First Impressions Decide Opinion of Any Village

How does our town impress the man who swings off a train at the depot and takes his first glance up the street? .

sions is often created by street lighting. The town that nods in the gloom of a few dim lights seldom attracts any big industrial enterprise or sees any boom in copulation. But the town that welcomes you with bright, wide awake streets, ornamented with up-to-date and good looking lighting equipment, attracts outside interests and keeps everyone within

Kind of Meat for Menus

NEW YORK, April 18—Alaska has its eye on the gradual falling off in American beef production and aspires to develop an equivalent of the once famous Texas steer in its own Arctic reindeer. Charles DeWitt Brower, a New Yorker who has lived 41 years in Alaska, told a gathering at the City club recently that New York City was already taking 150,000 pounds of reindeer beef a year, and predicted by the end of 1925 it would consume 375,000 pounds. What Mr. Brower called a definitely established beef industry in the north rested, he said, upon herds of 300,000 beef-bred reindeer.
