Nominated For Hall Of Fame

THOMAS A. EDISON and CHRISTOPHER LATHAM SHOLES, Inventor of the Typewriter, Whom He Urges for Honor

THE greatest living inventor has proposed the inventor of the typewriter for election to the Hall of Fame. Thomas A. Edison has nominated Christopher Latham Sholes for a place among the immortals. In a letter to Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, Director of the Hall of Fame, the sage of West Orange, N. J., recommends that Sholes' name be added at the Sixth Quinquennial Election to the list of those already chosen for the signal honor of a place in the memorial structure. This fact has just been disclosed by an old acquaintance of both inventors. If there is any one now living who can speak with authority based on personal knowledge concerning the title of Sholes to immortal fame, Edison is the man, for Edison worked with the inventor of the typewriter over half a century ago, when Sholes consulted him concerning certain mechanical problems in connection with his machine. This was before the Remingtons began its manufacture at Ilion. Sholes died in 1890. Mr. Edison himself is not yet eligible for nomination to the Hall of Fame for the one and only reason that he is now living. The present rules laid down by the Senate of New York University, the governing body, require that candidates cannot be nominated until they have been dead at least twenty-five years. Twelve Americans who died over a quarter of a century ago may be elected to places in the Hall of Fame this year. An election is held every five years and sixty-three immortals have already received this honor. The electors, a body composed of about one hundred eminent Americans representing every state in the Union, will not be announced until July 1st, according to Director Johnson.

county this year, many applications for teaching positions are being filed with Mary L. Fulkerson, county school superintendent. He's Crippled Children—Crippled children of the county are being instructed under an act of the legislature two years ago, according to the statement of Mrs. Mary L. Fulkerson, county superintendent of schools, who has been making a survey of Marion County. At present there are five children in the county who are on the list, one of these being presented with a wheel chair by the Elks. Due to the inability to locate the children until the school census had been turned in, no budget allowance had been made. However, allowances were included in the new budget, according to the superintendent.

Health Certificates Wanted—
Hereafter the contracts signed by the teachers of the Salem public schools will have a clause "The board of directors reserves the right to require a certificate of good health from said teacher." Action of the school board is responsible for this addition to the contracts. It is stated that the death of one teacher was caused by her return to the classroom before she had fully recovered from a serious illness. Under the new arrangements, both the teacher and the student will be protected.

Students Make Survey—
The survey of the property near the J. L. Parrish junior high school will be undertaken by the mechanical drawing class, under the direction of Floyd Selgmund, the instructor, in order to make way for an athletic field. Students of the department willingly offered their services in surveying the property to prepare the field for the athletic contests. For several years the high school has been using the Willamette university field, because of the bad condition of the grounds. The associated student body of the high school

Would Abolish Council—
A plan was presented to the Willamette University student body Friday to centralize the control of finance at the University by abolishing the athletic council and placing their authority in the hands of the executive committee. Those presenting the plan upheld its feasibility on the grounds that it would eliminate an amount of needless confusion in athletic control and would place the responsibility in the hands of a body that is directly under the control of the student body.

Keep Puzzles Together for a Rainy Day
MARGARET HAWKS
Every cross word puzzler knows how difficult it is to keep puzzles together so you can work on them whenever you have time. A simple scrap book is a great convenience. You can make one quickly and easily with some cardboard, paper and glue. Cut two pieces of cardboard for the covers, and two pieces of heavy colored paper an inch wider and longer than the covers. Fold the paper over the cardboard and fasten it with the best quality liquid glue. Cut two more pieces of paper one-half inch smaller than the covers and glue these on as linings for covers. Punch three holes in the back of the covers and corresponding holes in the pages of the book, then lace them together with pretty colored tapes. As the tapes are laced in you can take them out or add new ones as you will.
