MY MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

CHAPTER 401.

WHAT MADGE DID TO MEET THE PROBLEM DR. PETTIT PRESENTED.

As I saw Dr. Pettit's scowling face back of the motor which he was just bringing to a stop, one fear was quieted, even while another was excited. I was sure that he had not seen Dicky—he must have figured that he would be with Claire and me, and have driven straight through Caldwell without suspecting that Dicky was there, and I breathed more freely than I had done since the receipt of Lillian's telegram.

But the sight of Claire Foster's white face as—her attention drawn by his noise of the motor—she turned and saw her angry, erstwhile fiancée, made me realize that I had promised her nothing more unpleasant should happen to her.

And the expression to Herbert Pettit's eyes as he sprang from the car made it only too clear to me that drastic action of some kind was called for immediately. The quiet, saturnine physician had lashed himself into so great a fury during his wild night ride that he was distinctly not responsible for his actions.

That he had seen us all, Claire in the taxi, Harry Underwood in his fantastic disguise standing beside the car, and myself on my way to the house, I was sure, but he evidently had room for one thought in his mind. He came directly toward me although, indeed I had turned back to meet him in order to keep him away from Claire.

"Where is your husband?" he asked thickly, his eyes glaring at me.

"Get Out of My Way!"

Over his shoulder I caught sight of Harry Underwood watching, poised, ready I knew for a dash toward him if it should become necessary, and I suddenly felt secure.

Harry Underwood is a trained athlete, sinewy, with great strength in every inch of his tall figure. I knew that he could all right handle as he might a boy the slighter figure of a physician whose most strenuous exercise is driving a motor car.

"On his way to New York," I answered, crisply.

"I do not believe you," he rudely cried, suddenly stripped to the primitive, every vestige of his usual dignified courtesy vanished. "And I warn you, you can't shield him. I'll drag him from where he's hiding, the pusillanimous scoundrel!"

If I had not been so angry at him, and so sorry for Claire Foster, I should have laughed aloud. He was so absurd in his pompous wrath. But I kept my face straight, and answered him spiritedly.

"I wish he were here. He would teach you decency and courtesy. But take my advice and leave before you make yourself more ridiculous than you are."

A Friend Indeed

"Get out of my way," he snarled in answer, and he brushed past me on his way to the house. Half-way up the steps he met Brother Bill with the suitcases, and at the sight of the genial taxi man I had a sudden inspiration. Leaving Mrs. Barker to deal with the irate physician, I ran back to the car.

"Claire, dear," I said to the pallid girl in it. "I'm going to have the taxi driver take you down the road a bit until we've calmed down Dr. Pettit. Then he'll bring you back and pick me up. You don't mind?"

"Oh, no!" she gasped. Anything. Only I suppose I ought to see him. I ought not to put my troubles on you."

"Fiddlesticks!" I returned scornfully. "I'd like nothing better than a clash with him. Oh, Mr. Boyce!" I turned to Brother Bill who had come up with the luggage. "Will you please drive Miss Foster away from here, perhaps an eighth of a mile up the mountain, just so you're out of sight of the house here, and wait until some one comes for you? It won't be very long."

Not by even a flicker of an eyelid did Brother Bill register surprise at this request, which must have been astounding to him.

"Sure," he said, deftly piling the suitcases into the luggage carrier on the side of his car. "I'll be right around the bend in the road yonder."

He mounted the driver's seat, turned his switch key, and was off down the road before I had fairly turned around. Harry Underwood bowed low in his character of Don Ramon Almiraz, but spoke in his own out of the corner of his mouth.

"What would you like done to that poisoned pup in yonder?" he asked. "If you just say the word I'll clip his ears and put a collar around his neck."

Bits For Breakfast

Wanted, more sunshine—

The farmers need it for their plowing. The ground is too wet, in most places.

Develop the poultry industry in the Salem district like it is developed in the Petaluma district of California, and there will soon be no slacker acres here. The land will all be needed, in intensified cultivation.

James Fry, proprietor of the Riverside Ancona Farm, four and a half miles up the Willamette from Salem, on the Marion county side, a very successful poultry breeder and baby chick man, has 20 acres of land. But he wants to sell 10 acres of it. He finds that the flock he can keep on 10 acres, together with his incubators, takes up all his time. He has five incubators, with a total of 2700 eggs capacity. So his extra 10 acres is a burden to him. There is room for another poultry breeder or fruit grower, or both in one, on the extra 10 acres. And so it will be as the poultry industry is developed. It will run to smaller tracts instead of larger ones, for the most part. And every inch of land will be needed to raise the feed. There is nothing that will do more in making Salem solid than to keep up the poultry boom that is now on strong.

No-use in worrying over what folks think of you. It is safe to bet that they are not thinking at all.

It takes a bonhead to be solid with himself.

You never can tell. Even the woman with a good figure may display bad form.

Men who play with figures are able to prove that we are growing thrifter day by day. We may doubt it, but the money is there in the bank. Deposits in the savings banks of America have almost tripled in the last dozen years, although the population has not unusually increased. Nearly 40,000,000 depositors now have accounts, where there were but 13,000,000 back in 1912. We have a splendid capacity as spendthrifts but we are still hanging on to a lot of the dough. The lean years will not find us helpless.

Radio Conversation Heard By Young Silverton "Fan"

SILVERTON, Ore., March 5.—(Special to the Statesman.)—Burnett Haberly, son of L. Haberly of Silverton, recently had the pleasure of listening into a radio conversation between a fellow student at Pacific University and a citizen of Sydney, Australia. Mr. Haberly is a confirmed radio fan and did considerable experimenting while at his home at Silverton. Since he entered school at Forrest Grove he has passed the tests which give him his amateur's radio license for receiving and transmitting messages by code.

Before acting on the Frear assignment, the house committee on committees adopted a resolution providing specifically that only members who supported the Coolidge-Dawes ticket in November would be recognized as republicans in making up the committee slates. Representative Tilson of Connecticut, republican leader in the next house, who was elected chairman of the committee, announced afterward that the La Follette group would be assigned committee memberships later, but not as republicans.

Aspirin Gargle in Tonsilitis

Cut This Out and Save if Subject to Sore Throat

A harmless and effective gargle is to dissolve two Bayer Tablets of Aspirin in four tablespoons of water, and gargle throat thoroughly. Repeat in two hours if necessary.

Be sure you use only the genuine Bayer Tablets of Aspirin, marked with the Bayer Cross, which can be had in tin boxes of twelve tablets for few cents.—Adv.

It's Easy to Make "Quick Starting"

But that is not the only test of a good gasoline. Other qualities must be present if you consider the welfare of your motor.

Non-detonating gasoline delivers power impulses continuously throughout the full stroke of the pistons. It doesn't deal one sudden, crashing blow. Strong, smooth power results.

A swift, powerful, continuous thrust drives the pistons all the way down. No sudden crash against the piston head, the force of which is spent and gone in one explosion.

No vibration, none of the wear and tear, and no "knocking" due to those sudden crashes.

A smooth, quick pick-up and a gliding, powerful, stressless speed comes from Non-Detonating Union Gasoline.

Its use insures your motor's best performance.
