BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER
 Prepared by Radio Bible Service Bureau, Cincinnati, Ohio.
 If parents will have their children memorize the daily Bible selections, it will prove a priceless heritage to them in after years.

March 22, 1926

LOVE DEFRAUDS NOT:—Owe no man any thing, but to love one another. Thou shalt not steal. Thou shalt not covet. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Romans 13: 8, 9.

PRAYER:
 "O love Divine, how sweet Thou art!
 When I think I find my willing heart
 All taken up with Thee?
 I thirst and faint and die to prove
 The greatness of redeeming love
 The love of Christ to me."

NOT HIGHEST PRISON POPULATION

Several Oregon newspapers have in the past couple of days published the statement that the Oregon penitentiary had the highest population in its history—Which was not true.

The number of prisoners yesterday was 517. The record number was 566, in 1916.

Included in the 517 are ten women; two of them state prisoners and eight federal, the government paying the state for the keep of the latter.

The high population of the Oregon penitentiary was not unexpected. Warden Dalrymple asked for a budget based on an average population of 525. That number will likely be reached within a few weeks; but the population will then no doubt decrease, during the summer months. That is the general rule. The winter is the time of the largest unemployment, and the devil finds mischief for idle hands to do. This is true, in or out of prison.

There are some other mistakes in the current published statements concerning the crowded condition of the penitentiary. For one thing, it is asserted that three prisoners are kept in one cell. This is not and never has been true. There are no cells at the prison having more than two bunks. (It is obvious, however, to experienced prison men, that cells should have either only one bunk, or three bunks; preferably the former.)

There are some cells at the prison being occupied now that are not fit for men to sleep in; some of them on the fourth tier.

There is nothing to the statement that prohibition has increased the Oregon prison population. The fact is, it decreased it. There were only 397 men on Jan. 1, 1924, and the number of men has for a long time run around 350, which is very low for a state with the population of Oregon.

Some of the increase of our prison population is due to the growth of our general population. We had about as many prisoners in the Oregon penitentiary, in the days before prohibition, when the population of our state was not more than half what it is now.

There are some bootleggers and moonshiners among the present prison population; but very little of the growth of late can in any other way be attributed to prohibition. A great deal of the increase can be attributed to the unsettled conditions following the war. A lot of young men who were uprooted from former environments have never since become settled.

WANTS LOBBYISTS TAGGED

There is a movement on foot to require every lobbyist in California to secure a license—

And in the application for a license he would be asked to show for whom he was working, what he wanted and how much he was being paid. After this information had been broadcast from the capital there wouldn't be much mystery left in the lobbying trade. In this connection the Los Angeles Times remarks:

"While the members of the third house are being rounded up and catalogued they might as well be required to wear their license number on their hats and blow a horn on approaching a legislator. Possibly it might be well to insist that every lobbyist should wear a brass collar around his neck to which a four-pound bell should be affixed. Then the solons could quietly disappear when they heard one on the highway.

"The lobby has ever been the source of much scandal at Sacramento. There are hundreds of persons who hang around the capital and make a living out of their traffic with the legislators. This may be wholly innocent at times, but as a general proposition the lobby is an anomalous body whose influence is not for the general good. It would be better if the lobby could be done away with and 'influence' be represented by written plea or public protest."

We have the same nuisance in Salem during sessions of the Legislature. But we will always have lobbyists. And it will not be possible ever to tag them or bell them. The question would come up as to when any one interested in public affairs became a lobbyist; when he ceased to be merely a patriotic citizen and blossomed into a lobbyist.

WORK FOR PRISONERS

The flax industry may help the Oregon prisoners to secure employment. The fear of coming in competition with free labor has prevented prisoners from being busy with their hands. This is bad for the prisoners as well as for the state. Prisoners should receive pay for their labor, but work should be provided, the pay going to the family and the labor being done by prisoners.

