YOUNG PEOPLE IN SILVERTON MEET

Pioneers, Campfire Girls and Boy Scouts Hear Deputy State Forester

SILVERTON, April 16.—(Special to The Statesman.)—The Silverton Boy Scouts, the Pioneer boys, the Camp Fire girls, and their leaders were entertained Monday night at the Methodist Episcopal church when Mr. Cronemiller of the U. S. forest ranger service, spoke before them. He was introduced by B. J. Kimber, county YMCA secretary.

Mr. Cronemiller had a number of interesting slides with first to illustrate his talk, the first part of which was devoted to the forests from an economic standpoint. He reported that at present Oregon has one-fifth of the standing timber in the United States. He also said that redwoods were not confined to California, as most people seemed to believe, but that Curry county in Oregon was well supplied with them. Mr. Cronemiller described various forms of logging from the time of ox-teams to the present donkey engine method. In Coos Bay and Bend countries, he said, horses were still used in logging. He told of a log chute which was two and a-half miles long down which a log could travel in two minutes.

Following the talk on forestry from an economic viewpoint, Mr. Cronemiller dealt with the protection of the forests. He described the work of the helicopter, the latter of which he had been a member last summer. He said that in many instances the old bucket system used in putting out fires had been discarded and in its place the ordinary orchard spray equipment was being used. In speaking of reforestation, Mr. Cronemiller said that he did not believe it necessary to plant trees, but simply to permit and preserve those which grew as volunteers.

In concluding his talk, Mr. Cronemiller said that the least each Boy Scout could do was to put out camp fires and to see to it that others did likewise.

The winning oration was entitled "Public Opinion" and dealt with the power of public opinion to prevent war. The oration receiving second place was entitled "True Happiness."

RAWSON CHAPIN CONTEST WINNER

Seniors Take First and Freshmen Second Place in Oratory Thursday

The Willamette University interclass oratorical contest held at Waller hall yesterday was won by Rawson Chapin, representing the seniors. Second place went to the freshman representative, Miss Gladys Amburn. Richard Briggs, junior, took third place, and the sophomore representative, James Walsh, received fourth place. The inter-class oratorical cup is now the permanent property of the senior class as it has been won for them for two years in succession by Mr. Chapin. This is the last time Mr. Chapin will represent his class or the university in oratory or debate as he is to graduate this year.

The winning oration was entitled "Public Opinion" and dealt with the power of public opinion to prevent war. The oration receiving second place was entitled "True Happiness."
