who had been secured for the purpose of securing funds for a new hotel left the city in disgust. Finally a company of Salem men organized, and by careful management the new hotel was erected and caused much credit to be brought to Salem. The promoters, however, have been getting no more than 6 per cent interest. They are satisfied because the hotel is a credit to the city, the speaker said.

Mr. Kay outlined briefly the influence and work of the State Chamber of Commerce in assisting local sections of the state. The citizens of Portland realize that the welfare of Portland is dependent upon the welfare of the state and therefore make much effort to promote the development of industries throughout Oregon. He cited the help given the flax growers here in buying special flax pulling machinery.

ings and thus disclose that the official record had been made to show what was supposed to have occurred, rather than what really did take place.

What had threatened to be a spectacle with most of the 96 senators having a new presiding officer came to a peaceful end with a brief executive session and adjournment for the day.

Just before the senate quit, however, Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, reintroduced his resolution for amendment of the senate rules and it was referred to the rules committee.

When the senate assembled, there was sort of electricity sparkling around the chamber. Galleries were packed, privileged individuals crowded in on the floor and every senator in town was at his desk. The atmosphere was like it must have been on a Roman fete day when somebody was going to be fed to the lions.

of the summer. In that time the retting will be done.

The flax plant has some spinning tow for sale, however, and there was recently shipped from Portland direct to London, on the steamship Howick Hall, a ton sample of the spinning tow. The spinners over there wanted to see this sample in bulk. They will buy from the sample, like hop buyers from hop samples, or tea buyers from tea masters.

The spinning tow goes mostly into dress goods, and partly into towels and coarse twine.

The acreage that will be needed this year is about all taken now. There will likely be a number of single acre tracts planted in various sections of the Willamette valley—probably 50 of them, under the supervision of the Oregon Agricultural college and the Portland Chamber of Commerce. These will be contracted just like larger tracts; the state furnishing the seed and buying the flax.

The Canby district, which has not heretofore grown any flax will grow some this year. The people down there are thinking seriously of promoting a scutching plant, and going into flax growing on a considerable scale.

The threshing of flax at the state flax plant goes steadily on, and there are constant sales of flax seed, and of the ground seed for the drug trade.

BOARD LEARNS NEW BUILDING UNLAWFUL

ations be dropped by the deat school and dairying be dropped at the girls' school on the grounds that they were money losers, according to Senator Beals' report. Senator Beals claimed to have found similar conditions at the state tuberculosis hospital but did not recommend the elimination of any activities.

Cows "Knot-headed"
Heds of the institutions in question were at the meeting. Mrs. Clara Patterson, superintendent of the girls' school, was at a loss to suggest means whereby her wards might obtain butter and milk with no dairy and no money with which to make the purchases. She objected to Senator Beals' statement that the dairy herd was a bunch of "knot-headed" Jerseys.

"There wasn't a single cow in sight when Senator Beals visited the school," she emphatically declared. "None of the cows are to be classed as 'knot-headed,'" she said.

Other Voices Heard
Dr. G. G. Bellingher, superintendent of the tuberculosis hospital, reported a waiting list of 43 at present and that when Senator Beals investigated he charged the budget estimate of increase in population against the production two years ago, which he considered to be unjust.

Senator Beals did not confer with him at all, O. L. McIntyre, superintendent of the deaf school, declared. Figures quoted by Senator Beals were obtained from the report of the board of control, it was recalled by Col. Carle Abrams, secretary.

Other routine business occupied the remainder of the meeting.

LOOK at life through Selina's eyes. Take a long look—than breathe in the sweetness and take in the wonder of all that she saw even down in the depths. Do you think you can? It takes a pretty big person with a mighty understanding soul to look at life as Selina did. But we think you can—we think there's something in every heart that cries for this chance—and that's why you'll see "So Big" played at the Oregon—that's why we urge you to see it—that's why you'll be the bigger man or woman for having looked at life through Selina's eyes.
