Famous Writer Speculates on Originator of Jazz

ROSE WILDER LANE

The pal that I loved, stole the gal that I loved, and took all my sea-shoes and joy

Rose Wilder Lane, Winner of O. Henry Prize, Blames Beethoven

Rose Wilder Lane, winner of an O. Henry prize and author of a new best seller called "The Pal that I Loved," has a new theory about jazz.

She recently returned from Albania to find everybody "discussing jazz and its origin." She heard a number of pieces, such as the current craze, "The Pal that I Loved," and grew much interested.

"They usually are atrociously named but enchantingly rhythmic and orchestrated," she declares.

Mr. and Mrs. George G. Brown entertained at one of the most delightful club gatherings of the week when the members of the Capitol club were their guests on Saturday. Mrs. W. H. Daney and Dr. R. E. OTIS SKINNER

In the Merry Spectacular "SANCHE PANZA" Company of 40 Players, Singers, Dancers.

"How magnificent Mr. Skinner plays 'Sancho Panza'! There is the richness of oil in his splendid voice and the animation of his big nature in his action, and doubt he has been playing the part for two years now, his representation has all the freshness and spontaneity of a first performance. It is one of the gems one may put away in their hearts to turn to in times of mirth or even laugh aloud at the memory."—George Warren, San Francisco Chronicle.

Never in Mr. Skinner's history as a dramatic star has he had a more delightful play than "SANCHE PANZA."

The Reformer
By Fred P. Marion
I have a cranky neighbor
Who sings a doleful tune:
You should hear him belabor
The women night and noon.
No matter what they're wearing
Or how they fix their hair,
He does a lot of swearing
In phrases rich and rare.

When skirts were short and nifty,
About the size of legs,
He cried, "In Eighteen-Fifty
They didn't show their legs!"
When with the change in fashion
The skirts went to the ground,
He swore, in raging passion,
"The hassles should be drowned!"

If such confounded kickers
Could regulate the earth,
Goodbye to girls in knickers,
And other signs of worth;
Goodbye to pretty stockings,
Goodbye to daring style,
Goodbye to all the shockings
That makes men's life worth while!

Relativity
Mrs. Fisher: "Mrs. Curtis has twice as many clothes as I have."
Fisher: "Well she's had twice as many husbands."

Boom!
Little Bobbie: "If the word 'fort' is a masculine noun, then 'fortress' is feminine, isn't it, dad?"
His Father: "Yes, they call that because they have more powder."

His Life Work
Farmer Donahue: "Has your son chosen his field of endeavor, now that he has graduated from college?"
Farmer Hart: "I have chosen his field for him. It's my 80-acre corn field."

Dr. Balpate on Cold Weather Clothing
"Our recent severe weather suggests the timeliness of a few words

by an epidemic of single, double, and triple pneumonia in Overshoe, a hamlet in the Wisconsin veldt, four days' sledge journey from Milwaukee. The cold was aggravated by high winds, after a week of which the epidemic started. Its persistence puzzled me, for the natives are a hardy lot. Then, one day, I discovered the reason.

"With a husky woodsman, Sven Borgsdorf, I had withdrawn into a shack, the door of which stood open. Even here there was a strong breeze blowing and I suddenly realized that it came from the actual person of my companion. In an instant all was clear. The wind, forcing its way into Sven's pockets, was blowing through his button-holes, thus passing through his chest. Next day he was down with pneumonia.

"A survey of the population showed that wearers of long trousers were the first to succumb, in some cases blown out of their clothing by the terrific blast which passed up the trouser legs and out through the sleeves and neckbands. I immediately convened all able-bodied citizens and sealed their outer garments with pitch and oakum, thanks to which the town of Overshoe is still on the map."

As a rule you can recognize a Progressive politician by his resemblance to Cassius.
