

Prison Break in California Brings Memories of Escape of Harry Tracy

Summary of Career of World Famous Outlaw is Given; California Men Said to Have Killed Two Men in Running Fight

Sacramento, Cal., April 24.—Two squads of Sacramento police set on a rush call to Loomis, 27 miles northeast of Sacramento late today, arrived on the scene where they had been told Floyd Hall and Joe Tanko, two escaped convicted murderers wanted in Sacramento, had been seen and shortly afterwards sent word to Sacramento requesting more arms and ammunition.

The two bandits are also wanted for the shooting of policeman Clyde Nunn yesterday during a running fight. They escaped from the state prison two weeks ago by going over its walls and are believed to be the men who shot and killed H. J. Lutzberg, a merchant, in his store here last week.

SEATTLE, April 24.—Appeals for arms and ammunition by Sacramento police to capture bandits at Loomis, 27 miles northeast of Sacramento, recalled to Seattle police tonight a two months search made for Harry Tracy, a notorious murderer who escaped June 9, 1902, from the Oregon penitentiary at Salem after killing three guards. With a total reward of $4,100 on his head, including $1,000 by Oregon and $3,000 by Washington, Tracy was traced from Salem to Fisher, Wash., Kalama, Olympia, Tacoma, Seattle, Renton, Kent, Wenatchee, and near Creston, 23 miles west of Davenport, Wash., where he made his final stand in a wheat field August 5, 1902. A shot from a rifle at one of the possemen broke his leg. He crawled to a boulder in the field and fired at his pursuers. Weakened from loss of blood and realizing he would be captured he killed himself. None of the posse was injured.

His criminal career began in 1897 when he murdered Valentine Hoge, a Colorado cattleman. The same year Tracy killed William Strong, a youth of Colorado. He escaped by binding a sheriff at Watson, Colo. In 1898, he became noted for his nerve as a crook in Portland, Ore. Tracy and his partner, Merrill, were captured and sent to the Oregon penitentiary. After serving three years, Tracy and Merrill escaped by killing three guards. Three other guards pursuing the men were killed. A series of crimes were committed by the pair on farms. Tracy killed Merrill near Chehalis, Wash., in a duel. Tracy then successfully dodged police of Olympia, Tacoma, Seattle and Wenatchee, until two boys, George E. Goldfinch and Charles Jerrells, whom he had taken into his confidence, informed officers of his hiding place near Creston.

SALEM HI WINS IN FIVE INNINGS

Silverton Is Defeated Here Friday Afternoon by Score of 17 to 4

In a five inning game the Salem high school nine took a 17 to 4 victory from the Silverton high school at Oxford park Friday afternoon. Due to the inability to get the players there on time the game was cut down to five innings, with something doing all the while. Heenen for the local team put a fly over the back fence and trotted round the bases, making the first big hit for the Salem players. It was the prettiest hit of the season. Ellis and Kelley was the battery for Salem and Moser and Blazer for the Silverton players. The Salem players were able to knock the Silverton hurler from the box. His pitching was wild, and enabled the boys to make the circuit a number of times. It was evident that the Silverton catcher did not give the pitcher the support necessary to put up a good game.

Bits For Breakfast

Next week— It is boys' week, bicycle week, forestry and fire prevention week, and linen mill week.

Getting to be so many good things that there are not enough weeks in the year for them, so they have to double up.

It will be the biggest week in the history of Salem, if it sees the linen mill proposition finished.

Interest in flax and linen is 100 per cent in Salem now. Everybody's doing it. The advertisers are putting it into their copy. One advertiser says: "If you have any spare money that isn't working, be sure and buy some stock in the new linen mill. It is certainly a big opportunity for Salem. More yarns in what Salem needs. Buy some stock, no matter how little."

Within two blocks of Times Square, New York, there are 12,337 living places.

There are 21 living sons of presidents of the United States.

The toll taken by forest fires must be blazoned throughout the country in hope that it will arouse the nation to greater efforts. Some of the intriguing names given to the new colors are tiger's eye, goblin blue, desert sand, ashes of roses, wigwam, lipstick, golden oak and ginger snap. Skirts are limited in length only by the willingness of women who wear them."

Patient Study Reveals Secrets of Floating Ice

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The coast guard is planning to train some of its officers as specialist in ice patrol work. Lieutenant Commander Edward H. Smith, who has been serving as oceanographic officer of a year's following advantage of a year's fellowship offered him by the American-Scandinavian foundation, on the recommendation of Harvard scientists, and is studying the question of icebergs and their contributing causes and life at Bergen, Norway.

Commander Smith has been a pioneer in ice patrol work, serving on coast guard vessels in the ice-berg lanes and during the winter months, working up data at coast guard headquarters, and conducting research at Harvard University.

From a mission of following icebergs and warning craft of their whereabouts, the duties of the ice patrol have grown to include study of the ocean, including the currents that carry the bergs, the places where they form, and other scientific data bearing on them.

This service dates from 1914, following the sinking by 13 powers interested in transatlantic navigation of a convention, which provided for "an international derelict-destroyer, ice-observation and ice-patrol service." The sinking of the Titanic by an iceberg in 1912 really initiated the movement and coast guard officers point with pride to the fact that since the ice patrol was established, no lives have been lost because of icebergs in the ocean lanes of the North Atlantic.

Protection of Oregon Wild Flowers Now Being Urged

Schools of the state are receiving a leaflet on "Protect Our Natural Scenery," prepared by the committee on conservation of the Oregon Federation of Women's clubs, from J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of public instruction. The leaflet is designed to build up public sentiment for civic beauty by urging the preservation of trees and shrubs located along the state highways. It urges all school children, societies, clubs and organizations of all kinds to make an active defense of the plant life of the state. The wild orchid, lady slipper and calypso have almost disappeared in the Willamette valley, the leaflet states, and protection is necessary of the Oregon grape, red and yellow wild currant, sycamore, rhododendron and many other shrubs and flowers of which the state is proud.
