Russian Fish in England

GRIMSBY, Eng., April 11 .-Bolshevik Russia, which iast year began organization of a fishing fleet in northern waters, has begun to extend its business to forsteam trawler to be seen in a recently and attracted much attention not only among seafaring men, but the public generally.

The trawler brought a load of fish caught off the Murmansk coast. The captain said other Russian trawlers would arrive regularly in British ports in the near future as the soviet fishing fleet was again getting on its feet and, due to recent additions of fishing smacks, was well fitted to ars, sie.74 supply the Russian demand for 1.647,350,95 sea food, thus eliminating the necessity of buying fish abroad.

No air pilot ever has reported birds higher than 12:000 feet, and most of them do not rise more than 1000 feet in the air. The blue throat, once credited with a wing speed of 200 miles an hour. cannot actually do better than 25 miles, according to air pilots interested in ornithology.

One trouble with bird study from airplanes is that the machines cannot go slow enough.

other rulers. One of the favorite stories among residents of Windsor concerns Queen Victoria and is known as "The crocuses and the sentinel." Soon after her ascension to the throne, Queen Victoria was delighted by the appearance of the first crocuses of the season near the castle terraces. Fearing that the blooms might be destroyed by sparrows or other birds, the queen sent for a soldier to protect them.

Queen Victoria never rescinded the order, and year after year a sentry stood at the same spot, day and night. During the war when every available soldier was needed at the front it occurred to a castle official to look into the archives to learn why and when the sentinel had been stationed near the crocus bed, and this led to the 252,000.00 disappearance of one of the sights of Windsor.

Scrap British Ministers

LONDON, April 11-Recent asreaching 40 years of age has cansed much speculation in British Parliamentary circles and has resulted in the ages of all the English cabinet members being discussed in unmerous publications. If Lord Esher's theory were brought into practice, it was revealed that the present cabinet would be reduced to one member. this being Lord Eustace Perry, 794,811.54 minister of education, who is 38 years old.

Lord Esher, deputy governor of Windsor Castle, and author of several books dealing with the 246,442.17 lives of King Edward and Queen 15,219,29 Victoria, who himself is in his 64,365.46 73rd year, on the question of ages said: "To very few, and possibly 727,513.21 only to reflective minds, like Sophocles and Leonardo, is the None privilege granted of sustained vigor after the age of forty." He 1,012,080,00 cited Napoleon, who was 40 when None at Schonbrunn in 1809, the zenith 73,443.78 of his career. In Chatham and vital spark paled early. Further, Lord Esher asserted:

"No man, and very few women, 1/211/834.64 retain physical charm and generous instincts after 40 years of 108,631.83 age. All men and women should be aware of the 30's. In our time 494,981.84 there are manifold examples of the failure to maintain, after the 12,000.00 age of 40, a pertinent grasp over public affairs and the faculty of wise decision."

"But is there, in fact, any true comparison between the men of 25,140.89 today and the men even of the 10,758.80 Napoleonic times?" asks the Evening Standard in an editorial in which Lord Esher's contentions