Organized labor has opposed this because it was enforced competition which is true. The business men generally support the labor unions in this, yet there must be something that the prisoners can do. Our new flax business promises well. So far it is not in competition with free labor and it may get by for a good while.

Secretary Hoover is fostering a government commission to investigate the output of enforced competition and its effect on manufactured merchandise. The committee will start the work in a short time. Upon the report of that committee much depends. If it reports in favor of enforced idleness, it will be a bad day for the penitentiaries. Yet every one sees we can not have indiscriminate manufacturing in the prisons. A way must be found to keep prison labor employed productively and in a beneficial way. It is a dreadful economic waste and naturally a burden on society to maintain prisoners in idleness and it is productive of vicious tendencies which assert themselves after liberation. That condition can not be perpetuated because it is both morally and economically unsound and socially it is a menace to the country. Yet what are we to do?

The national chamber of commerce in supporting this investigation declares that large corporations have grown up through contracting for prison labor at low rates and escaping most of the overhead incident to private industry. This new investigation is going to put the matter right squarely before the public and a way must be devised to protect the public as well as secure the labor for the prisoners. The present situation is intolerable.

THE REASON WHY

A man rushed into print a few months ago to say that it a public reception he was introduced to Governor Pierce three times and the governor did not remember him. He thought the matter a jest, but thereto hangs a tale, the last chapter of which is disclosed in the news columns this morning.

While Governor Pierce has been keeping a brave front, a cheerful face, and a genial smile, back of that there has been an aching heart because for the two years he has been governor his wife has been slowly dying, not by inches, but by almost infinitesimal amounts. While he has been at these receptions and has done his duty socially as well as in an administrative way, his heart has always been with his suffering wife and his mind has been there so much that he hasn't had time to remember faces. It is a small thing at best to learn a face, but it is a big thing to have your heart so entwined around your home that it is always there and your mind is keeping it company.

Governor Pierce has been forgetful. He has not always remembered people, he has not always remembered things he wanted to do and today we know why. He bore his cross in silence, no one ever heard him complain, no one ever heard him lament. He was always glad he had the opportunity of doing so much to make his wife comfortable and one great sorrow was that he couldn't do anything really beneficial for her. Governor Pierce's mind has been where his heart was and now in the consummation of the impending tragedy, the entire state is in sympathy with him and those who scoffed because of his forgetfulness should give themselves whatever satisfaction they can in knowing what was back of it.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT

Senator A. G. Beals has been appointed one of the investigators of the higher curriculum. This is an unusually good appointment. Senator Beals is not a display man but he is deliberate and in the last session of the state senate, he wielded a large influence because he never acted until he was sure of his ground. Furthermore, he is intensely interested in education and he is not going to do anything to injure it, but he will strive to get the facts and to find out what is best for the growing pupil.

It must be admitted that the situation is critical and this investigation is timely. We want to know the facts. If we are going in the right direction we want to continue, but if we are going in the wrong direction, we want to call a halt, but first of all we want men big enough to make values to conduct the investigation.

OF COURSE

There is an effort now underway to make prohibition international. This is coincident with the effort to revive the old wet associations and get them busy at home. It is too late for the latter organization to get anywhere. It can not even hinder. The time is ripe for international action. The liquor traffic is wicked and it is just as wicked in England as it was in America. It was doomed because it is economically and morally wicked.

CONSERVATION

It is true that conservation is a great thing and has done wonders for the country, but we must not forget that we owe something to the present generation and instead of conserving everything for the future we must have leeway enough to take care of the present. It is so easy to take conservation too far and so hard to stop it when it gets to going, that the American people are warranted in their present reaction.

A penny saved spoils the pudding.

Necessity is often the mother of virtue.

Fools and their money are the life blood of Wall street.

No matter what kind of mistake you make, it always runs into a lot of money.

It is to be hoped that his hibernating will find its way into congressmen's speeches.

The Golden Rule has its advantages, but lacks popularity because those who follow it get no publicity out of it.
